Clubs to Organize

A major event of the first few weeks of school will be the organization of the clubs.

The twelve clubs, which will be organized at an early chapel period, will furnish students during the course of the year an opportunity to study more deeply into fields of their special interests and also to enjoy pleasant social contacts at meetings and informal gatherings held from time to time.

It will be possible for a student to join more than one club.

Following are the prospective clubs and their sponsors:

Nature: Mr. Zeigler
Agriculture: Mr. Stearns
Teachers of Tomorrow: Mrs. Simmons
Pre-nursing: Miss Vickers
Nursing: Mrs. Duran
Industrial Education: Mr. Keplinger
Future Business Leaders: Mr. Lowder, Mrs. Pepper
Micro-Gamma (X-ray and Laboratory): Mr. Thornton, Mr. McDonald
Junior Laymen's League: Mr. Sandborn
Lay Evangelism: Elder Lorenz
Camera: Mr. Morris
Married Students: Mr. Ackerman

Self-Supporting Workers Meet

The Annual Convention for Southern Self-supporting Missionary Workers is being held on the campus of Madison College October 6-9. At this time representatives from the units all over the Southland meet to give reports of their work and plan for the coming year. Elder Robert Pierson, president of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference, was the speaker at the opening meeting.

Looking Ahead

October 8-10: Self-supporting Workers' Convention
October 14-22: Religious Emphasis Week
October 27: King's Heralds Quartet
October 29: Lyceum program (Madian)

Registration Reveals Record Enrollment

Another year of opportunity is before the students and the faculty of Madison College. There is just one purpose we must keep before us: how we can better serve our fellowmen and how we can honor our Lord and Master in so doing. This is the work we invite our students to share with us. Madison College is better qualified to assist its students to meet their goals than ever before. We extend a hearty welcome to you.

Academy in Full Swing

Madison College Academy opened on September 20 with an enrollment of eighty-five students—24 freshmen, 15 sophomores, 29 juniors, and 17 seniors.

Mr. William H. Wilson is again principal, with the following corps of teachers to assist him: Mrs. Ackerman, music; Mrs. Bertram, art; Mr. Keplinger, mechanical drawing; Felix Lorenz, Jr., Bible and history; Mr. Lowder, mathematics; Mr. Morris, chemistry and geometry; Mrs. Pepper, typing; Mrs. Sandborn, English and home economics; Mr. Stearns, agriculture; Mrs. Simmons, youth problems. Mr. Wilson, the principal, teaches American history.

E. L. Minchen to Speak

The Religious Life Committee announces that Elder E. L. Minchen, recently from England, newly appointed member of the General Conference Missionary Volunteer Department, will be the guest speaker at the fall Religious Emphasis Week beginning October 14.

Dormitories and Apartments Overflowing

Madison College dormitories are groaning under the added weight of a large influx of new students. Housing for married students is filled to capacity and the Industrial Department has turned out en masse to quickly complete added housing units which are already reserved for the school year. Students are arriving by bus, train, plane, or car from as far east as Japan, north as Canada, south as

On behalf of the faculty I esteem it a pleasure to welcome all of you new students to Madison College. We hope that each of you will have an enjoyable and profitable school year. My prayer for you is that you may grow strong spiritually, mentally, and physically.

Cuba and other Latin American countries, and west as the coast of California.

The hint of autumn in the campus air seems to awaken enthusiasm, as is evidenced by the quickened steps and lively chatter on campus sidewalks.

Professors have added more textbooks to their orders and then "hibernated" to prepare for their larger classes. Classrooms are receiving final touches in preparation for the opening of school.

New faces are in evidence both in the student body and in the faculty. Especially noticeable is the younger version of the familiar face of Elder Felix Lorenz, Sr. His son, Professor Felix Lorenz, Jr., who will be teaching both in college and academy, will also be Missionary Volunteer sponsor for the year. Other new faces among the faculty and workers are those of Worth Lowder, Business Administration head; Mrs. Lowder, dean of Gotzian Home; Mr. James Simmons, student finance officer and sanitarium credit manager; Mrs. Marion S. Simmons, director of Elementary Education; Miss Barbara Jean Brauer, instructor in obstetrics; Mrs. Felix Lorenz, Jr., head nurse in pediatrics.

