Crook, Detamore, Mills, Beckner Elected

Student Association Is Active

The Student-Teacher Council, the official body of the Associated Students of Madison College, is already off to a good start in planning and directing activities for the school year.

Mr. Leslie Morris, head of the Chemistry Department, has been chosen as faculty sponsor of the Council.

At the last meeting sixteen names were chosen to be submitted to the faculty for the approval of seven to compose Madison College's quota for the publication Who's Who Among American Universities and Colleges.

Members were also chosen for the student government and the social committees.

The Student-Teacher Council is made up of the officers and faculty sponsors of the various clubs and organizations on the campus. Visitors are invited to attend all the meetings, although they cannot vote.

Officers of the Council for the year 1956-57 are the following: Bill Graves, president; Harry Mayden, vice president; Maellene Haviland, secretary-treasurer; Harry Bowden, parliamentarian.

A.A.U.W. Entertains Foreign Students

Sponsored by the American Association of University Women, a get-together party was held on November 8 in the Belmont Methodist Church for all the foreign students from colleges and universities in the Nashville area.

The occasion was the celebration of the anniversary of the birthday of the United Nations. Representing Madison College were the following:

Puerto Rico: Damaris Rivera, Tony Rivera, Margaret Casillas, Emilia Miró, Carmen García and Mr. and Mrs. Jesús Bermudez.

Canada: David, Davina, and Virginia Warner, Esther Edmunsen, Delphia Ladner, Allan Knelser, John Dovich.

Germany: Petra Sukau, Gertrud Schramm.

Korea: Melvin Kim.

Japan: Rachel Yatani, Jiroh Tsutsumi.

Pakistan: Mrs. Alexander.

All four college classes elected their officers in the class organizations held on Monday, November 5. Class sponsors were selected by the faculty from three names submitted by each class. This method was used to equalize teachers' extra-curricular loads.

Stewart Crook

Stewart Crook, music major from Tennessee, was elected president of the senior class. Bill Howard, nursing major from Colorado, is vice president. Other officers are as follow: secretary, Mabyline Holloway, nursing major from Colorado; treasurer, Harry Mayden, biology major from Canada; pastor, Elder R. E. Stewart, business major from the campus; parliamentarian, JoAnn Gibbons, nursing major from Alabama.

The junior officers are Otis Detamore, president; Janyce Jansen, Georgia, vice president; Ann Rabun, Oklahoma, secretary; Mary Faye Draughon, Alabama, treasurer; Robert Slatery, Minnesota, pastor; Terry Brown, Tennessee, sergeant-at-arms.

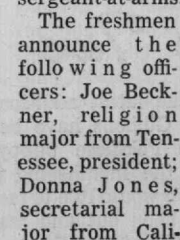

Otis Detamore

Hubert Mills

Hubert Mills, from Kentucky, was elected to head the sophomore class. Shirley Weesner, from Indiana, is vice president; Mary Peek, from Tennessee, secretary; Maureen Drake, from Texas, treasurer; Clyde Holland, from Maryland, pastor; and Charles Myers, from Arkansas, sergeant-at-arms.

Joe Beckner

The freshmen announce the following officers: Joe Beckner, religion major from Tennessee, president; Donna Jones, secretarial major from California, vice president; Barbara Busch, nursing major from Tennessee, secretary; Faye Champion, nursing major from Florida, treasurer; Joe Wedel, from Tennessee, class pastor; Bobby Story, Tennessee, sergeant-at-arms.

The faculty sponsors chosen by the classes are the following: seniors, Mr. and Mrs. Francis Cossentine; juniors, Mrs. Wilma Gill; sophomores, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Houck; freshmen, Mrs. Marion Simmons.

Depts Entertain

"We had a wonderful time!" was the unanimous verdict of Madison College students after the departmental progressive parties held on the evening of November 3.

Teachers from the various departments met in seven different places, where they entertained groups of students with games, quizzes, magic tricks, and pictures.

Refreshments were served to each group at the first place of entertainment.

