First Annual Student Faculty Day Successful

Tuesday, April 20, marked a high spot in the history of Madison College. It was the first student-faculty day ever held at the school.

The faculty had voted to turn the running of the school over to the students from 7:00 a.m. Tuesday to 7:00 a.m. Wednesday. All offices from that of the president down to the classroom teachers were held by the students. The Student Association had previously elected from the student body a president, dean of the college, deans of women, dean of men, registrar, finance officer, director of nurses, assistant director of nurses, public relations head, principal of the academy, and matron of the cafeteria. The teachers for each class had been selected by the regular teachers.

Faculty Acts on Marriages

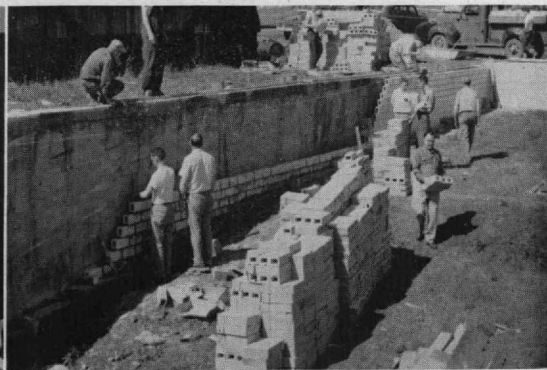

The day progressed like any college day. The students attended classes and worked as usual. The new faculty held deans' council, president's committee, faculty meeting, in which permission was granted for two marriages, and government committee. The faculty-members-for-the-day gained a valuable insight into the problems and headaches of the regular faculty; the student officers and teachers are now more aware of what it takes to run an institution such as Madison.

Faculty Works and Picnics

What were the faculty members and the institutional heads doing during the day? Every faculty member was off limits when seen on the campus with one exception—the male faculty members were allowed to work on the new swimming pool, where they put in a good morning's work. Later in the afternoon the faculty and their families left their work and went picnicking.

A Profitable and Successful Day

Following are statements indicating how a few of the student officers and regular faculty members felt about the day:

PRESIDENT A. A. JASPERSON: Student Day on Madison College campus can well be rated as a successful and profitable demonstration of the ability of responsible young people in carrying responsibilities. The students who staffed the principal administrative offices of the institution were a promise for the days ahead when of necessity the students now in training will need to assume positions of trust not just for a day but on a permanent basis. So to these future institutional leaders we offer a salute.

GEORGE THORNTON: I haven't heard any complaints. I believe the program should be carried on every year. It gives the students experience in carrying on the work of the administrative offices.

TULAMAE SELF, student teacher: Teaching is a wonderful profession

Finney Conducts Spring Prayer Week

Elder R. E. Finney, Jr., editor-in-chief of the Southern Publishing Association, was the speaker at the Missionary Volunteer Week of Prayer held at Madison College, April 2 to 10. Elder Finney is the author of numerous magazine articles and four books, all of interest to young people.

Challenging the student body with the question, "Would you go to heaven if you had a chance, and would you stay there if you went?" the speaker of the week continued to bring before the college the practical phases of living a Christian life and getting ready to meet Jesus when He comes.

Through the week there was a profusion of special music pro-

(for one day). With the exception of a few misused and misunderstood idioms, which added interest, English for Foreign Students class was a great success, and I enjoyed teaching it.

Student-president EDGAR BYRD: The day was worth a lot to me and I'm sure it was to the faculty. But the great worth was the boost it gave to school spirit. Student faculty day should be an annual affair.

Student public relations head THEO WILLIAMS: Enjoyed filling the office but wouldn't want to do it again.

JOHN ALDRICH: I think the Student Faculty Day was an outstanding success. I also think as "Dean for a Day," that it will help promote school spirit and loyalty, and one more thing, I believe that it will help the students to more fully realize the responsibilities of the faculty.

Dean of College, WILLIAM SANBORN: The day was a huge success. I appreciate the way the students took hold and operated the school. It was a good experience for the faculty to get out and work.

ERNEST PLATA, student teacher: The pupils were wonderful. This experience is worthy of being repeated.

Dean of Men WILLIAM WILSON: I think it was a very successful day and believe that it was an eye-opener to the students as to some of the things that the faculty has to deal with. I hope we do it again.

The students wish to thank the faculty for the opportunity given them to conduct the school. They feel greatly honored with the trust shown toward them by the faculty.

THE HIGHER LIFE

He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more excellent who can suit his temper to any circumstances.—
HUME.