Japan sends Mr. Sun Yoru Che and Miss Reicko "Rachel" Yatani as her representatives in the student-body. From Germany comes Hertha Schramm to join her sister Gertrude.

Plans for religious activities are under way under the sponsorship of Elder Orris J. Mills, the church pastor, and Elder Felix Lorenz, head of the Bible Department.

Plans are in preparation for a combined church and college evangelistic campaign nearby.

The school year of '55-'56 promises to be the best yet at Madison College, Tennessee.

THE PERSONNEL OFFICE EXTENDS

A great big welcome to "you all."

A college maintains a Personnel Office to be of service to you. We do not profess to have all the answers, but we are at your service, at any time—be the problem large or small. Make use of this service provided by your College. Drop in to see us. Let's all work together to make the 1955-56 school term the best that Madison College has ever had and, of course, the best that you have ever experienced also.

Missionaries Visit Campus

Elder Roger W. Coon and his wife, missionaries from the British West African Union, spent a recent weekend at Madison College. Elder Coon showed pictures Friday night depicting life among the natives. On Sabbath morning he and Mrs. Coon appeared in costume, visiting the various departments during Sabbath school. At the Missionary Volunteer program Sabbath afternoon Elder Coon again presented the needs of the people in Africa and appealed especially to the young people to give themselves in service to God.

Elder Coon is in charge of the Voice of Prophecy Bible Correspondence School in West Africa. The Coons, who have been in Africa for three years, have been at home on furlough and are now returning to their work. Their home is at Ibadan, Nigeria, a city with a population of 650,000, and

New Campus Buildings

The two and three-bedroom pre-fabricated houses recently purchased from the Government at a very low cost are nearly ready for occupancy, and students will shortly be moving into these houses.

The houses have hardwood floors, contain baths complete with tubs and showers, have plenty of cabinet and closet space, and are electrically heated. The eight dwellings and one duplex are a substantial contribution to the housing shortage on the campus.

Help in the form of donations by friends of the institution and the low purchase price have made possible the bringing of these houses to the campus.

The buildings are located in the area to the south east of the new apartment for married students.

We are currently recuperating from what is commonly called "vacation daze." The instrumental trio—Professor and Mrs. Mitzelfelt, and your reporter—just returned from what might have been called a vacation if we hadn't been kept so busy. Our young 6½-month-old son who accompanied us saw to it that there was never a dull moment.

Our original destination was Pine Forest Academy near Meridian, Mississippi, where Professor Mitzelfelt assisted Mrs. R. L. Johnson in organizing her choir and gave vocal instruction to the individual choir members. Two evening programs were presented, one secular and one sacred, with special music also provided for the Sabbath morning services.

A sidelight of this trip included a visit to New Orleans, where old friends of the Mitzelfelts provided an opportunity for the group to present a sacred musical program in two small suburban churches.

Before we left New Orleans a visit to the old French quarter, a drive down Canal Street, a brief glimpse into the St. Louis Cathedral, and a walk through the square where Andrew Jackson sits astride a prancing horse were all in order. And, of course, no visit to New Orleans would be complete without crossing the Mississippi River by ferry. A cool breeze blowing across the water made it a delightful experience indeed.

Just a word about happenings in the Music Department last month inasmuch as our column failed to materialize amid the hectic preparations for the closing of the school year. The department was the scene of several parties—one a surprise birthday party for Professor Mitzelfelt planned by members of the band and choir. Another was in honor of the Mitzelfelts on their silver anniversary.

The third occasion was a reception held after Joyce Christensen's senior recital. Many of Joyce's friends gathered to wish her well as she was about to leave the campus to take up her responsibilities as piano and organ teacher at Maplewood Academy in Hutchinson, Minnesota.