Places where the students were entertained were the Nursing Arts classroom, library faculty room, auto mechanics room, music room, home economics room, biology room, and the agriculture classroom.

Typists Are Missionary Minded

Typing children's songs for Mrs. Theo Williams to take to the mission field is the latest missionary project of the college and academy typewriting classes. In fact, these classes have been doing missionary work for some time. They are continually doing typing for Elder Mills, church pastor.

Group Reports Goodwill Trip

A carload from the college—Mrs. Simmons, Mrs. Moon, Norma Jean Googe, Martha Ann Norris, Richard Kunau, and Tony Rivera—headed toward Fletcher Academy, North Carolina, 350 miles distant, early on the morning of November 2 for a weekend good-will visit.

The group all took part in the various Sabbath services. Mrs. Simmons occupied the desk at the eleven o'clock church service. At the M. V. meeting each member of the group told about the courses offered college students at Madison. On Saturday evening Mrs. Simmons and Mrs. Moon gave a musical program which was well received. Mrs. Dorothy Boggs was the accompanist.

Mr. and Mrs. Kent Griffin entertained the group at a buffet luncheon Saturday evening before the program. Because of their generosity and that of Miss Covey, the matron, the group was supplied with apples, popcorn, cake, et cetera, for the return trip to the college.

On the way home the group drove by Pisgah Academy, Little Creek School, and the Simmons' farm. A delicious dinner was served the group at Little Creek and the dessert was added on the farm by Mr. Simmons' sister.

Fletcher Academy, nearly 50 years old, has an enrollment of 120 students. Both this school and Little Creek are self-supporting institutions. The Madison group were impressed with the spirit of hospitality and warmth, as well as proper decorum, that prevailed at both of these places.

"I Will Lift Up Mine Eyes..."

A terrible awakening is coming to a great many people in the near future.

Millions whose chief concern has been to make money, to pile up a comfortable bank balance, to fill their leisure hours with foolish and costly pleasures, drinking, dancing, gambling, and the like, will soon find themselves face to face with new and stern realities.

For now the days of peace are nearly over. Soon we expect to see again blazoned across the newspapers in headlines an inch tall, that terrifying word WAR!

Tragic indeed is the outlook. Only the uplook affords the slightest relief.

There is comfort, however, in the promises of God. It is reassuring to remember that His hand is on the helm of world affairs, that He is working out his plan and doing all things well. As Daniel said, after seeing in vision the course of history from Babylon to the end of time: "He knoweth what is in the darkness, and the light dwelleth with Him." Dan. 2: 22.

As we face the darkening future with all its appalling perils and perplexities to all we value in life, let us renew our faith in the Lord of Hosts, trusting that He in His loving providence will care for His own and shelter them from every evil.

Two by Two

Have you seen the latest addition to our family? Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibbons have become the proud owners of a little Pekinese puppy named Ching.

Let's get behind the Ingathering program. Not to hide, but to push! We would like to mention our willing workers who have been out and made a good start toward their goal: They include Mrs. Margaret Dixon, Cecil Hopps, Mr. and Mrs. Clinton Johnson, Mr. and Mrs. Brenton Bullock, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Watts, Mrs. Leonard Drebert, Woodrow Ek, Mr. and Mrs. Bob Hale, Van Jackson, Mrs. Gerald Turnbull, and Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibbons.

Everett Saulsbury was on the lookout for Bible study interests on Field Day. He made several interesting contacts.

How do you like this cold spell we're having? The boys are all rushing to buy anti freeze to protect their cars. Mrs. Aaron Dennis declared she would drink a quart herself. She just can't get her California blood used to this climate.

At last the students living in the government housing area are happy. Their road is perfect since the caterpillar and loads of gravel did their work. Just hope they won't be disappointed when the rain comes and washes it all away. Anyway they will enjoy it while it lasts.

Every now and then it looks as if winter is really here. We've even had some snow flurries. Then in a few days we think it's summertime. Well, that's Tennessee.

