Master Guide Ranks Receive Additions

At an impressive service held at the M.V. hour on Sabbath afternoon, February 20, Dr. Naomi Pitman, pediatrician, and Miss Esther Radinz, senior nurse, were invested as Master Guides.

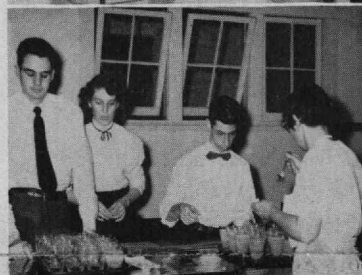

While Elder Teddric Mohr, conference M.V. secretary, gave the charge and Elder H. S. Hanson, union M.V. secretary, gave the dedicatory prayer, the 18 Master Guides in the audience, all in uniform, stood.

Miss Tulamae Self, who has now taken over the leadership of the Master Guide Band, displayed a chart containing the names of the 26 M.V.'s who are enrolled in the present class, now working on their Master Guide requirements.

Elder Mohr took pictures of Dr. Pitman and Miss Radinz and of

Delta Nu Zeta and Wasiota Men Enjoy Banquet in Cupid and Hearts Setting

(1) Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson receiving compliments as guests of honor at Delta Nu Zeta banquet. Betty Jo Allred, master of ceremonies, pins a corsage of red roses on Mrs. Wilson, while Hilda Schneider, club president, presents Mr. Wilson with a white carnation boutonniere.

(3) "The workers behind the scene." Caught in the photographer's flash are the servers as they are preparing to serve the novelty punch.

(2) Hawaii contributed also to the beautiful banquet setting as Nell Arashiro and Alice Yun brought their eager listening audience two typical Hawaiian melodies, as a duet. The young girls were dressed in twin blue satin formals with Hawaiian leis. Miss Arashiro's lei was a fresh cut flower lei, imported direct from Hawaii for the occasion.

(4) Typical group scene of guests who enjoyed every moment of the evening's delicious meal and program, as they associated together.

In a candlelight setting with valentine decoration, the Delta Nu Zeta Club served their annual banquet on the evening of February 14 in the college cafeteria.

The Wasiota men and the faculty members entered the Williams Hall cafeteria through the lobby, which was tastefully decorated for the occasion with streamers and hearts.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wilson were chosen as the special guests of honor during the evening's program.

Miss Hilda Schneider, president of the Club, opened the evening's entertainment with the introduction of club officers and of the master of ceremonies, Betty Jo Allred.

Program numbers included "The Welcoming Trio," by Mary Ellen Eaves, Tina Benson, and Wanda Thomas; a number by the high school trio, Eva Jo Aldrich, Lois Miller, and Janet Jensen; piano renditions by Betty Concepción and Carilyn Brackett; the string trio, Mrs. Thornton, Mr. Mitzelfelt, and Mrs. Mitzelfelt; a cornet solo by Pat Silver; a vocal solo by Mrs. F. B. Cothren; a reading by Nancy Carney, and a Hawaiian duet by Alice Yun and Nell Arashiro.

Following the banquet, all the guests enjoyed the two films in the Assembly Hall entitled "Swimming" and "The Green Grass of Wyoming."

Mrs. Sandborn for the students, and especially the married students of the college, came the desire to do something constructive.

Kentucky-Tennessee Teachers Hold First Spring Convention

Madison College played host to fifteen elementary church school teachers at the first of what will be known as "Spring Annual Conventions," over the weekend of February 19-21.

This is the second convention held in the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference area by Elder Teddric Mohr, and another one is yet to be conducted at Lexington, Kentucky, over the weekend of February 26-28.

The object of these meetings is to discuss policies and procedures to ensure uniformity and unity in closing the school year.

Dupont Officials Tour Hospital

Madison Sanitarium and Hospital was host to four of the top officials of the Old Hickory Dupont rayon plant last week. These officials toured the buildings, being shown the new quarters for colored patients, the new ward recently opened on general, pediatrics, and the newly remodeled and renovated Sanitarium kitchen. They were also shown the site of

Brown Strikes Dope's Damaging Effects

Elder Henry F. Brown, connected with the narcotics control service of the American Temperance Society, was the speaker at the Friday evening vesper service on February 12.

