Joseph H. Waggoner Collection

[as collection by Winona Fiebelkorn]

Collection 315

Scope and Content

Joseph Harvey Waggoner (1820-1889) was one of the leading pioneer theologians, writers, and editors of the first 25 or so years of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination. He has hundreds of articles, books, and pamphlets to his credit. He served, among other things, as the editor of The Signs of the Times, the churches west coast evangelistic magazine. His son, Ellet J. Waggoner, succeeded him as editor of The Signs.

Winona Fiebelkorn was born May 9, 1914, in Corunna Michigan. She lived in Centerville, Michigan for many years until she moved to Burlington, Michigan upon marrying her husband Franklin Fiebelkorn. Fiebelkorn was apart of the Burlington Seventh-Day Adventist church for 60 years. She was also a graduate of Andrews University. Fiebelkorn was an elementary school teacher for many years and was active in mission work, which took her to places like Kenya and Honduras, where she preached, helped build churches, and participated in prison ministries. She authored the book, On the Road with Joseph Waggoner, published in 1996. She died March 13, 2010.

The Winona Fiebelkorn collection mainly consists of information about the Waggoner family. The majority of the collection are two copies of her book manuscript on Waggoner, as well as the research materials, pictures, and letters that she gathered in order to write the book.

Arrangement

The Center for Adventist Research imposed the existing arrangement as there essentially was no order when it was received. There are series for correspondence, writings, and notes and research. There is a section of photographs as well.

Provenance

The collection arrived in the Center for Adventist Research in March 2005 from the James White Library, where it had been in storage for some time. It was presumably donated by Winona Fiebelkorn.

Use

All users of this collection are required to complete the "Application to Use Unpublished Records," and to observe the regulation specified in the "Patron Agreement" and "Researcher's Code of Conduct."
