

Wasiota Club Fetes Ladies at Annual Reception

One of the well-spread tables

The Wasiota Club was host to the ladies of Williams and Gotzian Halls at its annual banquet held on the evening of December 5 in the cafeteria of Williams Hall.

The large, lighted Christmas tree in the center of the room, the decorations of evergreen branches and mistletoe, the fireplace piled with logs, the red candles on the tables—all gave a Christmas atmosphere to the evening's festivities.

After Joe Schnell, president of the club, had welcomed the guests, Grant Duncan, master of ceremonies, presented Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Wilson, guests of honor.

The program began with two songs, "I've Been Working on the Railroad" and "Lil Liza," sung by the Criterion quartette, composed of Dick Ackerman, Jan Rushing, Harry Mayden, and Tommy Mino. Henry Burchard and Connie Martin gave readings. David Hernandez played a piano solo. In between numbers, dinner music was played by the instrumental trio, composed of Professor Mitzelfelt, Edna Thornton, and Joyce Christensen.

Chapel Features Lawrenceburg Unit

Mr. Edwin Martin and Mr. Earl Barham brought up-to-date news from the unit at Lawrenceburg, Tennessee, during chapel on Tuesday, November 30. Mr. Martin stated that the unit is hoping to have a doctor join the sanitarium and hospital to strengthen the medical work there. It is also hoped that the eight-grade school may be expanded into a twelve-grade academy. The Lawrenceburg unit is located on a farm containing about 150 acres.

Music Dept. Presents Program in Peoria

The Madison College ladies' trio and the instrumental trio presented a sacred musical program at the Peoria, Illinois, Seventh-day Adventist church on Sabbath morning, December 4.

Arrangements for the program had been made with Elder L. J. Marsa, pastor of the Peoria church, early in the school year. And it was on his invitation that the group of musicians left the campus by car early Friday morning. In the group were JoAnn Gibbons, Patricia Silver, Joyce Christensen, Edna Thornton, and Professor Harold Mitzelfelt. The third member of the ladies' trio, Connie Rimmer, who is now working at the Pewee Valley Sanitarium near Louisville, Kentucky, joined them in Evansville, Indiana.

For Professor Mitzelfelt, who in his youth was a member of the Peoria church, the trip was almost a family reunion, for he met and renewed acquaintance with numerous members of his family while there. A short drive to Moline on Sabbath afternoon made possible a visit with Professor Mitzelfelt's mother, Mrs. Barbara Mitzelfelt, who is recuperating from an extended illness.

Other sidelights of the trip included a visit to Salem, Illinois, where Professor Mitzelfelt formerly supervised instrumental music in the public schools for a period of six years. A tour was made of the beautiful new high school building which was built after Professor Mitzelfelt's departure.

At Springfield a visit was made to Abraham Lincoln's home, where he lived from 1844-1861. As the car passed the cemetery outside of town, every eye strained to catch a brief glimpse of the shaft marking Lincoln's tomb.

On Sunday the return trip was made by way of Shawneetown, which necessitated a ferry trip across the Ohio River. A cold wind blowing and a gray sky with rain

The MADISONIAN subscription campaign for '55 was launched November 20. The entire chapel program was devoted to promoting the campaign.

All members of the MADISONIAN staff appeared on the stage and were presented to the student body by Floyd McDaniel, president of the student body.

Harry Mayden, editor of the MADISONIAN, introduced subscription campaign manager, Grant Duncan, a sophomore nursing student from Albuquerque, New Mexico.

Mr. Duncan, before giving the details of the campaign, worked school spirit up to a fever pitch with a timely talk on the "Aim of Madison, The World's Most Unusual College." He brought to the attention the fact that the aim of Madison College is to develop the hidden talents of its students. He also pointed out that there must be development physically, mentally, socially, and spiritually.

Mr. Duncan emphasized the fact that love for the school and appreciation for Madison's program will make the subscription campaign the best and greatest ever.

The goal announced by the campaign manager is 2200 subscriptions. This calls for an all-out effort on the part of every student, parent, alumnus, and friend of Madison College.