Since the young men so tearfully and sympathetically held a funeral for the young women and buried them, we girls could not remain inactive. Did you see the group of ghosts flapping around the campus last Thursday night? We hope you weren't alarmed, for it was only the girls who had risen to fight the MADISONIAN campaign, which they will soon win.

Glad all you girls have your "real teeth," because the taffy pull that was conducted by Lois Sharpe would have gotten rid of the other kind for you. Pretty sticky stuff.

Sorry that Vero Wright contracted a cold on the recent Ingathering night. We know it won't discourage her, though.

Did you hear about the young lady who got her toes mashed in the chapel seat the other night in worship? Sylvia Burk seems to know all about the accident.

Glad to see Patsy Wilson around. She's one of the six girls who are affiliating in "Cinci" at the Children's Hospital. Lillian Azevedo and Pat Gaulding are the two from Williams Hall who are there.

What about the Club dues, girls? Remember, "No mon, no fun." So better pay.

Janyce Jansen and Sheila Moore made a trip home over a recent weekend.

If any of you campus mothers who read this article would like a baby sitter, just get in touch with Donna Guier and Marilyn Campbell. They have just completed the Red Cross mother and baby course, and believe me, they are well qualified.

If anyone has any moving or heavy work to be done, just get in touch with "Mighty Mouse" Haviland, and she will move it for you.

Wasiota Whispers

The young ladies of Williams Hall and Gotzian Home were serenaded one evening by the dashing young men of the campus. The golden tones brought forth from the brass section of their musical group were produced by Stewart Crook, Dean Wike, Harold Iles, and David Hernandez.

One young man who didn't join the serenaders will do so next time. Seems as though he received a cold shoulder along with the short-sheeting of his bed. How about it, Mr. C. L. Richardson?

The boys have a new (almost) piano for their parlor. Due to circumstances beyond Dean Williams' control (but not beyond his monitors', since they are doing the painting), there will be a slight delay of one week in the opening of the parlor in Wasiota Hall.

Plans are being laid by members of the Wasiota Club for presenting one of the most outstanding and entertaining talent programs ever presented on our campus. So take note, and watch for it.

A good name for one of our students would be Albert Hurt-himself-again Parker. Think maybe he's trying to set a record, if he hasn't already. His total number of injuries thus far—12.

Be careful, everyone, and so long till next time.

FLASH: A news bulletin has just arrived in our news room reporting a collision between our distinguished editor from Hot Springs, Arkansas, and some foreign object of tremendous power. The exact details of the collision are still unknown to our office but the rumors are that he will have some repair work done on his broken jaw sometime Monday Nov. 19. We surely hope our editor is not trying to run Albert competition. Cheer up, Dean, you'll soon be back in circulation. Better luck next time.

Students Launch Sub Campaign

THE MADISONIAN

The MADISONIAN campaign, a contest between the Bucks and the Does, started off with a bang at chapel on Wednesday, October 31.

The Does (girls' side) presented the first part of the chapel program, in which they depicted a court scene. Phil Day and Bob Sellman, leaders of the Bucks (boys' side) were on trial for bragging that they were going to win the campaign this year and that the Does were going to lose. Janyce Jansen, Rachel Ramsey, and Ann Luck, leaders of the Does, were the witnesses. The jury brought back the verdict, "Girls will win!" The Does ended their part of the program by singing their campaign song, "We're Going to Win!"

The enthusiasm of the Bucks could be exceeded only by their originality. The curtains were drawn open upon a scene in a backwoods mountain home. The mailman had just arrived with a letter from their dear Cousin Clay at Madison College asking them for a subscription to the MADISONIAN.

The mailman (Dean Wike) delivers a campaign letter to "Grandpappy" Hatfield (Elmo Wilkes) from Cousin Clay at Madison College. Seated around the cabin are the Hatfield boys, Paul Nettland, John Mac Randall, Don Cantrell, Jan Rushing, Harold Taylor, and Bob Williams. The sons lying on the floor are Dwayne Woodson and Dennie Randall. "Ma" Hatfield (Richard Kunau), at the washtub, gives a realistic touch to the scene. She is the only one doing any work.