Local evangelistic meetings bring calls for music students to lend their talents to add color to the services. Some who have responded are Robert Clark, Euline Borton, and your reporter.

With many students going home for the September vacation, the cancellation of choir and band rehearsals seemed warranted. Soon however the rehearsal room will again resound with glad strains of the choir and marching rhythms of the band. Enthusiasm runs high in our department as we face the new school year.

Mrs. Simmons to Attend Teacher Meeting

Mrs. Marion S. Simmons, director of elementary education, will be attending the Mid-Tennessee State College Meeting for Teacher Preparation to be held in Knoxville, in October.

Autumn's in the Air

Bright blue skies, crisp mornings, soft breezes, and a beginning flutter of falling leaves announce the arrival of October, and with it the opening days of college—the fall quarter is now a sincere reality.

Instructors are busily engaged in committee groups, seeking to have teaching and operation plans well in order and well-launched for a happy and successful term.

As Mrs. Zeigler works diligently over those long registry sheets of student-nurse classes, with scarcely a moment to spare for an inquiring reporter, perhaps she wishes she could return again to those relaxing vacation moments in the beautiful State Parks—with Mt. Mitchell, Fairy Stone, Hanging Rock, and the Smokies—a sustaining factor in the rush of life. But Time marches on, and we must make progress, too.

North Hall

North Hall's 11-7 shift was capably filled during vacation days by Betty Peters-Steinmuss, Class of '53. We are most happy to have you with us again, "Beazy".

Welcome to a New Instructor

Miss Barbara Jean Brauer, our new obstetrical supervisor and clinical instructor, comes to us from the 350-bed Margaret Hague Maternity Hospital in Jersey City, New Jersey, where she has been doing specialized graduate duty and study. Her home is in California, and she is a graduate of Pacific Union College and St. Helena Sanitarium School of Nursing. This peppy, smiling young lady has been diligently preparing for her forth-coming classes ('twasn't a little bird that told, just a myriad of little blue stencils rolling out of our secretary's typewriter). How nice to have her join our nursing staff.

Nursery and O. B.

It seems that changes are inevitable: Mrs. Geraldine Dickman, former Nursery supervisor, now proudly operates her own private little division in the form of wee son Dickman. We regret her absence, but appreciate her happiness.

Miss Myrtle Cox ably met the need temporarily as supervisor, but now, in quest of missionary experience and a desire for experience outside her graduate school, she, too, has departed—joining the Oneida Mountain Hospital, Oneida, Kentucky, at the termination of her vacation. Miss Cox received her Bachelor of Science degree this year along with senior nurses Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brown, Warren Butler, and Dorothy Aldrich.

State Boards

Speaking of knowledge, a quantity or lack of it, the seniors returned recently from Nashville with whirling minds, aching eyes and fingers, and "sit-itis" after a two-day session with State Board exams! A good inducement for post-relaxation was the annual traditional social on the evening following the last examination, at the home of the Director of Nurses, wing the last examination, at the home of the Director of Nurses, where the faculty gathered to encourage and rejoice with the students over the achievement and passing of this milestone in their careers! Mrs. Clapp's inviting lawn, the interesting home-travel movies, the jolly laughter, croquet, and delicious refreshments provided a splendid evening that passed almost before we realized it.

Small World

Miss Edith Munn, was recalled to Nursing Service duty during Mrs. Voorhies' vacation, as well as serving as occasional "floating supervisor." During her rounds she encountered Dr. Bowes, and per happenstance mentioned her recent vacation via TWA flight to the home of relatives. She stated, "I was enjoying myself in up-state New York." "I was too," replied Dr. Bowes. "I was in the heart of the Adirondack Mountains." "I was, too," said the doctor. "I was in Elizabethtown." "I was too! When were you there?" (Date furnished.) "I was, too. I drove up with my family for vacation." (Small world for two Madisonites away from home.)