The prizes offered to the four securing the highest number of subscriptions are: first prize, a radio; second prize, a table lamp; third prize, a rug; fourth prize, a clock. There will also be a prize given to the person securing the most subs during the Christmas vacation.

The closing date of the campaign will be January 15. All who have secured six subscriptions will be guests of the MADISONIAN at a party.

The above-pictured students have been selected to represent Madison College in Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities, a publication which gives somewhat the same type of honor that is given to those in Who's Who in America.

Each year the faculty chooses for this honor five students who are leaders in student life, who show promise of future leadership, and who have maintained a good scholastic record.

Christmas Blessings

Once again the season has arrived when a feeling of good will pervades the earth. During the Christmas season, as we give and receive, our friends become especially dear to us. How wonderful they are! Our hearts are full and overflowing as we express to them our thanks for their gifts.

Each gift we receive, whether it is magnificent or simple, should remind us of the gift, the gift of God to us—Jesus. Shall we not also express to God our thanks for his "Unspeakable Gift"?

And as we openly acknowledge appreciation to our friends for their gifts, let us not neglect to acknowledge our appreciation for this best Gift of all.

For Better or Worse

TOMMY MINO

Mr. and Mrs. Gilbert Jorgensen have recently moved into the new apartment house, filling the upper floor. The other five families who are enjoying living in brand new homes are Mr. and Mrs. Pat Gill, Mr. and Mrs. James Aldridge, Mrs. Tina Sanders—who is by herself until her husband gets home from transportation school, Mr. and Mrs. George West, and Mr. and Mrs. Billy Howard.

The lower floor is not quite ready for occupancy yet, but there are several "anxious" couples looking forward to moving into the remaining apartments in the very near future.

We are happy to have George Webster back with us again. He recently returned from serving in the Armed Forces in Germany, and now he and his wife are on a sort of second honeymoon.

Faculty Ramblings

Several members of the faculty have been "on the go" lately. Professor Felix Lorenz recently took a week's leave of absence, acting upon the advice of his doctor. He and Mrs. Lorenz were in Minnesota, Nebraska, and Missouri, visiting members of the family.

On November 26 Dean W. C. Sandborn made a trip to Detroit, Lansing, and Chicago on business for the school. He also visited his sister, who was ill in the hospital. He states that while on his trip he used every type of transportation except a boat—plane, train, bus, taxi, subway, elevated.

Professor W. H. Wilson, academy principal, flew to Chattanooga to attend a principals' meeting of the Southern Union Conference.

On December 1 Dean Sandborn, Professor J. M. Ackerman, and W. H. Wilson motored to Louisville, Kentucky, to attend a meeting of the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools.

President A. A. Jasperson attended a board meeting of the Little Creek School on Thursday, December 2.

Nursing Class Takes Field Trip

The junior nursing class in Social Aspects of Nursing has recently made two field trips to Nashville. Mrs. Freda Zeigler, instructor, assisted by Misses Midgehall and Cruickshank, clinical coordinators, supervised the trips.

The first trip included visits to the Juvenile Court, the Florence Crittenton Home for Unwed Mothers, and the University of Tennessee School for Social Workers. The trip occupied the largest part of the day, and the group ate a potluck supper in the picnic area of the park near the Parthenon. Some of the group enjoyed going through the Parthenon during the time between their meal and their appointment by the Center for Little Creek and Wildwood.

HENRY BURCHARD

Here at Wasiota Hall there is a considerable amount of talk concerning the rebuilding of our parlor. Richard Zerbee is the chief promoter. He plans for a T.V., a snack bar, soft lights, and all that sort of thing. Somehow your reporter thinks that Richard also has big plans laid for a time after the remodeling of the parlor.

Gene Post recently took a three-day vacation over the Thanksgiving week end. On returning home he was pleasantly surprised to find that his roommate, Joe Chey, had repainted their room.

Our dean has recently become the father of a bouncing baby boy. Already some of the fellows are wondering whether they will have any trouble getting to sleep at night. However, some of us are inclined to believe that maybe the baby will have a hard time going to sleep.

While we're on the subject of sleep, here is a request from the fellows who have to go to work at 4:30 A.M. to the fellows who can sleep till 6:30 A.M. Please try to make a little less noise at night. Thank you.

