Music Groups Present "Christmas Vesper"

The Madison College Choir and Academy Choir presented "The Christmas Vesper" on Friday evening, December 14, 1956.

As a prelude to the program, Mrs. Dorothy Moon played the second movement from Brahms' Violin Concerto assisted by Karl McDonald. Members of the congregation and choir all joined in singing the processional hymn, "O Come, All Ye Faithful." Following the invocation by Elder O. J. Mills, the college choir sang three numbers: "With a Voice of Singing", "What Can This Mean?", and "Jesus Born in Bethlehem."

A violin ensemble, including Mrs. Dorothy Moon, Mrs. Elizabeth Frank, Mrs. Edna Thornton, and Felix A. Lorenz, Jr., played the Andante movement from Beethoven's First Symphony.

"Sweet Little Jesus Boy" was the title of Eulene Borton's solo, after which the congregation participated in singing, "O Little Town of Bethlehem." As the offering was being received, Mrs. Moon played "Prayer" by Schubert.

Stewart Crook then directed the Academy Choir in singing two familiar carols: "God Rest You Merry, Gentlemen," and "Away in a Manger." Accompanist for the Academy Choir was Carol Hilgers.

Anne Davidson then sang "Christmas Candle" by Warren.

The College Choir, directed by Professor F. R. Cossentine, then sang "The Song Of Christmas," which is the story of Christmas as told in songs, carols, and Biblical verses, as arranged by Roy Ringwald. The narrator for this number was Felix A. Lorenz, Jr., and accompanists for the College Choir were Mrs. Shirley Cossentine and Mrs. Joyce Mayden.

Following the recessional hymn, "Hark, The Herald Angels Sing," Elder Mills led the congregation in a Christmas meditation and the Lord's Prayer.

As they were ushered out, soft strains of Christmas music floated toward them as the choir continued its singing from a distance.

The background on the stage was prepared under the direction of Anne Davidson. Credit for this work also goes to Ross Clark, Stewart Crook, and Mrs. Bertram.

Student Groups Meet Alice Princess of "This is Your Life" at Oakwood Conclave

Madison College will be host to the next Inter-collegiate Workshop of Seventh-day Adventist Colleges, announce Madison's delegates, who have just returned from the seventh meeting of this annual workshop, which convened at Oakwood College, Huntsville, Alabama, December 5-8. The next workshop, which will be held at Madison College, will convene in the spring of 1958.

Delegations from the nine Seventh-day Adventist colleges east of the Rockies were made up of the following student association officers: president, vice-president, editors of the school paper and the yearbook, secretary-treasurer, and sponsor.

The purpose of these inter-collegiate workshops is to establish a closer bond of unity between sister colleges and to make possible the exchange of beneficial ideas. At the Oakwood workshop were held each day general sessions and four sectional conferences composed of the yearbook editors, religious leaders, presidents and secretaries, and school paper editors.

The delegates also had the opportunity to meet Alice Princess and her family of the TV program, "This Is Your Life," and to hear her speak.

At the close of the sessions, a list of recommendations was drawn up, to be passed on to the Council of College Presidents this coming fall.

President F. O. Rittenhouse of Emmanuel Missionary College, Dr. Moseley and Dr. Hammill of the General Conference, and some of the sponsors were special speakers at the workshop.

On Saturday night the delegates were guests at a banquet, which was a festive occasion. The musical numbers at this banquet and

"Poise on Parade" Stresses Correct Form

Miss Mary Doe and her friends were featured in a style show at the chapel period on December 12, a program which portrayed student life situations illustrating both incorrect and correct conduct.

Scene one emphasized proper attire for vespers. This was followed by a demonstration of the right dress and decorum for church and the dining room.

How to answer the telephone with "Huh?" "Ya-l!" "U-huh" as the major part of the conversation, and early morning dress in the dormitory in the ladies' dormitory were presented in the third scene.

