Handshake Closes Registration Week

The faculty-student reception held on Sunday evening, September 20, in the college dining room climaxed a busy week—Orientation Week—filled with tests, physical examinations, interviews, and finally registration for classes.

Those students who had not already succumbed to a condition known as writer's cramp submitted themselves to the ordeal of shaking hands with the various faculty members and their wives. After the serpent-like line had doubled back on itself and everyone had shaken hands with everyone else at least once, both students and faculty members took their places in chairs arranged in rows in the center of the room, there to enjoy the evening's entertainment.

Dr. William Sandborn, dean of Madison College, announced the program which opened with a welcome by President A. A. Jasper, with responses by Wanda Thomas representing the old students, and Clyde Van Scoy representing the new students. On the lighter side were some humorous readings presented by several faculty members. Miss Mary Kate Gafford gave some sound advice beamed especially to the new students; Mrs. Kathryn Bertram pictured the confusion of a census taker who didn't understand German; and Miss Marjorie Cates set mouths to watering as she told about Inger's strawberry "yam" pie . . . that is until she described how Inger used her false teeth to make the fancy edge on the crust.

One of the outstanding features of the evening was the barber-shop quartet composed of Dr. James Schuler, assistant medical director of Madison Sanitarium; Mr. Karl P. McDonald, head of the

Nursing Course Offers Challenge

The critical deficiency in supply of nurses for the health services of the United States and even for the world is a major social problem today. It comprises a personal problem when the shortage extends to Madison College campus. The nursing students enrolling in collegiate programs in the schools and departments of nursing in the entire country are facing a real challenge.

It is difficult to become a nurse, and it is still more difficult to

Churches Entertain Students With Picnic

The annual joint picnic of the Madison College and the Boulevard churches, at which the students were all guests, was held September 14 on the lawn in front of the Demonstration Building. Approximately 600 persons enjoyed an abundance of delicious food, spread on six tables which were bountifully filled with the favorite dishes of the church members. In addition to this were orange and grape drinks, ice cream and cookies, and delicious Nu-Steaks with whole-wheat rolls. The College band provided music that helped everyone relax while he ate.

Those who had not yet returned for the beginning of school missed a real treat. "We had all we could eat from the hands of the best cooks in the state of Tennessee," said one. The students want to thank the church people publicly for the picnic, with its free food for them and its opportunity to become better acquainted.

Lorenz Conducts Vespers

The first Friday evening vesper service of the new school year was a rich spiritual feast.

A ten-minute study of what Christianity really is was presented by Elder Lorenz. "Christianity is not what we do or do not do," he said, "but what we are. It is the purpose of the gospel to make us be something that we are not by nature. Then we will do the things we should do

New Faces in Old Places

The school year is now off to a good start. The grade school opened on August 31, with an enrollment of 100 children. The high school opened on September 7, with an enrollment of 75. Orientation Week for the college freshmen was conducted September 14 to September 20 with classes beginning on September 21. The college enrollment of 200 is slightly lower than the total figures of last year, but everything points to a much better school year. Even though the number may be smaller, the quality is high.

A large freshman class is beginning the four-year nursing program under the new collegiate nursing plan. We also have a fine class of women beginning the one-year attendant nurses program. Upon graduation they will take the state board examination and become licensed practical nurses. There is a great demand for this type of nurses; the field is wide open and wages are good. Madison will be able to quickly place everyone who takes this training. A new class in this type of nursing will probably start in March, 1954.

All of the openings for the fall quarter in the Anesthesia School, the Laboratory School, and the X-ray School have been filled. There will be some openings in these fields beginning with the winter quarter, which opens on December 9.

Several new faculty members have been added to the teaching staff, among whom are Karl Eide, in the fields of Mathematics and Physics; Dr. Ira Gish in Psychology and Education; Marjorie Cates in English; Doris Clapp, Director of Nursing; J. A. Tucker in Agriculture; Mrs. Josephine Tucker in Religious Education; and Wilma Gill, Louise Smith, Doris Thomson, Luther Hill, Dale Kendall, and Beulah Vickers in the field of Nursing Education; Mrs. Olga Lorenz as Dean of Women, and Mrs. Catherine Gray as Assistant to the Dean of Women.