Because of examinations, vacation time, and a broken-down motor on the press, this issue of the MADISONIAN was not able to meet its usual publication schedule.

The second trip was a half-day excursion to the Men's Social Service Department of the Salvation Army and the Nashville Chapter of the Family and Children's Service. The group was served refreshments at the close of its visit to the Salvation Army. A worker from the Family and Children's Service told something about the three phases of its work—adoption, child placement, or foster-home plan, and the family counseling service.

Some of the junior nurses, after six months of special services, are busy brushing up on their general nursing procedures before they go back onto the floor to resume general medical and surgical nursing duties. The rest of the class are studying hard to learn all they can before going into the Surgery and Obstetrical Departments.

Gotzian Gossip

BESSIE BURNETT

Thanksgiving day has come and gone. Ruby Sykes was thankful for the time she was able to spend with the group visiting the units of Little Creek and Wildwood.

Betty Jo Allred was thankful she was able to spend a few days at home on the week end of November 19-21.

All the seniors living in Gotzian were thankful for the visit from Mary Jo Carney, their former classmate.

Petra Sukau was thankful she got moved and settled in Room 10 before she came down with a cold. She was also thankful the cold kept her in bed and away from work only three days.

Nell Arashiro is thankful she is soon to return to Hawaii. Bon Voyage, Nellie.

Faye Egger is thankful she gets to work in surgery a few more weeks, and Muriel Durham is hoping she will have some relief duty there soon.

As for me, I'm thankful for the $3.00 Happy Thanksgiving wish I received from some unknown friend. Whoever you are, friend o' mine, the money was really appreciated and put to a good use. Thank you again.

Let's Get Acquainted

Grant
Duncan

On every campus there is a unique personality who attracts people of all ages. Grant Duncan is this person on the Madison College campus. People are drawn to him by his friendly manner, his interest in helping anyone who has a problem to solve, and the length he will go to help a fellow student.

His warm personality finds no place for a "No, I just can't do it," or "I am too busy." He fills any job he is called upon to do, and fills it acceptably, especially if public speaking is involved.

Born in Virginia, he migrated to Florida, where he attended high school, followed by four years at the Florida Bible Institute, where he and Billy Graham were students at the same time.

Not ready yet to decide upon a life work, he engaged in a number of pursuits during the next few years. He was a host to honeymooners at a resort on an island off the Florida coast, a military policeman and a chaplain's assistant in World War II, a streetcar motorman in Los Angeles, a schoolteacher in Florida and Georgia, and a hospital employee for the Santa Fe Railway in Albuquerque, New Mexico. At this latter place he learned of Madison College from a former student.

With a desire to become a medical missionary, he came to Madison in March, 1954, to study nursing. Accepted on the "floor" in September, Grant Duncan, known on the campus as "Dr. Quack," has been diagnosing the cases of lovers and the sick alike.

Notice the change? The capable staff made the new title.

Winter weather has rolled around to Madison. The Bermuda fashions are finding a place slowly. Our German and Swiss students seem to be the first to wear the Bermuda socks.

"Oh, dear, what shall I wear?" that was the familiar question around Williams Hall last week. You guessed it. The Wasiotans had invited us to their annual semi-formal banquet. Everyone was so much interested in the banquet that really there hasn't been too much other news.

While walking up the second-floor stairs, I overheard Lois Sharpe talking to the operator on the phone. Somehow she kept saying, "I want a man! I want a man!" Sounds as if she is really "gone."

Alice Parsons had a wonderful time in Knoxville, Little Creek, and Wildwood; and from what I understand she hesitated a little about returning, but really she couldn't stay away.

Remember, girls, "Courtesy" is our project. A campus King and Queen will soon be chosen. Let's all be up on courtesy.

Hearts, like doors will open with ease

News Notes

Lawrence Cheevers, graduate of the School of Anesthesiology, is now anesthetist at the Hardin County General Hospital at Savannah, Tennessee.

A number from the campus went to hear the Messiah, given in the War Memorial Auditorium in Nashville on the evening of December 6. Dorothy Evans-Ackerman, of the Madison College Music Department, was contralto soloist in the oratorio.