"All young people should be informed of the danger of dope and its harmful effects upon the human body," was the theme of Elder Brown's message.

The short talk served as an introduction to a film which vividly portrayed the unscrupulous methods used to spread the drug evil, especially among young boys and girls. The pictures also illustrated the demoralizing effects of the narcotic habit.

Former President Amundsen Speaks

Elder Wesley Amundsen, former president of Madison College and now secretary of the General Conference Commission on Rural Living, was speaker at the February 19 vesper service, which was also the opening meeting of the teachers' convention held over the weekend. Elder Amundsen discussed Christian education under four heads: its basis, love; its object, to direct the mind to His own revelation of Himself; its work, to develop the power to think and to do individually; and its goal, to reflect the image of God.

In closing he urged the teachers of today and those of tomorrow to dig again into the upspringing wells of past education, for he stated that "the old wells of education are good and we should accept slowly the new educational ideas, being sure that God is included in them."

who is going to win it next week, and it is going to be a married man. Come on, you foot-loose and fancy-free folks! Fight fearlessly for subs for the Cumberland Echoes of fifty-four!

We thought it was very nice when we learned that Brother A. H. Face provided copies of the review questions in Educational Psychology for every member of the class. Thoughtfulness of others concerning the "little things" makes the road of life a lot easier to travel.

I let a couple of students slip away in December and get married without a word about them in this column. When they returned, the paper had gone to press, and by the next issue the wedding was old news. So we have neglected them until now. They are now making their home in the trailer park in trailer 21. Mrs. Luzader was formerly Arlene Estey. She and Dewey were married at 8:00 p.m. Sunday, December 20, 1953, at Springdale, Ark. Elder J. A. Estey, the bride's father, performed the ceremony. She is majoring in pre-school education, and Dewey's major is religious education. Dewey is also a member of the male quartet.

By the way, how many are going to Chicago with me? More details in the next issue. So long for now.

Delta Nu Zeta

Wililams Hall is a studious place these days. We've decided it's better to start studying now than to fail in our tests next week.

Lonnie Lorenz Lafferty is spending a short vacation at home, which is now in the dormitory, with her parents, Elder and Mrs. Lorenz. Lonnie, we hope you are having a nice time.

Are we ever glad Lillian Azavedo is back with us again! Lillian will be in the March nursing class. Welcome home, Lillian.

We miss Leah Sepulveda, who has moved out of the dormitory. Leah is living with Miss Bessie DeGraw now.

Mary Jo Carney and Betty Concepción, two of our charming young ladies, entertained the Wasiota Club Tuesday evening with a reading and music.

A delicious Indian curry supper was served to Joyce Christensen, JoAnn Gibbons, Frances Yatsu, and Mary Ruth Reed by Olive Cruickshank. I sampled "a big sample" of it, and take it from me, it was good food.

A few days ago we learned the sad news that Esther Ruckert's and Mrs. Lorenz's sister had passed away. Our sympathy goes out to you in your sorrow.

Well, bye for now, but before I leave, may I just give you a thought to cherish and to carry with you. It reads: "Our attitude towards life largely determines our Altitude." — Jim Garrison.

Harry Mayden

Since last issue there hasn't very much happened in the way of excitement around the men's dormitory. Everyone seems to realize that the winter quarter is about over and that the final examinations are about to begin. But that's not all that everyone realizes. Everyone also realizes that spring is almost here. Practically everyone spends as much time out of doors as possible. That sort of leaves the dormitory empty and quiet.

However, things are not always so peaceful, for there are times when one must come inside and attend to minor details such as sleeping, changing clothes, showering, shaving, and whatever else one may find necessary to do indoors.

We've had an addition to our dormitory residents this month. The newcomer is Carlous Mason, from New Mexico. We know Carlous will like it here; he is a very friendly fellow and has already won friends.