"I am not bound to win, but I am bound to be true. I am not bound to succeed, but I am bound to live up to what light I have. I must stand with anybody that stands right; stand with him while he is right, and part with him when he goes wrong.—ABRAHAM LINCOLN.

"How long, oh how long will it take us to learn that there are only two things in this life that really count—one is character and the other is human sympathy."

"The habit of judging and condemning others is usually a great deal more serious blemish than are the things we so glibly point out as flaws or faults."

Madisonites Attend S.U. Youth Congress

The Madison College Band presented a concert on Saturday evening, April 17, preceding the main program.

"Go Ye" and "Man an Outpost for God" were the themes of the first great Southern Union Youth Congress held April 15-18 at Chattanooga, Tennessee. The great civic auditorium was packed with 6000 youth who were inspired as they listened to reports from Missionary Volunteer societies all over the Southern Union. These reports prove that youth are doing things for God. Through the proper use of "M.V. Tools" in 1950 there were 12,000 baptisms, one-third of these the efforts of youth. But in 1953 there was a 300 per cent gain, with 30,000 baptisms.

During the Congress Madisonites were spotlighted in the various inspiring meetings which thrilled the entire audience. The following flashes show their contributions to the Congress.

Flash I Friday a.m. The Tool Box Patricia Mitselfelt-Silver rendered a trumpet solo, "The Lord's Prayer," to open the meeting, which was under the direction of Teddric Mohr, Kentucky-Tennessee's enthusiastic M.V. leader. Cast of characters: Elder A. D. Burch, minister; Mrs. A. D. Burch, nurse; Grant Duncan, physician; Harry Mayden, farmer; Gerald Turnbull, painter; Gordon Roberts, carpenter; Mr. and Mrs. Everett Kitto, helpers of the Tool Box; and Miss Sue Townsend, former Madison student, secretary.

Flash V The Trophy Hour

Under the direction of Miss Tulamae Self, leader of the Master Guide Club at Madison College, a report in the form of an interview and dialogue of the activities of the club's 77 members was explained. Following, the Kentucky-Tennessee trio—Lucia Lee, Sue Townsend, and Dr. L. McNeil—sang "Great Is His Faithfulness."

Madison College, represented by Mr. Everett Kitto, head delegate to the Congress, was the first light in the whole Southern Union to be lighted for outpost evangelism. The thrilling Congress closed as one by one the lights, representing each church that would "man an outpost for God," came on, and the whole Southern Union was lighted for God.

HARRY MAYDEN

It seems that spring fever has gotten a hold on all the fellows this spring. Everyone is finding it hard to get much studying done, and judging from all appearances, will continue to find it hard for awhile.

Last week end found several of the fellows running around with paper slips in their hands, their "leave of absence" blanks that they were getting signed so they could go to the Southern Union Youth Congress. Your reporter was with the group that went to Chattanooga and got a first-hand report of the Congress.

Grant Duncan had a wonderful time playing the part of a doctor in one of the programs. He wore a doctor's white coat, and all the preachers came up and shook his hand and asked him how he was and all that sort of stuff. Of course those of you who know Grant know that he played right along with everyone, and all the people thought that he was an "honest-to-goodness" doctor.

During the student-faculty day last week, our "dean for the day," Bill Graves, made an effort to get along well with all the fellows, but that didn't do him any good. He was given a cold shower anyway, and what's more, it was about twelve-thirty a.m. when he was taken from his nice cozy bed and put into that cool, cool shower.

Well, it seems as though I have come to the end of my rope, so I'll have to say—vided by the Music Department of the college under the direction of Professor Harold Mitzelfelt. This added greatly to the spiritual atmosphere of the week.

The week was climaxed by two special services on Sabbath, April 10. At 11 a.m. a communion service was conducted, with Elder Finney as speaker and presiding. In the afternoon five young people were baptized by Elder Kimball, with Elder Finney delivering the baptismal sermon.

Elder Finney expressed himself as greatly pleased with the excellent attendance at the meetings and the interest of the students in spiritual values. He especially commended the fine interest of the faculty in the spiritual welfare of the young people, and stated that the co-operation of the faculty in making the week a success was the most outstanding that he had experienced in his contacts with major educational institutions.

Dr. Dittes Tours Europe

Dr. Frances Dittes, head of the Department of Nutrition at Madison College, sailed from New York on April 14, for Naples, Italy, her first stop on a four-and-one-half month tour. From Italy she goes to Egypt, various points in the Near East, Palestine, Austria, Germany, Switzerland, Denmark, and the British Isles.