Jan Rushing, as Clem Hatfield, characterized the spirit of the campaign as he enthusiastically read the letter and sparked the fellows off to a great start.

Since the beginning, the Bucks and Does have looked anxiously to the sky to see if their flag is flying.

A practical array of prizes is being offered to the persons who work the hardest for subs. A fifty-dollar U.S. Savings Bond is offered to the lady and gentleman who have the highest number of subs, and two separate twenty-five dollar bonds go to the hardest working dormitory club and academy fellows or girls, respectively.

The minimum number of subs required for a $50 bond is 30.

STARCH and STRIPES

Tuesday, November 6, was an unforgettable day for those who took the State Board Examination last September. Not one of them will soon forget the thrill of hearing Mrs. Clapp or a fellow classmate ask over the telephone, "Is this Miss (or Mr.) ..... R.N., speaking?" Then came the good news that he or she had passed the examination and was now qualified to practice as a registered nurse. As friends we cannot help sharing their joy, and to each one we wish to say, "Congratulations!"

There seems to be a growing interest in the Sophomore, Junior and Senior Seminars, which were newly instituted this quarter, and are held once each week, under the guidance of Mrs. Clapp. They are conducted as open forums, and each student is free to express himself. Not only do they provide opportunities for us to "get things off our chests," but it is hoped they will be a means for accomplishing something of a constructive nature, as well.

Shirley Weesner has dreamed up a new way to chart a Sippy Diet. In the Remarks column recently she charted, "Sipped well." After all, the patient couldn't eat it, could he?

The girls affiliating at Children's Hospital were all able to get the weekend off for a visit to Madison the last of October. It was nice having you back on the campus again for a few days, girls.

Typists Are Missionary Minded

One year they did some work on a book for the General Conference Educational Department. Last year they almost completed a compilation of "love stories" written for the Youth's Instructor over the years by Josephine Cunningham Edwards. This project they have practically finished now.

A.S.M.C. Active

At the last meeting they elected JoAnn Gibbons business manager of the school yearbook, the Cumberland Echoes. Also a committee of three was chosen to report to the school paper activities of the student association. There was a brief discussion of plans for an A.S.M.C. benefit program.

Snoopy . . . . .

Here's your old friend Snoopy scribbling a line to tell you a few happenings on and around the campus.

On Halloween night some scary and spooky things were going on in Gotzian Home and Williams Hall.

After checking rooms in Gotzian, Mrs. Alexander discovered that three of her little darlings were among the missing. After being the objects of extensive searching by Mr. Alexander and the night watchman, the culprits were found in a far dark corner of the attic telling (of all things!) ghost stories.

In Williams Hall, the same night around midnight, some weird hair-raising music and footsteps were heard coming from the attic. A little bird told me that Alyce Williams, Patsy Neely, and Grace Grove know a lot more about that matter than they let on.

We have an added attraction to the campus—"Madame La Dean Wike," fortune-teller. Since predicting that a certain individual (whose name I decline to give) would be confined to the P. and A. lab for the next ten years, I sincerely hope that his predictions are false.

Since the MADISONIAN campaign opened, school spirit has been shown in many different ways—dummies, stunts in the dining room, and everything, even to a grave yard in front of Williams Hall. I, for one, am glad to see so much school spirit, with such good feelings one side for the other, surge through the student body.

The other day I thought I was dreaming. No! It can't be! But wait! Yes, it's true. Mrs. Socol,

T.O.T. Get Underway

Future teachers at Madison met in the pre-school building for an hour of business, fun, and refreshments on Saturday evening, November 10.

It was voted to join the Future Teachers of America, a national organization. Plans are already being laid to attend the state meeting, which will be held in the spring at Middle Tennessee State Teachers' College in Murfreesboro.

After the business of the evening and the reading of the pledge, refreshments were in order for the 20 present. Thanks go to Mrs. Mayden, Mrs. Bowes, Mrs. Simmons, and Rachel Ramsey for providing orange juice, cookies, popcorn, and mints.