In scene four students correctly dressed for school met on the campus coming from classes all aglow with interest in the coming event which was portrayed in the last scene.

The reception given by the young men to the young ladies of the college afforded ample means to impress the audience with the many little acts of courtesy that make for a pleasant evening.

To climax "Poise on Parade," the college girl, career girl, church girl, casually dressed girl, and the formal girl filed past, escorted by young men all attired in the correct clothes for each occasion.

The program was arranged by Dean Socol and her assistants.

Sanitarium Receives Full Accreditation

The Staff of Madison Sanitarium and Hospital received on November 15 the notice of accreditation for the year 1956 to 1957 from the Joint Committee on Hospital Accreditation. This was the result of a survey conducted on September 20, 1956, by Dr. Frank W. Ryan, M.D., a field representative of the Commission.

This is good news for the staff of the hospital and gives courage to go forward to still greater attainments in patient care.

It is the desire of the administration to rise to the occasion and provide a better hospital and facilities, and an increasingly effi-

Remember Him

The humblest prophet of them all
Was proud to speak of Him
Who was to come to this dark world
From radiant seraphim.
But when He came, no bells rang out
To welcome from afar.
The King of Glory; there but shone
One beautiful, bright star.
Remember HIM, invite Him in,
The CHRIST of CHRISTMAS Day;
Then make Him welcome in your heart,
Forever there to stay.

We are happy to report that a goodly number of our young married couples are out giving weekly Bible studies. Ask any one of them about their work and I'm sure you will get the same response. They are all bubbling over with enthusiasm in this project.

We hear that Bob Hale has heard from the tall man in the striped pants down California way. Here's hoping that official letters which have sped out West will make him decide he doesn't need Bob until he at least completes his education.

News from down Texas way tells us that Marinell and Mickey Rabuka are working hard and enjoying every day in their "beloved Texas."

We want to wish Pat Silver Bon Voyage as she goes to Munchweiler, Germany, to join husband Bob.

Did you hear Mrs. Gill in class the other day? She said, "Now we will continue with our discussion of throughout the session, given by Oakwood students, were outstanding features at the workshop.

Delegates were present from Atlantic Union College, Washington Missionary College, Southwestern Junior College, Madison College, Oakwood College, Union College, Emmanuel Missionary College, and Oshawa Missionary College.

The delegates from Madison were Mr. Leslie Morris, sponsor of A.S.M.C.; Harry Mayden, vice-president; Maellene Haviland, secretary-treasurer; Clyde Holland, editor of Cumberland Echoes; Donna Jones, associate editor of the MADISONIAN; and Shirley Burk, business manager of the MADISONIAN.

Heretofore these meetings have been held during the first half of the school year. In an endeavor to give incoming officers an understanding of future responsibilities, it is being recommended that the date for the workshop be changed to a late spring date, after the election of new officers for the next year. Under the new plan, delegates will be chosen from both old and new officers.

The Madison group comments upon the spirit of harmony that permeated all meetings and the opportunities that came to make lasting friendships. They say they will not soon forget the hospitality of Oakwood and the spirit of comradeship engendered among the sister schools because of the working together of the student associations. All feel that these conferences are among the most important organizations of Seventh-day Adventists schools, and that they grow better each year.

Wasiota Whispers

We are happy to report that well over half the men of Wasiota Hall are taking an active part in the Ingathering campaign. Now let's see what we can do about getting the other half to participate. The way things are going, it looks as if Harry Bowden will be top man again this year. Keep up the work, Harry.

Someone whispered in our ear that Bob Story and Donald Meister each had a mishap the other night while working out with the bar bells. They got the weights up all right, but after that, it was a different story. We understand they let the weights fall on themselves.

Sounds fishy, but Richard Kunau and Paul Nettland are trying to sell blue moons.