Henry Steinmuss seems to be a very studious person lately. The other night I was awakened at twelve-thirty a. m. by Henry, who wanted to study P. and A. Of course everyone knows that twelve-thirty is too early to get up, so there was no studying done. (Besides, I had just gotten into bed and fallen asleep myself.)

Oh, yes, I must not forget to tell you about Alfred Durham's sudden interest in film projectors. Alfred is learning to run the projector, and he intends to make the film quit jumping.

Well, I really must go now. The weather is so "purty" out, I think I'll go and see if I can find a daffodil.

the proposed improvement and expansion to the hospital surgical section.

Following the tour, the men were served a bountiful luncheon in the Sanitarium dining room. The men expressed themselves as being gratified and pleased with what they saw. Those living in Old Hickory, Dupontonia, and Rayon City, most of whom are employees at the rayon plant, are most appreciative of the medical and hospital service which Madison renders them.

In 1951 the E. I. Dupont DeNemours Company, of Wilmington, Delaware, made a gift of $25,000 to the institution for hospital expansion.

ive and interesting for the married students. On February 1 Mrs. W. C. Sandborn called the wives of the men on the faculty and the women teachers to her home and F.W.C. was organized.

The following officers were elected: president, Mrs. W. C. Sandborn; vice-president, Mrs. Ira Gish; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. B. V. Bowen. After being organized the club chose as a motto "To Help Others," which is indicative of the character of the club.

The pot luck supper on February 16 was the club's initial project, and a very successful one, according to the appreciative guests, who were enthusiastic about the good food and the opportunity for social get-together.

After the meal the guests enjoyed the very appropriate films chosen for the occasion by the president, Mrs. Sandborn.

According to one present—"What is better than food, fun, and friendship? Friendship is to life as air to an automobile tire. Nothing to it—it is free. But how you bump along without it! Occasions like this make us thankful for friendship and the many blessings from the Heavenly Father. They help us to labor happily together as we prepare ourselves for a place in His work here and a home in His everlasting Kingdom."

For Better or Worse

John "Henry" Aldrich

Evidently the single students don't have very much fighting spirit or they don't bother to read this column. I have been telling about how much better the married people are when it comes to selling ANNUALS, and it appears from the evidence, which is very little, that they believe me. Again this week the prize for selling the most ANNUALS for the week was given to a married man, Bill Howard. I have a pretty good idea our Altitude. — Jim Garrison.

Meet the Faculty

According to young Professor Leslie Morris, "You don't have to have money to get a college education." And to prove it he will tell you that he has worked his entire way through college, including three years at Madison College and his senior year at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville, where he graduated in 1951. The following year found him receiving his M.A. Majoring in chemistry, he minored in mathematics, biology, and education—all of which training well qualifies him to head the Chemistry Department here.

In his junior year of high school Professor Morris became a Seventh-day Adventist. Following a period of religious persecution he left home. His lack of funds and the opportunity to work his way through college that Madison offered drew him southward. He came to Madison from Athens, Pennsylvania, in November, 1939, and has been here continuously except for a three-and-a-half-year "hitch" spent in Uncle Sam's Army. During this time he traveled rather widely over this old globe—three times to Australia, once to Guadalcanal, and twice to England—all at Uncle Sam's expense.

Education apparently did not claim his full attention, for in June, 1946, he married Doris Coffee. And he lays claim to being "the first undergraduate to have permission to marry in the chapel." The Morrises have two children, Mary Elizabeth and David.

Professor Morris's list of hobbies reveals his versatility. Well-known as a photographer, he also builds model airplanes, and nature study and teaching rate high on his list of hobbies. Incidentally he is proud of having been a member of Madison's largest Master Comrade (now Master Guide) class. In 1946 at the last campmeeting held at the Southern Pub, he was among the approximately forty-five Madison students invested by Elder C. Lester Bond.