Murals Now Adorn Library

Somehow word got around—you know how it goes—and almost everyone headed for Drullard Library early one morning last week. No, it wasn't registration day; that was over. What was the occasion, you ask? Why, haven't you heard? The murals . . . Mrs. Bertram's murals . . . they're finished and hanging in the library. And, oh, they're beautiful. The spring scene hangs in the center between the summer scenes, with the two fall scenes on either side of them, and the winter scenes at the farthest ends of the wall. The deep, deep burgundy-colored background sets them off just as the black velvet of the night sky frames the heavenly constellations.

Drullard Library being the busy place that it is, it was necessary that much of the work of hanging the murals be done after closing hours. Several nights found Elder Lorenz, Frank Sanchez, and Bob Lawry working until midnight to complete the project in time to be seen by visitors attending the self-supporting workers' convention held on the Madison campus October 1-4. At one A.M. Tuesday morning, September 29, all the murals were in place with merely a painting of the frames yet to be done. This portion of the task was completed by Hideo Hamano, who has helped to redecorate several campus buildings recently.

Girls' Club Reports On Summer Outing

Anyone looking in on the girls of Williams Hall on August 21 would have seen blankets, pillows, suitcases, and what-have-you piled in the middle of the floor. What was the occasion? Departure for the week-end trip to Montgomery Bell State Park. Finally the girls were ready to make their exit from the peaceful campus of Madison College for the wild country for two and one-half days.

The camping site was beautiful.

School has started again, that is, the regular school year, for here at Madison school for many goes on the year around—fall, winter, spring, and summer. A hearty welcome to all the old students who have returned, and both a hearty welcome and a warm handshake to all of our new students. We hope you like Madison and will enjoy your schooling here. Most of the new and old students have become acquainted by this time. You who haven't, we hope soon will, for you can't tell but what you might have many common interests or acquaintances. Then, too, you know, friends are the best cure for that disease among students known as homesickness.

Along with all the new students, Madison has also acquired several new faculty members. Welcome to you. Madison feels very fortunate and happy to have you on its faculty. Also a vote of thanks to all the old faculty members who have remained.

Students and faculty members alike, let's all work together during this school year. "Let every student realize that he is in the school to help fellow-students to co-operate with God, to co-operate with the prayers that are rising in their behalf. In sympathy and love, he should help his associates to press heavenward."

"Students, co-operate with your teachers. As you do this, you give them hope and courage, and at the same time you are helping yourselves to advance." C.T., p. 553. Let us all work with one accord to make this the best school year Madison has ever known.

For Better or Worse

Recent arrivals on the campus include many married students and two newly married couples. The most recent of the newlyweds are Bill and Olga Howard, who were married September 11. Bill comes from Boulder, Colorado, and Olga didn't hesitate to tell us that she came from Texas. He is in the pre-nursing class and she is secretary to Dr. Gish.

The other couple who have just started their voyage on the sea of matrimony set sail August 16, 1953. They hope to continue their straight and narrow course until they dock their ship in the New Earth. They both finished pre-nursing at Emmanuel Missionary College. He is now in hydro and she on the floor wherever help is needed. They are Mr. and Mrs. Mino. Tommy, who resembles Vincent Mitzelfelt and is also interested in music, is looking for a first tenor for a quartette.

Jerry Turnbull and his wife come from Winnipeg, Canada, where they both attended Canadian Union College, taking two years of ministerial training. They are now interested in nursing as their life work. Jerry was initiated into the 'insulin ward and now carries on like a veteran. Mrs. Turnbull is helping to keep things white at the laundry.

Kenneth Badger is also interested in theology, but he isn't going to mix it with nursing, at least not the theoretical side.

Nursing Offers Challenge

become a professional nurse. The education of professional nurses is difficult, because the demands of the profession are more difficult than the demands of a trade or monetary vocation.

Aims of a professional person should be different, because the life of the person enters into it at every stage in the preparation and the life work. A professional person should be capable of self direction as well as help in the direction of others. He must be intelligent and honest. He must seek to uphold the ideals of the profession and to become a student of the problems of the profession.

Higher than any professional responsibility is the responsibility of the Christian professional nurse. Men and women today need to recognize that there is no higher calling than to minister or serve. With this goal in view, nursing students may extract all the joy that may be theirs while serving as students and later as professional nurses.