To bring you up to date on Albert "Hurt-himself-again-Parker," we'll have to go back a few hurts. The last count we had was 12, which has now increased to 15. Seems as if he cut his hand when he set a 100-pound keg of nails on it. A few nights after that, while doing some acrobatics, someone rolled on the hand. Now, after all this has happened, a roof fell on him. We won't try to explain how—check with him—but it did happen. The moral of this story—be careful!

Delta Nu Zeta. . .

What does Christmas mean to you? These answers came from some of our Williams Hall girls:

Jackie Schlotthauer: A time to forget my own problems and make everyone else happy.

Jo Ann Schimp: A time to feel happy over getting to go home.

Virginia Henne: A vacation with loved ones and opportunity to share with others.

Mary Faye Draughon: A time which brings joy and gladness to my heart for all the things that Christ has done for me.

Shirley Weesner and Carolyn Berrier: Time when people act like people instead of animals.

Marie Brenchley: Time to look over the past year and make some new resolutions—to keep this time!

Dorothy Blakely: Joy in giving to others. The Christmas carols make me think of the birth of the Christ child.

Marilyn Blackwelder: Christmas reminds me of the purpose for which the Christ child came—to redeem the world.

the diseases of the eye. Today we will talk about the nursing care of the Cadillac."

Mr. and Mrs. John Williams were called home to Sikeston, Missouri, recently because of the sudden death of Mrs. Williams' father.

Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Arellano are entertaining Mrs. Arellano's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Smouse, who are escaping some cold weather in their home state of Iowa.

Mr. and Mrs. Art Quance are entertaining Mr. and Mrs. Roy Quance, Art's parents, from their home in Minnesota. They also like the climate and atmosphere so well they may just decide to stay with us.

Nursing Probies Strut Uniforms

Fourteen probies are strutting about the campus proudly showing off their pretty striped uniforms with their neat little black bow ties. Those who are on the "heavy" side appear slimmer, and the skinny ones look skinnier. For a few days some complained of stiff necks, because of the stiff collars, but perhaps the stiffness came from holding their heads so high.

Now they are looking forward to capping day, when they will be given their complete uniforms.

In addition to these fourteen girls are four members of the class who are not strutting around wearing striped uniforms, for they are boys, wearing the white jacket and trousers identifying them as men nurses.

Snoopy

Sorry that I missed you in the last issue, but I was on the sick list and wasn't able to call on you; but here I am and ready to go.

During the last few weeks we have had quite a few on the sick list—Lois Sharpe, Shirley Hancock, Bob Sellman, Connie Martin, Marilyn Blackwelder, Bob Salmon, and our editor, Dean Wike, who is recuperating at home in Arkansas. Snoopy is glad that all of you are up and around again.

I hear there are some new "girls" living in Williams Hall. They are two goldfish owned by Joyce Bowe and Mary Faye Draughon and a Persian kitten named Patsy, owned byorgetta Zerbee and her roommate.

Jean Openshaw must have a jinx on mirrors, or they have a jinx on her. The other night while she was combing her hair, the mirror split half in two and broke in pieces. Maybe you won't look so hard next time, Jean.

Is Harry Bowden trying to play Santa Claus the year around, or what? From the number of milk shakes that he sends to some of the girls in Williams Hall, we wonder what is going on.

We hear that Bob Salmon isn't too very fond of women drivers, but possibly there's a reason behind this dislike. Is that right, Bob?

A Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year to all of you!

Patsy Wilson Party

Miss Patsy Wilson, at home from Cincinnati where she is affiliating, entertained a group of friends at her home on the campus Saturday night, December 1.

They played games and listened to records and organ music by Mrs. Wilson. Apples, popcorn, and cocoa were served for refreshments.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Bill Graves and son, Maurice Culpepper, Lillian Azevedo, Jan Rushing and Lucy Courter.

Ingathering Spirit Grips Student Body

Not Christmas vacation, not exams, not parties—none of these have been the chief topic of conversation in the dormitory or on the campus during the last few weeks.

What then? Harvest Ingathering, of course! The only ones who aren't excited are those who haven't gone out.