Misses Virginia Bunn and Lo Lian Yong, students at Scarritt College in Nashville, spent a recent week end on the campus acquainting themselves with the way Madison College is operated. Miss Bunn is a Methodist missionary from Malaya, and Miss Yong is a registered nurse who for four years has been associated with Miss Bunn in schools for girls.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Patterson, Andrew Rimmer, Roger Patterson, and A. K. Nielsen spent Thanksgiving week end at the new unit at Harbert Hills. Andrew helped install some of the plumbing in one of the buildings which will later be used for patients.

Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Bowen have moved from the campus to their new home on the river. The William H. Wilsons have moved into the house vacated by the Bowens.

Mr. W. E. Layton, manager of the college store, made a business trip to Georgia recently, bringing back with him a supply of pecans.

Mr. Richard Rimmer, manager of the college press, left Monday, December 6, for a two-week vacation in the Florida Everglades.

Seminar Reports

A good many of the students are finding that an excellent way to spend that extra time before Sabbath school on Sabbath morning is to attend the seminar meeting.

Here they are a part of the audience or else are participants in a service entirely by young people.

At Madison College are many young people who are well able to give sermons or Bible studies or otherwise lead out in presenting Bible truth, but their busy school and work program makes it hard for them to gain experience in speaking and leading out. The seminar furnishes opportunity for the experience.

Step inside and enjoy a typical program. On the rostrum are four young people. Robert Pierson is acting as church elder. Harry Mayden is directing the music. Purvis Orso leads in prayer. The speaker for the service, Fred Rye, presents the sermon on "Encouragement."

Then follows an interesting discussion, in which Elder Lorenz, the seminar critic, points out the ways in which the program might have been improved.

This year the seminar, under the leadership of Lewis Dickman, aims to make it possible for any who wish, to improve their talents for the Lord.

Alumni Alohas

Congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Mitzelfelt upon the arrival of their first grandchild. Ramona Mitzelfelt was born December 3 to Vincent and Ramona Mitzelfelt at Lincoln, Nebraska. She weighed six pounds, thirteen ounces, and was 19 inches long. Vincent is finishing his senior year as a pre-med student at Union College. Mrs. Harold Mitzelfelt and daughter Sylvia visited in Lincoln, welcoming the new arrival.

falling added to the drabness of what is generally known as the "beautiful Ohio." The more daring members of the group braved the wind and waves for a few moments while the ferry crossed the river, but they soon returned to the warmth and comfort of the car, having lost their "pioneer spirit," as they laughingly explained.

The Way the Wind Blows

● New equipment has been rolling in to the Food Factory. Not long ago a labeling machine arrived; a mammoth kettle has just arrived which will be used in manufacturing a glucose syrup from the starch that is washed from the gluten.

● Mrs. Kathryn Harter, junior nurse, has made a rapid recovery from poliomyelitis and has been discharged from the hospital in good condition. Her mother, Mrs. Ackerman, was here visiting her, taking little Sharon Harter back with her to Montpelier, Indiana.

● Carlous Mason, Eugene Post, Alice Parsons, Ruby Sykes, and Miss Mary Kate Gafford, librarian, spent Thanksgiving and the week end at Little Creek School and Wildwood Sanitarium. They ate the festive meal on Thanksgiving Day in Little Creek's new cafeteria. On Sabbath at Wildwood they enjoyed the Sabbath sermons and the young people's meeting at sundown.

● Williams Hall girls appreciate the Tuesday night recreation period in the Demonstration Building gym. They say that playing basketball is an excellent way to work off excess energy and get some needed exercise too.

● Mr. and Mrs. John Borton, from Michigan, grandparents of Le Roy Borton, visited Le Roy on their way to Florida, where they will spend the winter.

● Ray Tolleson, a former student, was a visitor on the campus over the Thanksgiving holidays. Ray, who is now working in Arkansas, is planning to be a student again next quarter.

● A group of about 55, representing the Nature Club, spent Sabbath afternoon, November 20, at Percy Warner Park in the beautiful autumn woods. After eating their lunches they hiked up and down the autumn-colored hills, which were thickly carpeted with red, yellow, and brown leaves. As the sun set, they sat around a campfire and sang hymns and choruses. The club president offered prayer to close the worship period.