JoAnn Gibbons, Shirley Burk, Donna Guier, and Janyce Jansen were jumping rope on the porch of Williams Hall with little Judy and another small girl. I have always been under the impression that people who are going through their "second childhood" are much older!

Everyone seemed to enjoy the refreshments served at the progressive parties, especially C. L. Richardson. When he left the Nutrition Lab, he had three sandwiches tucked away. I don't blame him after eating some of Mrs. Lorenz's fresh home-made bread.

Tony Rivera should be ashamed of himself, the way he talked to Doris Powell, after she called him up in the middle of the night to wish him "Happy Birthday."

Since our kind editor is after me for this column, I'd better say good by for now.

Elementary Education News

The Director of Elementary Teacher Education reports visits to the Ridgetop, Tullahoma, and Boulevard church schools. She states that Miss Carol Burchard is doing a fine piece of work at the newly opened school in Tullahoma. Mr. Lyle Gray is at Ridgetop, and Mrs. Lyle Gray, Mrs. Rosel, and Mrs. Mohr are at the Boulevard School. All teachers have had some elementary teacher training at Madison College.

Mrs. Simmons has attended several departmental conventions. At the recent Southern Union convention held near Atlanta, Georgia, she saw Lorin Mixon, a 1956 elementary education graduate, now teaching the church school in Ocala, Florida. She also represented Madison College at meetings of the Association for Student Teachers and the Middle Tennessee State Teachers' Convention.

If you don't know what a mural is, or how to make one, just ask Maellene Haviland, Bob Hale, or any member of the Social Studies class. Incidentally you might drop by Room 203 in the Demonstration Building, to see their handiwork.

Old Glory proudly floats over the Demonstration Building, thanks to Mr. Barney, the elementary school principal.

Save the evening of November 24 for the Home and School Festival. You'll not want to miss it! Mrs. Bowes, Home and School leader, and her committee are working to make this a worthwhile project.

The Editor Speaks

The MADISONIAN campaign is on again, and the enthusiasm is greater than ever before.

The school paper needs the support of every student, if a good paper is to be published and appreciated. It is the voice of the school, and is the only representative of the many activities engaged in by the student body to those only barely acquainted with the school. If a good representation is to be achieved this underlying support is needed to put out a paper that can do it.

Remember, your part in this campaign is to get those subs in! Come on! Let's get in the race!

—ASMC—

Reward for Hard Workers

The MADISONIAN has offered a weekend jaunt to high school students getting five subs or more.

The job will be to Dr. Pitman's cabin in Altamont during the weekend of Thanksgiving vacation. Among the several activities planned are hiking, a weiner roast, camp-fire stories, and lots of fun in general.

The staff urges everyone to try hard for the trip. "The more the merrier," they say.

Paul Revere Rides Again

"The juniors are coming!" was the mid-day cry of Paul Revere (Jack Wood), who came galloping into chapel on his faithful horse (Jerry Williams and Gene Fillman) November 7 at the time of Senior Presentation.

George Washington (Ross Clark) stood ready to answer the call for armed forces with the Senior Class of '57 to back him up against these mighty juniors.

Rhea Harvey, the drummer boy, and Pat Goodman, playing her clarinet, led the troops up the aisle, marching to "Yankee Doodle Dandy."

Washington then introduced his officers in charge: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Wilson, sponsor; Jon Mac Randall, president; Linda Pitman, vice-president; Janet Harper, secretary; Bob Devlin, treasurer; Billy Sandborn, pastor; and Don Meister, sergeant-at-arms.

After the introduction of these fearful generals, the "juniors" were forced to surrender, and came running in waving the white flag of truce.

—ASMC—

Choir Elects Officers

Officers were elected for the academy choir on October 1. Dorothy Cantrell was chosen president, Lois Gant, publicity secretary, and Bob Devlin, business manager. Others appointed to positions were Douglas Kendall, assistant director, and Carol Hilgers, pianist and librarian.

Because of such a large turnout for the first rehearsal, auditions were given to all members. The choir is now reduced to fifty.

A joint Christmas program with the college choir is being planned, and all the members are looking forward to it with great enthusiasm.