In looking back on his arrival almost fifteen years ago and the changes that have taken place since then, Professor Morris recalls that the team of horses, Queen and Coalie, which are still on the place, were here when he came. Some of the changes he has seen include the building of the girls' dormitory, new additions to the Sanitarium, and the rebuilding of the food factory. And he has helped in the construction of many of these buildings. In fact he says he has worked in every department on the campus.

A typical Madison graduate, Professor Leslie Morris, we salute you!

held in Chattanooga in April. New members joining the band recently are José Soler, mellophone, and Mrs. Verle Brown, clarinet.

A new baritone horn was purchased recently, making two now available for use in the band. Previously a new alto horn was bought which Virginia Schuler is now playing in the band.

Carilyn Brackett, student piano teacher, will soon be taking her place in the flute section. The drum section will miss her, especially those lively bell parts she plays.

If we had a bulletin board in the band room, you would probably read a notice to this effect: "Students, the week of February 15-22 will bring you the opportunity of the year. During that week the Cumberland Civic Music Association will hold its annual membership drive for the 1954-5 season. Don't miss this wonderful opportunity to buy a student ticket for only $3.00. There are usually four concerts during the season. Look for future announcements about the drive and be sure to subscribe when a representative calls on you."

The Way the Wind Blows

★ Mr. John Brownlee, manager of Madison Foods, has left for a trip to Nebraska, in the interest of his department. It is the plan to establish a distribution center for the Madison health foods in Nebraska, probably at Lincoln.

★ Mr. Ray Karnatz has resigned his office as senior class president and has left Madison College for Crossville, Tennessee, where he will have charge of the clinical laboratory in a hospital there. Mr. Karnatz has finished his requirements for graduation in Medical Technology, having taken all his examinations.

★ New students are arriving early for the spring quarter. Among these are four Anesthesia students: Mr. Faulkingham and Mr. Waggoner, from the New England Sanitarium at Melrose, Massachusetts; Miss Bertha Dunn, from Redlands, California; and Miss Hazel B. Dozier, from Nashville.

New college students are Chester Villemain, from Florida; Carlos Mason, New Mexico, religion major; Thomas Linville, New Mexico, nursing student; Gilbert Jorgensen, Colorado, Medical Technology; Jesse Shlemon, Boston, Massachusetts; Lois Sharp, Canada; Mrs. Flora Draper, Middle-

• "BOWEN'S BRIEFS"

Donald Milburn, '53 graduate of our School of Anesthesia, is now connected with Kern General Hospital, Bakersfield, California.

Bertha Dunn, R.N. '50, is a "returnee" now residing with her family at the Slaters'. She starts learning the arts of Morpheus March 1. Welcome back.

William Schwab, B.S., and Bernard Bowen attended the Mid-Southern Nurse Anesthetist Assembly in Memphis, February 10 and 11.

A Chicago short course in Anesthesia has claimed the attendance of two of our lab graduates—Roy Wilkin and Mervin Rigenbach, both of '52.

Jim and Betty Van Eman Ramsey are now located at Elgin, Ohio. Jim is teaching while Betty puts her Makers of the Home into practice. Jim, B.S. Nutrition, and Betty, R.N., were helping to "pound our pavements" here a few years back.

Dr. Wayne Ramsey and family were here this weekend. This reporter and several other friends were really surprised to learn it was he making rounds with Dr. Gant Friday night instead of Jim! Did someone mention something about identical twins or were we hearing things?

Dr. Ramsey, who took some of his pre-med here, will be a resident doctor at the hospital beginning about July 1.

• BULLETIN

Bob Register, B.S., is back at the post office window. His hurried trip to California was due to the critical illness of his sister, June. She and her mother, Lillian Register, graduated from our School of Nursing in '52. Our prayers and best wishes are with you, June.

the big Lincoln's Day Luncheon for feature story material, Jerry accepted some routine assignments with good grace. In a poorer section of the city, where he least expected to find it, he found his feature story in the person of a humble little librarian who was building Lincoln ideals into the lives of her boys and girls. The story, "He Knew Lincoln," should inspire all who heard it to make the most of life's humble assignments.