Did You Know

LETA and BILL BRANDEMIHL, supervisors of General and O.R., respectively, have recently departed for duty at Porter Sanitarium in Denver, Colorado—closer to Bill's native home. Joining the same hospital, since her recent graduation, is Dorothy Aldrich; her husband, John (nursing class president, '54), plans to enter the nearby Veterans' Hospital for duty.

MRS. GISH AND MRS. THOMSON, clinical instructors, took a little jaunt to visit the Laurelbrook Sanitarium; they had an enjoyable visit, but returned with a slightly new nursing angle—knowing "what not to do" for auto ailments. Aha.

THE NEW SOPHOMORE A's have lost four classmates and gained two new ones: Emmitt Webster has entered pre-med at Berrien Springs, Michigan; Stanley Rudisalle has some important plans afoot; Charlie Culbertson has departed for work in Indiana; and Mrs. Barbara Epps has answered the urgent request for more time in home arts. Mrs. Laura Mae Slattery enters from Paradise Valley Sanitarium, and Mrs. Opal Saulsbury is transferring from St. Helena Sanitarium; both nurses are Californians—welcome to friendly Tennessee!

Efficient Teachers Man Elementary School

The Madison College Elementary School opened its doors on a new school year on Tuesday, Sept. 6. This school, with its grades 1-8, is operated by three institutions, the Madison College Seventh-day Adventist Church, the Madison College institution, and the Old Hickory Boulevard Seventh-day Adventist Church, of Madison.

Elder Charles G. Edwards, pastor of the Boulevard Church and vice chairman of the School Board, states that the school has an enrollment of 122 and employs five teachers.

The principal of the school is Mr. A. Charles Tetz, who has just graduated from Madison College with a B.S. Degree and a major in Education. Mr. Tetz plans to make teaching his life work and is doing a strong job of administering this school in this, his first year of teaching. Mr. Tetz teaches grades 7-8.

The teacher for grades 5-6 in the school is Mr. Edward Swanson. Mr. Swanson took his schooling at Atlantic Union College, with emphasis on teacher training, and he holds a lifetime teaching certificate. This is Mr. Swanson's second year in teaching at this school, and he is getting well under way with his fine work. Mr. Swanson taught five years in North Carolina, Georgia, and Southern New England before coming here.

Miss Dorothy Mathews, teacher of Grades 3 and 4, might well be called the dean of teachers in the Madison Elementary School, as far as teaching experience is concerned. Miss Mathews has taught for eighteen years, eight years in the Georgia-Cumberland Conference and ten years here at Madison College. She holds a B.S. Degree from Madison College. She is always greatly beloved by both students and parents, and she is again doing an outstanding job in her work.

Last year, because the lower grades were so crowded, it was felt necessary to hire separate teachers for the first and second grades. Mrs. Leon Gray was secured as the teacher of the second grade. The school is most fortunate in securing her services. Mrs. Gray taught in North Carolina one year and has taught at this school two previous years. Her teaching work has always been highly regarded, and the school can well expect the second grade to be well taken care of.

The teacher of the first grade in the Madison school is Mrs. Teddric Mohr, wife of the Conference Educational and M. V. Secretary. Mrs. Mohr has had nine years of teaching experience, the last two years being here at Madison College. She is exceedingly skilled in dealing with young students and has done highly satisfactory work here.

The School Board has every reason to believe that it has a very fine staff of teachers.

College Welcomes New Pastor

The College family welcome into their midst their new pastor and his family—Elder and Mrs. Oris J. Mills, Linda Jo, 8, and Philip, 5. Elder Mills and family have come to the Madison College Church from Kokomo, Indiana, where he was pastor of the Kokomo Church and other churches in that district.

Prior to that he served in the Hillsdale, Michigan, area, where he started radio broadcasts in which he and his wife and his children participated. His experience in the radio-broadcasting work, along with his missionary and evangelistic campaigns, resulted in a doubling of the membership of the churches in his area.