Her purpose in visiting these countries is to make a survey of the nutrition of the people and also to learn what is being done in the field of nutrition in the educational institutions of these lands. She will visit both denominational and secular schools, doing some lecture work in the schools.

In Germany Dr. Dittes will spend some time with cousins and friends.

She has contacted the Seventh-day Adventist workers at all points where she will stop and will visit many churches overseas. Sabbath, April 23, she attended church at Naples.

Dr. Dittes is the author of the book Food for Life, published in 1935, and it is believed that this trip, in connection with her studies and work at Madison for the past several years, will be the basis for a new book which she hopes to publish in the near future.

Youth's Congress was an inspiration to all of us who had the privilege of attending the well-planned meetings and seeing and meeting old friends.

An old proverb to remember: "Take a lesson from the thumb-tack—his head keeps him from going too far."

CAMPUS CLEAN-UP

Students Improve Grounds of School Homes

The Associated Students of Madison College sponsored a very successful Clean-up Day which was held April 22. On the day before, the student committee, with President Jasperson and Dean Sandborn, surveyed the campus and laid plans for the annual spring event.

Thursday dawned early for the members of the committee, for many jobs had been outlined for the day. Topping the list was lawn planting around Gotzian Home. Next several old buildings around the area were to be removed. The entrance to the campus was mowed, greatly improving the appearance. The swimming pool area was given the best attention of all; for the faculty worked in that area. They did a wonderful job of clearing away the old sheds that cluttered up the place. The grounds around the swimming pool really look fine now. Many smaller jobs were completed which are too numerous to mention.

All too soon the day came to an end and everyone went over to Williams Hall, where Mrs. Wilson had a fine picnic lunch prepared. After a day of work like that everyone really did eat; perhaps they all ate more because they had tickets for free meals given them by the faculty for their work. To end the evening's entertainment, the girls' club showed a picture on aviation.

The clean-up committee, which included Patsy Wilson, Eldon Vickers, and Aubrey Thompson, wish to thank the faculty for their cooperation in making the day a wonderful success and the student body for working so hard.

SCHOLARSHIPS

Madison College offers
$400 Scholarships

Newlyweds Surprise Friends

Friends on the campus and in the community were pleasantly surprised to learn of the marriage of Miss Bessie DeGraw and Dr. E. A. Sutherland.

Dr. Sutherland, founder of Madison College and president emeritus, and Miss DeGraw were wed in the home of the bridegroom's son, Dr. Joe Sutherland, on Campbell Road, Nashville.

The surprise ceremony was performed by Elder A. D. Burch, pastor of the Boulevard S. D. A. church in Madison, before a small gathering at the home on Wednesday, April 14.

Dr. Sutherland founded Madison College in 1904 with the assistance of Miss DeGraw, Mrs. Nellie Drullard, Dr. P. T. Magan, and others.

Miss DeGraw obtained her master's degree at Peabody College, and at the age of 60 did work toward a Ph. D. degree. In the earlier years of the school she was treasurer of the institution and later was professor of Education.

Meet the Faculty

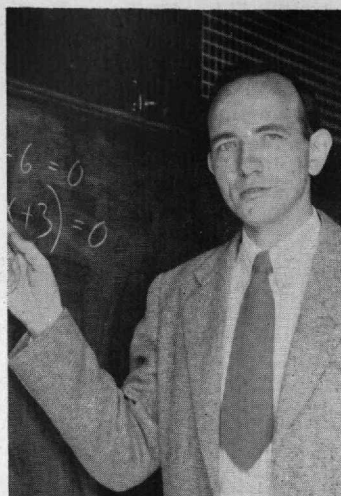

Coming to the United States from Bergen, Norway, in 1948, Professor Karl Eide can tell many stories of life in Europe during World War II. Five years under Nazi domination with all its restrictions—confiscation of radios, strict food rationing, and suspicion which might lead to confinement in a concentration camp—they are only memories now, but at the time they were all too real.

For instance, there was the time when Nazi bullets whined around him one night when he was out "after hours," and the time when he hastily hid the family radio in a haystack when German officers visited his home. You see it meant death for anyone found possessing a radio. Immediately following the war, as a member of the police force he helped to clear the Nazis out of Norway.

In America Professor Eide met his wife Betty, who is an R.N., in the hospital where she was in training and he was an orderly. They have been married three years and have a year-old son Norman. Professor Eide is rather proud of him and like other fathers assists somewhat in his care.

The Eides have been Adventists for about two years; however Professor Eide knew of the Advent message before coming to America. This knowledge influenced him to attend Emmanuel Missionary College, where he majored in mathematics. He received his M.A. at the University of Wisconsin. Here he met Professor Byron Patrick, who acquainted him with Madison College, its aims, and ideals.