The curriculum of the department of nursing at Madison College is designed to prepare nursing students for service in the great world field of need to suffering humanity where they may be at home and in the mission fields.

His two-and-a-half-month-old baby, Darlene Ann, has engaged him as a practical nurse, and will continue to need him, inasmuch as his wife Jean will be entering the March nursing class.

Try as we may, we just can't seem to leave Texas out of the news. It is represented again in the form of Jim Loftin, Korean vet, who is already doing a fine job in the clinical lab. His wife Joann isn't going to take any classwork. Besides having to cook for a Texan, she has a two-year-old Texan girl to care for.

Speaking of the little tots—Mr. and Mrs. Leon Gray have a seven-pound girl, Wanda Lorraine, born at 10 A.M. September 28, 1953.

We also have some more proud parents in the neighborhood. The Vegas can tell you all about the seven-and-one-half-pound bundle they received September 20 at 9:30 A.M. They have named her Theresa June.

Since Dale Kendall is the new assistant director of nurses and is making out the work schedule, I must tell you that he moved to Mother D Lodge. Maybe some morning about two o'clock you might want to talk to him about your day off.

The Aldrich family have moved into Kendalls' former home and are moving their trailer to Ohio to rent. The Alex Brown trailer is also going to Ohio.

Lack of space and news prevents me from saying anything but "See you next issue!"

Registration Daze Is Over

Four hundred forty feet scurrying along over the Madison College campus on September 18 and 20 carrying their owners to the library for the heavy task of deciding upon the course of study which would be pursued for the ensuing year. Registration is a great time of juggling—juggling of classes and work. Of course, in the planning of the student's schedule he must allow time for social growth and development. This is never neglected.

Now the four hundred forty feet must travel to the classrooms, where they will absorb knowledge from the larger feet which have carried the professors through the same experiences which the famous four hundred forty must travel.

After the first day of study and labor the four hundred forty are a bit heavier as they go toward their homes for the well-deserved rest. A cheery "goodnight" from the dean lifts the burden of the day and gives a bit of the atmosphere of home. A good night's rest does a lot for one's morale; so when the morning worship bell sounds the four hundred forty strong are again scurrying about on the pursuit of an education. Good luck to each of you, and may you enjoy each moment of your college career.

Delta Nu Zeta

Hilda Schneider

Since the last MADISONIAN, things have really been going on—Tina Benson painting, Wanda Thomas being fortunate enough to have a special young man paint her room, Pat Justus painting her room from the bottom on up. Pat, if you need any help just call on Carol Bloodworth. She too has painted for the first time!

The rooms in Williams Hall really have the new look now. They have been painted by the occupants of the rooms, who were allowed to paint them the colors they desired. We want to thank the management for being so considerate.

Joyce Christensen and Jo Ann Gibbons want every one to notice that they have Venetian blinds.

Mrs. Lorenz has recently become Dean of Women and has won the heart of every girl. Of course Elder Lorenz isn't an outcast; we have already adopted him as our new Pop.

Overheard—Dewey Luzader and Arlene Estey asking when Dean Sandborn would be in the office. Just to make sure they were looking for the right party, Arlene asked, "Does Dean Sandborn take care of the housing?"

During the Delta Nu Zeta election of new officers, someone overheard Elder Lorenz remark that he hoped he would be elected president of the club. This is a feminine club, Elder Lorenz.

Vale, Veil, Vail. There are several, but the kind that Marinell Burrill is always talking about could have something to do with a certain young man who takes X-ray too.

The cafeteria—the best known meeting place (so says Nell Arashiro) anywhere on the campus. It now has two hostesses who vary the seating arrangement from meal to meal, so that all will become acquainted and have a host of friends instead of the same old four and five.

The girls are happy to see Laura Egger well and back in the dormitory.

Girls' Club Summer Outing

situated on the banks of a crystal lake. Camp No. 2 had been reserved for the use of the girls alone, and a happy group took possession of the cabins, made their beds, and arranged their belongings.

The girls express their thanks to Drs. George and Margaret Horsley, who went with them for the week end, and also to Dr. Pitman, who came down on Sabbath to take charge of the eleven o'clock church service.