On going to Kokomo, Indiana, Elder Mills extended his radio program to include a Family Worship hour, a program designed to inspire family worship by example. It was an informal broadcasting of the Mills family worship hour in which Elder Mills, Mrs. Mills, and their two children sang hymns, repeated memory verses, prayed, and recited stories, just as would take place in the average Christian home.

Elder Mills was born in Minnesota, and Mrs. Mills, the former Mildred Bush, was born in Watseka, Illinois. Elder Mills is a graduate of the University of Michigan. While there he became acquainted with Elder G. E. Vandemann, who was also taking work at the time. Through Elder Vandemann's influence he became interested in Seventh-day Adventists and in Emmanuel Missionary College, where he later spent a year in special study of Bible prophecy, doctrines, and archaeology. He also spent a year at the Theological Seminary at Takoma Park, Washington, D. C.

The students' acquaintance with Elder Mills and family began last spring, when he conducted the Week of Prayer at the College. His interest in young people and their problems makes the students look forward with much pleasure to his being connected with the College church.

Wedding Bells

Wedding bells have rung for a number of nurses during the summer.

August 28 Miss Violet Stewart, former Clinical Co-ordinator, became the bride of Mr. Harold Lang. Their home is now in Van Nuys, California.

August 31 Miss Lucia Leon, pediatrics supervisor, was married to Mr. Francisco Zegarra R., a recent Madison College student. Their destination? Washington, D. C.

The marriage of Miss Ina Bergman and Glynn Haugen was solemnized on September 4. Mr. Haugen returns to his nursing duties and classwork, while Mrs. Haugen continues in her new position as office nurse for Dr. James Schuler.

Junior B nurse Grace Mizerski became the bride of Don MacIntosh, also a student nurse, in a lovely ceremony at the home of Elder and Mrs. Norman Clapp on the evening of September 7.

Junior B nurse La Veta Herber was married to Bill Graves, medical technology student, on September 22, at Shattuck, Oklahoma.

Department Heads Attend Convention

Dean Sandborn and family, Harold Keplinger and family, James Stearns, Worth Lowder, and Mrs. Edna Pepper have recently returned from the Triennial Convention of Industrial Arts Teachers and of Commercial and Secretarial Teachers, held at Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Massachusetts.

The two families combined their vacation with the trip to Massachusetts visiting friends and relatives en route.

Madison College at Campmeeting

Madison College received its share of the blessings of the recent camp meeting held August 4-14 on the grounds of Highland Academy, near Portland, Tennessee, and also did its share in contributing speakers, music, and other features in the ten-day program.

As usual this year the camp meeting season found many from the campus staying full time on the camp grounds and many more attending part of the meetings.

Every afternoon and evening carloads and truckloads of workers and students left the campus for the meetings.

An outstanding contribution of Madison Sanitarium and Hospital was the health service which was maintained during the entire ten days by doctors and nurses. Any time of the day or night a doctor or a nurse was available for consultation or help.

On the opening Friday evening the Criterion Quartet from Madison doubled with the Faith for Today quartet. Throughout the week Linda Lee Pitman helped with her musical talent, now at the organ in the main tent, now at the piano in the chapel or tent. Her accordion added a touch of enthusiasm to the Campfire Hour, which, according to some juniors, was the best part of the whole camp meeting.

Wednesday was a high day on the camp ground—it was Madison College Day.

At 2:30 the "March Tempo" of the band attracted everyone to the big tent, where the large audience was delighted by the songs of the ladies' trio—JoAnn Gibbons, Pat Silver, and Euline Borton—and the beautiful presentation of "The Holy City" by Billy Burks with his accordion.

The A Capella Choir was heard on several occasions during the afternoon filling the tent with "a bit of music from heaven."

Several members of the faculty were speakers that afternoon. Then two representative students—Althea Turnbull and Ernest Plata-spoke on "What Madison Means to Me." Both of them expressed themselves as looking forward to active self-supporting missionary work in the soils of Canada and South America.