Professor Eide teaches mathematics on both high school and college levels and is well-qualified to teach physics and calculus. Although he has gained valuable teaching experience at Madison, he feels the need of further training and has accepted a graduate

The Way the Wind Blows

Professor and Mrs. Leslie Morris announce the arrival of blue-eyed, blond Sharon Doreen on April 15. The little lady weighed six pounds, two ounces.

The annual election of ASMC officers took place at chapel on Student Faculty Day. On April 27 the officers were presented to the student body by ASMC President Theo Williams. Watch for pictures and article in the next MADISONIAN.

Elder M. P. Nouan, president of the New Caledonia Mission and former president of the French Oceania Mission, told the students in chapel on April 13 experiences showing the way the Lord is working in Tahiti. He showed pictures of the work in Oceania. "There is power in the Book, power in the Seventh-day Adventist's message," said Elder Nouan.

Mrs. Byron Patrick attended a convention of college registrars at St. Louis April 19-23.

'54 Seniors Tour Nation's Capital

At 11:15 p.m. on Saturday night, April 10, a group of seniors left the campus and headed for Washington, D. C., to enjoy a three-day tour of the nation's capital. They went in cars driven by Mrs. Mable Jensen, Janet's mother, and Mr. Wilson, class sponsor, who drove Mr. Holland's station wagon.

The trip was perfect with no mishaps or flats. We stopped at the Natural Bridge in Virginia for lunch, and those that could afford the $1.10 went down under the great natural wonder. We arrived at our destination in Washington at 6:30 Sunday evening, tired but eager to begin our sight-seeing.

At the sign of daybreak on Monday we were on our way to the heart of the city—our destination, the Capitol building. Mr. Deakins, secretary to Senator Kefauver, took us through the building to such places as the Senate chamber, where we saw the Senate in action, with Vice-president Nixon presiding; the House chamber, which was also in session; the vice-president's office; the old Supreme Court chamber, now used by the Senate; the Rotunda; and Statuary Hall. From there we went to the Library of Congress and to the Supreme Court building. To finish off the day we walked down to the Washington Monument, only to find it was too late to use the stairs, and therefore we had to ride the elevator.

On Tuesday we visited the White House the first thing in the morning. Although we arrived early, we found a line one block long, three or four abreast. The line, when once started, moved fast, as the guards in the White House allowed no one to stop to look. From there we walked over to the Lincoln Memorial, along Reflection Lake. The weather was perfect and spring was announcing its arrival in many ways, all of which made the trip more pleasant. We also visited the F. B. I. that afternoon and left with a greater appreciation of the work that department does. Our last stop on Tuesday was at the Zoological Park.

Wednesday morning before going down town we went through the General Conference building. Dr. Beaven showed us through the various departments, and Elder Branson, General Conference president, greeted us in his office. Our first appointment for the morning was for ten o'clock on the lawn in front of the Capitol to have our pictures taken with Senator Estes Kefauver. The rest of the morning and most of the afternoon were spent walking through the great Smithsonian Institute, which is composed of five buildings. Our only regret was that we didn't have a week to spend in each building. On the way home that afternoon we visited the Review and Herald Publishing Association, which proved to be a major undertaking.

Wednesday night we packed our belongings, stopped in Washington long enough to see the Cinerama, and then started home. Needless to say, we were dead tired when we arrived home Thursday evening, but no one regretted the time, money, or the wear and tear spent on this wonderful trip.

Teacher Training Head Welcomed

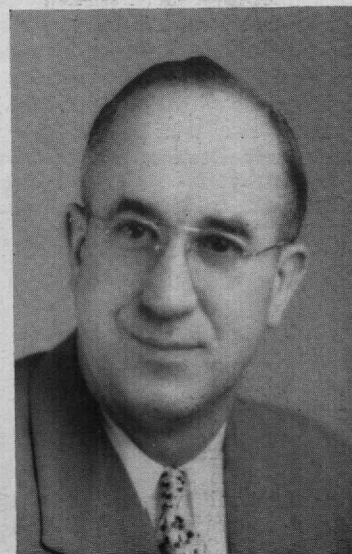

We are very happy to announce that Professor J. M. Ackerman has accepted a call to join the faculty of Madison College. He will serve as head of the Teacher-training Department.

Mr. Ackerman was born in Canada, naturalized in Atlanta, Georgia, and is "a Southerner by choice."