All were happy to get back to Madison College again, especially since Hilda Schneider drove the truck. Those who went on this last outing of the summer quarter have happy memories of a week end of rest and recreation.

insurance department of the Sanitarium; Elder Felix Lorenz, professor of religious education; and Professor H. E. Mitzelfelt, head of the music department. Appropriately enough they sang "Silver Threads Among the Gold," encoring with "I've Been Working on the Railroad."

A trio of nurses—Beulah Vickers, Violet Stewart, and Connie Rimmer—added a touch of nostalgia singing "Carolina Moon," accompanied by Dr. Naomi Pitman, who also gave a reading. Instrumental soloists were George Thornton, instructor in laboratory technique, who played a clarinet solo, and Elder Lorenz, who showed what time can do to a cornet player as he rendered "Dixie," and then, lest he be accused of showing partiality, "Yankee Doodle."

The College orchestra, under Professor Mitzelfelt's direction, played several selections during the evening. Refreshments provided by faculty wives were served to close a carefree evening during which the students observed their teachers in their lighter moments and found them to be quite human.

Mansion Quips

Harry Mayden

It seems that with the out going of last year's staff, I suddenly found myself face to face with a brand new job, namely, the job of being dormitory reporter.

I was very much surprised to see all the changes that had been made during the short time I was away on vacation. I enjoy rooming with my new roommates—Bill Graves and Eldon Vickers—and I also like the way the room has been redecorated.

We have divided our large room with a curtain and made ourselves a bedroom and a living room out of the one room. In our living room we have a couch, two writing desks, and a fireplace. (The fireplace is our latest acquirement.)

We also plan to buy an easy chair and a coffee table. Why don't some of you good people who have more time drop around by room No. 2 at the Assembly Hall and see for yourselves our wonderful two-room apartment. We're mighty proud of it.

The Assembly Hall residents in general are a pretty quiet bunch. There's not a one of them that makes too much noise after he's asleep. Hideo Hamano says that the only time there has been an excess of noise is before they all fall asleep. There is definitely one prerequisite for prospective residents of this dormitory. The prospective resident must not snore. And speaking of snoring, Eldon Vickers seems to be first on the list for deportation. Eldon has been accused of trying to snore but has not yet been convicted.

Eugene Watkins has moved out of our dormitory to live with Freddy Kerbs at the old Mansion.

We want to welcome back Cappi and Louie DeLong, and all the new students also.

The news from the old Mansion, better known as the Men's Court, is just as noisy as ever. The only time there is any peace and quietness around is when the noise vacates, and that is practically never. If Emmanuel isn't playing his trumpet, Carlos is playing his violin, and when those two fellows are away on other business then there's still Harold and his saxophone. Of course the noise—or rather music—from one is bearable, but when all three decide to play at the same time, it's very ———. (You choose the word; I haven't found one to describe the situation yet.)

Next issue I expect to have the names of all the new students and give you a first-hand description of each. Bye now.

WELCOME to the new students and old. We are very glad you are here, and we are sure that you are glad you are here. It is the desire of us all to make this the best year of school we have had yet. If we will have these "School Room Mottoes" for our own mottoes, I'm sure it will be the best.

Perseverance is the road to success.

Patience is powerful.

Look before you leap.

Life is short, so improve each moment.

Practice makes perfect.

Who never tries will never win.

All's well that ends well.

Speak only the truth.

Make hay while the sun shines.

Constant occupation prevents temptation.

A poor workman quarrels with his tools.

Youth should be a savings bank.

Youth is life's seed time.

We shall never be younger.

W. H. Wilson

Principal's Message

I am wondering if as you begin this school year, you realize that a challenge is also facing you. School means a lot of things if it is to be successful. It means hard study, acceptance of responsibility in school and church activities, recreation and good times. That is what school should and will represent if you do your part. Along with this will come the usual number of stumbling blocks, hard times, financial problems, a low grade on a paper, an unkindly act by a friend, and any number of other items of discouragement. These things will only speed the strong on to their goals.

So set your goal at a successful year. Let nothing dim your vision. It is God's will that you should succeed. When you say, "I can't," you're saying, "He can't." Don't be afraid of opposition. Remember, a kite rises against, not with, the wind.