Madison Foods and Bakery were represented at the Madison College booth. All remember the delicious burgers available there. Church members throughout the conference took this opportunity to stock up on Madison Foods, and large quantities were sold.

Other long-to-be-remembered features of the camp meeting were the programs Youth Evangelism, Laymen on the March, Dorcas Welfare, S.M.C., the sermons by Elders L. K. Dickson and M. L. Nelson, and the Voice of Prophecy and the Faith for Today groups, all of which gave those in attendance a greater desire to give themselves in service in preparation for the coming of the Lord.

MRS. JORGENSEN has been with Surgical Wing as ward secretary for almost a year now, and has proved herself quite a jewel. She courteously, calmly, and congenially stems the torrent of phone, visitor, and institutional inquiry to proper channels, and, as well, keeps current floor records in order and readiness for busy floor-staff personnel. Her floral artistry adds the finishing touch that counts!

MISS VICKERS, NURSING ARTS instructor, continues to gain all-round nursing experience; she ably served in the treatment division of Psychiatry Service during the vacation absence of Mrs. Mildred Johnson, R.N. Evenings we found her at the park, playing croquet with the pre-nurses, engaging in almost any other interesting pastime to provide pleasant hours for her friends and students.

WARREN BUTLER AND HIS WIFE, the former Violet Ritchie (Sanitarium Bible instructor and graduate attendant nurse), are beginning missionary service in the dark counties of Kentucky—a noble pioneer work calling for much courage and great faith.

THESE NEW GRADUATES are on the enrollment list for the coming October anesthesiology classes: Mr. Emmett Pierce, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Brown, and Betty Jo Allred.

NURSES JULIA GROW, LORINE LUCAS, NOBLE RUSSELL, MAXINE PAGE, AND NELLIE GREEN, Pediatrics affiliates, have returned from Cincinnati in time to register for the fall quarter. Going to Cincinnati for fall affiliation are Carol Rudisalle, Bernice Gober, Frances Woolbright, Virginia Bailey, Hilda Schneider, Ruby Alder, and Pauline Williams.

the largest negro city in the world.

Elder Coon is the son of Miles Roy Coon, who is associated with the College as manager of the laundry here.

Elder Conrad Hyde, principal of the Bugema Missionary College, in West Africa, spent Wednesday, September 14, at the College, speaking at the mid-week prayer meeting that evening.

Bugema Missionary College, an advanced training school for native teachers and evangelists, takes the natives after they have finished the other schools or after they have been out in evangelistic work and gives them further training.

This is the school with which Mr. and Mrs. Warren Oakes, former Madison teachers, are connected.

Elder Hyde's family are in their native country, England, where they are spending their furlough, while Elder Hyde spends six months in this country, three months at the Seminary and three months working with evangelists in various parts of the United States.

New Pre-School Building in Use

The beginning of the school year finds the pre-school in its newly-completed quarters. This addition to the educational program at Madison was made possible by gifts from friends and a grant from the Kellogg Foundation.

Mrs. K. P. McDonald, assisted by Mrs. Grebe and Mrs. Wilson, have charge of the twenty children in attendance daily.

Those who have not visited the new pre-school building are invited to do so.

Besides offering more commodious quarters for the children, moving to the new building releases much-needed space in the Demonstration Building for the elementary school.

Students Attending Workshop

Delegates to the Fifth Annual Workshop left Monday afternoon for Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Massachusetts, where the workshop is being held this year.

The purpose of the Workshop, which is held annually at one of the Seventh-day Adventist senior colleges, is to discuss problems of interest to Student Associations and school publications.

Madison's delegation consists of William Wilson, sponsor of the Associated Students of Madison College; Floyd McDaniel, president of the Student Association; Joe Schnell, Religious Activities representative; Don Wilson, editor of the MADISONIAN; Mary Doneskey, Secretary of Student Association.

The next issue of the MADISONIAN will give a full account of the convention.