● 1955 is not just around the corner as far as the automobile industry is concerned; it has already arrived. Have you seen the new models on the campus? Mr. Walter Wilson and Mr. Voorhies have new Dodges. Dr. Schuler has a new Olds.

Ping Pong Tournament

A ping pong tournament is under way down at the Demonstration Building, and, as a result, playing is going on at all hours of the day.

The players have organized in groups of two as follows: Stella Rodriguez and Jerry Jones, Dorothy Cantrell and Douglas Henson, Elaine Culpepper and Hazel Davis, Sally Hoover and Melba Ice, Mary Kunau and Lois Miller, Horace Hudson and Kenneth Kendall. The winners so far are Jerry Jones, Elaine Culpepper, and Douglas Henson.

The procedure is that the one winning two out of three games plays the winner of the next set, the winners of each set playing until the finalist is decided.

Watch for further news about the tournament.

Our Chapel Hour

The series of chapel talks giving pointers on how to improve the school year has been appreciated by the academy students.

In one talk, Mrs. Tucker encouraged the students to be kind and courteous. She gave examples of how unkindness affects the lives of others.

Dr. Sandborn gave points on how to study. Sometimes a person tries to study while lounging in a comfortable chair. He has some interesting book with him and also a sandwich to munch on. Of course the "study hour" wouldn't be complete without the radio. Sounds ideal for dreaming!

The correct way to study, he pointed out, is to have proper lighting, to sit up straight in a chair, and to keep one's mind on his lessons.

In another chapel talk, Elder Ackerman gave pointers on how to read. One should not vocalize as he reads nor let his eyes wander over the page.

When asked what they thought of the chapel talks, students responded as follows:

Carol Hilgers: "If students would practice what they heard, I'm sure they'd all be faster readers and consequently get better grades."

Ross Clark: "My studies are easier when I study the way Dr. Sandborn prescribed."

Elaine Culpepper: "Mrs. Tucker's chapel talk gave me a clearer view of how to be more courteous. Dr. Sandborn's talk was an inspiration to all the students. I believe in his formula for studying."

Academics Report

On Doings

The Youth Problems class had their six weeks test last week, in which was the question, "What school stood out as having reformed the whole community?" The answer was the school in Avondale, Australia, but when Ceylon Wright came to this question, Avondale School did not come to her mind. Instead she answered, "Chestnut Hill, Kentucky."

In the Monday chapel period, the editor for the academy section in the annual was chosen, namely, Larry Wagner. Also Aubrey Thompson has recently been chosen as academy representative on the committee for the revision of the Student Handbook.

Floris Schoonard and Donald Cantrell have recently been patients in the Sanitarium, though they are now back with us. Now Jean Hollingsworth is ill in the hospital. Here's wishing her a speedy recovery.

What has been happening to Rodman Morris's peanuts? Seems that every time he brings a bag of them, somehow they just do the disappearing act. I wonder if Mildred Brooks or Ceylon Wright could help solve the mystery.

Girl of the Month

Beginning with this issue, a boy and a girl will be featured each month, one in each of the two papers a month. An article will describe the person, and the object is to guess the girl or boy of the month without looking at the name.

Our girl of the month for December is a dark-eyed brunette in her sophomore year, who has lived here on the campus with her mother and younger brother for the past three years. She graduated from the eighth grade here.

She is musically talented, sings in the college and academy choirs, and plays the organ and piano very well. Almost any time outside of school hours you will find her working at the switchboard.

This friendly, likable girl is a favorite with us all. Can you guess our Girl of the Month?

Horace Hudson

Horace Hudson, who claims North Carolina as his home state, has been at Madison for the past three years.

His hobby is, as you might guess, eating. Sports hold a special attraction for him, and if he ever has a free period, you will see him playing football, ping pong, or just any game. His special dislike is stuck-up people.

Horace is one of the class officers this year, doing a noteworthy job as sergeant-at-arms.

If all goes as he plans, he will be taking a course in X-ray and Lab after he graduates. Our best wishes to you in your life's work, Horace.