—YOUR PRINCIPAL.

New Faces in the Office

Mr. Wilson's office has two new secretaries—Tulamae Self and Eva Jo Aldrich. Tulamae, who comes from Avans, Georgia, is a freshman in college and is preparing to be an X-ray technician. In her spare time she has a new hobby, collecting "fifty-cent pieces" from absentees. Eva Jo, a village student who has been here for three years, works in the office afternoons. I might also add that she is a "dignified" senior. We wish both Tulamae and Eva Joe luck, which they need working with us.

the next morning her baby girl, who has been named Wanda Lorraine, was born.

A club has been organized in Gotzian Home, which is called "The Triple G Club" (Gotzian Gray Girls). The colors are red and gray, and the president is Jane Throckmorton.

Welcome, Students

The high school has many students this school year, who come from all parts of the United States and some from as far as Puerto Rico, Cuba, and even Japan. We are all having a good time getting acquainted. I would like to introduce some of them to you:

Elsie Gibbons, 15, a junior, likes Madison very much because the people here are so friendly. Her pet peeve is stuck-up people. During her spare time she enjoys skating. Elsie is one of our reporters for the school paper.

Another of our new students is Beverly Meekins, 17, a senior in the academy. She is one of the teachers in the Cradle Roll Department on Sabbaths. The main thing she likes about Madison is the dean, Mrs. Gray.

Bill Leigh, a new senior this year, works in the pharmacy in the afternoon and likes his work very much. One thing he doesn't like is geometry, but he does like school. His main ambition at the present time is to pass geometry.

Emmanuel Cabrera has come a long way to be with us this year—from Havana, Cuba. We are very glad to have him. Emmanuel, 18, and a junior, likes school very well, especially chemistry class. He hopes to major in chemistry when he goes to college.

Barbara Martin is another who likes Madison because of its friendliness. She is 17 and a junior. Barbara works at the Sanitarium afternoons. Her hobby is singing and her pet peeve is gossip. Marquis Gober comes from the wonderful (so he says) state of Texas. Marquis says he too likes school very much this year. His only dislike is a few soy beans, but we know his opinion will change soon. He is 17 and partly a sophomore and partly a junior. He says his main ambition right now is to finish high school.

Here are some of our new freshmen:

Janet Newman, from Memphis, Tennessee, is 18 and is taking two high school subjects. She likes the way the school is run and doesn't have any pet peeves. Her favorite pastime is writing to her pen pals.

Carol Hilgers lives here at Madison College. She is 13 and dislikes English. She likes her dean, and her pet peeve is people who scratch blackboards with their fingernails. Her hobby is music.

Lois Gant, 13, lives near the campus. She thinks the school is wonderful, and her pet peeve is people who don't like Madison. She also likes to swim.

Connie Andress comes from Knoxville. She is 14 and she likes our school hours. Connie very much dislikes gossip, and her pet peeve is people who tickle her.

Linda Pitman, 14, lives right here on the campus. Her mother, Dr. Pitman, is the school physician. She likes the pictures they show here at the school and dislikes long home work assignments. Her pet peeve is grouchy teachers, and her favorite pastime is playing the organ.

Stella Rodriguez, from New Orleans, especially likes the pictures hanging in the library. Her pet peeve is people with quick tempers, and her favorite pastime is playing the piano.

Temperance Chapter Organized

Last week in chapel a Temperance Chapter was organized in our high school. Right away it was voted that Ronnie Christensen was to be the president, Barbara Busch the secretary, and Marilyn Campbell the treasurer. We are looking forward to the first meeting, Mr. President.

Chatter in the Hall

■ We are sorry to tell you that since school has started two of our students have been in the Sanitarium. Elaine Culpepper was the victim during last week, and this week Elsie Gibbons is sick. We are glad to say, though, that Elaine is back with us in school this week, and we hope that Elsie soon will be. Thank you notes were received from both for the beautiful flowers that were sent to them by their fellow-students.

■ All the Gotzian girls are mourning the death of their friend Mr. Rat. He was found dying in the kitchen of a mouse trap wound. His funeral was held on September 27. Don't feel too bad, girls.

■ The Gotzian girls gave Mrs. Gray a baby shower September 27;