Mrs. Ackerman is the former Dorothy Evans. She holds the Bachelor of Arts degree from Atlantic Union College and the Master of Music degree from the University of Chattanooga. She has taught in the music departments of Southern Missionary College, Washington Missionary College, and Atlantic Union College.

Mr. Ackerman will enter into his active teaching duties with the beginning of the new school year in September. In the meantime, he will continue work on his doctorate at Peabody College.

In that great sea of faces at the Youth Congress were those of friends, old and new. Two of special interest to Madisonites were Mr. and Mrs. Luther May; she will be remembered as O.B. head nurse and clinical instructor. They send greetings to all. Also, George Brashears, former student and head of the Maintenance Department, and Maurice Patton of the infectious grin, were there.

PROUD PARENTS' LEAGUE

We are happy to announce that Jacqueline Denise arrived at Madison Sanitarium on March 19 to make her parents fully qualified members. Lawrence and Irene Bidwell—our sincerest congratulations.

To John and Laverne Wilson Dodd has been born a third son. The grandparents are Walter and Tekla Wilson, the uncle and aunt, "Billy" and Beverly Blair Wilson.

OUT CALIFORNIA WAY

Mr. and Mrs. Lewis (Frieda Brunner, R.N.) Tanner have acquired a bundle of joy by adoption. Her name? Jeanne Cheryl. Arrival date? March 1. Frieda says nursing is nothing compared to the pleasure of this experience.

Bob Register reports happily that his sister, June Register, who was recently so seriously ill, is now up and about improving nicely. Must be the special California sunshine, eh, June?

The past week found Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Cruickshank guesting at the Kendall home with the Harry Faces. Coming from New Jersey, Sarah, with her three children, delighted her ailing father, Mr. C. E. Kendall; her brother, Dr. Cyrus Kendall, and family; her sister, Mrs. Face; and her sister-in-law, yours truly.

Vacation Bible School Workshop Held

A workshop, the purpose of which was to compile materials for a Vacation Bible School workbook for the kindergarten age, was held on the Madison College campus April 5-9.

At the last Fall Council the General Conference voted to make Vacation Bible Schools a part of denominational work. Realizing the importance of using material produced by Seventh-day Adventists in these schools, the General Conference chose three committees which have been authorized to compile workbooks for the kindergarten, the primary, and the junior ages, respectively.

The committee which met on the Madison College campus was composed of Elder and Mrs. A. O. Dart of the Southern Union, Mrs. Gilbert Johnson and Miss Dorothy Matthews of Madison College, and

Mrs. Thelma Wilson from Southern Missionary College.

The material, in mimeographed form, will be used in Vacation

Bible Schools this summer by Elder and Mrs. Dart and then sent to the General Conference for publication and then general use.

SENIOR SKETCHES

NORMAN KENDALL

Sixteen years ago in May Norman Kendall was born to Dr. and Mrs. Cyrus Kendall right here at Madison Sanitarium.

Norman has lived at Madison all his life. His father is the Pathologist at the Sanitarium, and Norman's ambition is to follow in his father's footsteps as a doctor.

Baseball seems to be Norman's favorite sport, although he does pretty well in most sports. Norman plays first chair trombone in the band. His father and two brothers also play in the band.

We are proud to have Norman in our senior class, of which he is valedictorian. We wish you success in your future, Norman.

BEVERLY MEEKINS

Beverly Meekins hails from Rover, Missouri. She came to Madison in her senior year; previous to this she attended public school near her home.

Beverly likes the Christian fellowship here, especially teaching in the Cradle Roll department on Sabbath. She also likes her work in the Pediatrics Department of the hospital.

Sewing is Beverly's hobby, and her great ambition is to be a doctor. With her determination we are quite sure she will make her goal. Good luck, Beverly.

The best happiness insurance is kindness. The premiums are thoughtfulness.

EVA JO ALDRICH

Eighteen years ago next July 26 a new voice was heard in the Aldrich family. Eva Jo, now an academy senior, started her career at Hot Springs, Arkansas, and after living a few years in Florida, Louisiana, California, and Pennsylvania, she finally arrived at Madison College at the age of thirteen.

She has been very active in church and school activities. For example, she has played in the band and orchestra all four years of her academy days, has sung in the choir and in a trio each year, has been secretary of the M. V. society, won second prize in the the Southern Union Oratorical Contest of 1953, is a member of the Student-Teacher Council, and is the editor of the Hi-School Hi-Lites.

Although she has not decided definitely what she wants to do in life, we know that in whatever choice she makes, she will be successful. Good luck to you, Eva Jo.

Douglas Kendall Wins Piano Honor