"The Perfect Tribute," a fine movie showing the tender regard of Lincoln for a dying soldier, seemed to bring the audience very near to the heart of this great American president.

Another movie, "Whole Grain Bread," showed the successive steps leading from a field of ripe wheat to the "staff of life."

Elder Hewitt, from the Texaco Conference, was a welcome guest at the chapel hour and led in the prayer.

Come and meander with us through the Music Department for a few moments. We can't possibly see everything in the short time we have, so this will have to be a rather extended tour—extended over several issues, that is.

For this time we will stop in the band room—as everyone calls it. Here it is that the Junior band holds forth on Friday mornings. This organization is composed of about twenty-five of the liveliest elementary school children to be found anywhere. It was in this group that several College Band members got their start. The youngsters have been working up a group of numbers presented as a part of the Demonstration School program Sunday evening, February 21.

This room is used also for choir rehearsals as well as band rehearsals. Right now the College Band, under Professor Mitzelfelt's direction, is getting in shape for the prospective trip to the Southern Union Youth Congress to be

Editorial

My, oh my, how time seems to fly. Do you realize that this is the last of the fourth six-week period? Do you also realize that there are only fifty-eight more days of school?

Sometimes it seems to me that this school year has just begun, and then at other times it seems that the year has been going for almost an eternity.

But, you know, it's all up to us how fast or how slow the school year goes. When we sit and moan and fuss about the assignments that Mr. Wilson gave us in American Government, or the paper that Miss Cates told us to hand in the next day for Bible Doctrines, that is when the time begins to seem long and we feel as if we will never get out of school. But when we have our lessons every morning ready to hand in, no matter how long or how hard they may have been, we always feel better, and the weeks just FLY by.

Let's see how fast we can make the next few weeks go by having our lessons ready to hand in every morning.

Gotzian Gossip

Lois Miller

With the strains of "Happy Birthday" floating through the air, we began an evening of fun on February 4, honoring those who have or have had birthdays in January or February—Elsie Gibbons, Annette Moore, Frances Mayden, and yours truly. Amidst the confusion of trying to burst everyone else's balloon and keeping your own, Betty Jean dusted behind the piano while taking refuge there, and Winnifred Hollingsworth cleaned the cobwebs off the ceiling. Elsie Gibbons was given a prize for answering the Jack Pot question—and OH, what a prize! When she opened it, she screamed and threw it a mile. Poor little mouse—someone felt sorry for him and gave him a place of refuge in Annette's bed. However, she didn't have much sympathy for him when she found him. "Root beer and burgers" were served for refreshments.

The other night about 12:00 p.m. a terrific scream came from Annette and Elsie's room. Upon investigation, we found Annette trembling and explaining, "Something big and black crawled across my stomach!" About that time a quiet little "Meow" broke in on the confusion, and all was explained.

Gail seems to like the closet for studying, or at least she used to like it. However, the other night after time for the lights to be out, she retired to the closet with a lamp, her books, and a pencil. She had just got settled to studying when our dear monitor turned off the main switch. (Evelyn Moore is our new monitor.) I wonder if her ears burned, or if she is immune to what was said when the lights went out!

Mrs. Gray and Sharlene visited Collegedale recently and reported having a wonderful time.

A Day at the Court House

Vern Manzano

Monday morning found the U.S. Government class ready and waiting to go to the court house. As we arrived early, we looked around while waiting for the courts to go into session. When the courts began, we went up to the sixth floor where the criminal courts were in session. Some very interesting cases were being tried, and many of the people on trial were young, still in their teens.

It was hard for us to leave here, but we had to hurry down to the traffic court, where two of our members had to appear on a parking ticket violation they had received on one of our previous field trips to Nashville. When we told the judge that we were in town to visit the courts and that we had been so interested that we had not noticed the time, he was very sympathetic and withdrew the fines.

One of the cars then had to return home, but the rest of us stayed and went up to the seventh floor to visit the jail. The warden took us on a very interesting and enlightening tour of the jail.