—ASMC—

Girls' Club Sponsors Party

The village girls' club sponsored a "tacky" party at the Montague Fire Hall on October 31.

Bob (Roberta) Devlin and Donald Moore came dressed as girls, and Jon Mac Randall, Jerry Williams, and Rhea Harvey came as "Tennessee Hillbillies."

The games "Musical Chairs," "Jacob and Rachel," and "Last Couple Out," were played.

Pumpkin pie, hot chocolate, and sandwiches were quickly eaten and the party was over, except for those who stayed and cleaned up the mess left behind.

Meet the Seniors

Ronald Bottsford

To Dr. and Mrs. Elmer Bottsford, a blond-haired, blue-eyed boy was born on August 25, 1938, who was named Ronald Charles.

Ronald has had a very interesting life in the mission fields in different parts of South America. There he learned the Spanish and Portuguese languages and had many interesting experiences.

After returning to the States, he took his junior year at Auburn Academy in Washington and then came to Madison, where his father is now practicing medicine.

Ronnie likes volley ball and croquet, and his favorite food is spaghetti.

After he finishes his pre-med, he plans to take the medical course at the College of Medical Evangelists in Loma Linda, California.

Harrie Brown

In Chattanooga, Tennessee, on June 30, 1938, a baby girl was born, with brown eyes and brown hair, to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Brown.

Harrie and her older brother lived with their parents at Collegedale, Tennessee, until she was four years old. They then moved to Birmingham, Alabama, where she increased in knowledge and stature to the age of 18, and to the height of five feet, eight inches.

Harrie's favorite sports are swimming, tennis, and ice-skating, and she claims banana splits for her favorite food.

After graduation she plans to take nursing. We wish her much success and happiness in her life's work.

Junior Class Chiefs Presented

Nothing's on fire! Nothing except the Junior Class, that is.

Fire engines and sirens were their unique way of presenting their newly organized class on Friday morning, November 1.

The classes were interrupted by the blowing siren and ran out to see what was happening. The many boys on the fire squad found their way out of class to man their posts, but the sight in front of the Demonstration Building held them back.

There on the fire truck stood the juniors wearing black and white and holding posters with their officers revealed on them. The chiefs, wearing fire helmets, were Dwayne Woodson, president; Juanita Schwarz, vice-president; Myrna Moore, secretary; Dennie Randall, treasurer; Larry Kelly, pastor; and Harold Taylor, sergeant-at-arms. Chosen for sponsors were Mr. and Mrs. Keplinger.

"The spirit of rivalry between the juniors and seniors should promote an interesting school year," said President Woodson.

Party Line

Hello, this is me again!

★ Rock 'n' roll shoes are the fad with the girls this year, but there's one complaint—"Oh, my aching feet." Just ask Linda Pitman.

★ Harold Taylor has been trying his luck at climbing "unsupported ladders." After he reached dizzy heights of 18 feet, his skill failed him, and he ended up on the ground with minor injuries.

★ The act of falling seems to be contagious. The tree and Albert Parker took a tumble for the worse.

★ I hear Jackie Anderson has been receiving some very interesting phone calls from some mysterious beau at Wasiota Hall. Who is responsible? We'd like to know.

★ Everyone in Gotzian Home was played a "Goodnite Lullaby" by Janet Harper and Pat Goodman. All the people who try to go to bed early please take notice!

★ Linda Pitman has picked up the bad habit of taking strangers home with her. Don't be alarmed—it's just a gray kitten without a name.

★ Two of our students are in the hospital, Hazel Davis and Peggy Hoover. We hope they won't stay long and will soon return to classes again.

★ Elder Lorenz told his English class that he wasn't as young as he used to be. He came to this conclusion after Jackie and Josephine Anderson beat him in a race to get to class.

★ The sophomores have organized their class this year. They have chosen Clyde McCulley, president; Jo Ann Schuler, vice-president; Zoe Cruzen, secretary-treasurer; Gerald Kelly, pastor; and David Clark, sergeant-at-arms.