Each day has brought a new thrill as the success of this or that band or group has been reported.

The enthusiasm began with an unusually successful field day a-way back in October. $2400 was raised—only a beginning on the college church's $14,000 goal.

Now after three weeks of caroling and street solicitation, victory is only a short distance away, thanks to the untiring work of students, faculty, and other church members.

Pastor and Mrs. O. J. Mills' consecrated leadership has inspired the students to a previously-unheard-of devotion to the work of the campaign. Night after night carloads of solicitors have gone out and brought back up to $100 for a single car. Shyness and timidity have fled as band leaders have persuaded their members to go out "just once."

Take a recent Saturday night, for instance.

"Doris, are you going Ingathering?"

"Oh—no—not me! I'm scared. Anyhow, I'm going to the bells program."

"Let's go Ingathering first. We'll be back for the program."

Doris was "pulled" to the car, and by the time the group had reached its territory, Doris was so frightened she was perspiring.

An hour passed.

"Shall we go back to the program, girls?"

"No, no. Let's finish this." (Doris's voice among the rest.)

Ross Clark, June Davidson, Harry Bowden, Maureen Drake, ready to go caroling with Mr. Keplinger. They have all exceeded their "minute man" goals.

At nine o'clock they counted their money. $72, and Doris had $17! Who cared now that she had missed the program?

Have you met the big man who doesn't carry can, pan or bag when he goes Ingathering? But he has a "Lord's pocket" in his coat, and in it went $36 during one evening's solicitation, including a 25-dollar check. No wonder Harry Bowden has more than $150 and is still working.

Paul Nielsen's experience is typical. Paul had never before solicited and was too timid to make a start. But Mr. Bowen, his band leader, finally got him out, and he reached his personal goal that first evening.

These are just a few illustrations of the spirit that has possessed the students and teachers the past few weeks. The campaign has been the big interest of the quarter. "What are we going to do when Ingathering is over?" some are already asking.

T O T Enjoy Party

The T.O.T. club members and friends met for their monthly meeting Saturday evening, December 8, at 5 p.m. in the pre-school building.

After a short business session with Richard Kunau presiding, the meeting turned into a Christmas party.

A Christmas game was played, with Wanda Aitken proclaimed winner, while Mervin Ernst, Mrs. Catherine Gray, and Winona Fiebelkorn tied for second place.

Mrs. Harry Mayden and Miss Rachel Ramsey were hostesses for the evening, Mrs. Mayden presiding at the punch bowl. Punch, Christmas cookies, and homemade peanut brittle were served to forty members and guests.

The crowning event of the evening followed when all gathered in a circle to pass Christmas gifts to their neighbors. When an alarm clock rang, each one kept the package he held.

Mrs. Schuler was presented with a glass bowl, in deep appreciation of her interest in the T.O.T. club. The Schuler family will be missed on the campus as they leave Madison for new work in northern Georgia.

Miss Rachel Ramsey, as Mrs. Santa Claus, made an unexpected entrance and gave caramel kisses to all, adding the wish for a Merry Christmas and a happy good night.

Married Couples Meet

The married students spent an enjoyable social evening on Thursday, December 6. A pot luck supper and a Christmas program were the most important events of the evening. Mrs. Neva Joyce Bullock and Mrs. Bobby Harrison concocted the punch, which was colorful and delicious. The decorated Christmas tree and an exchange of inexpensive gifts added to the holiday air.

Agriculture Group Conducts Chapel

City lads and lasses competed with farmers in a quiz program conducted by Mr. James Stearns, head of the Agriculture Department, at chapel on Monday, December 10.

Lucy Courter, Marilyn Blackwelder, Ida Gordon, Rodney Jones, Mr. Hassenpflug, and Bob Sellman had their choice of hard, medium, or easy questions and received points accordingly.

Two baby calves, a pen of chickens, and jars of various kinds of grains on the platform provided atmosphere for the program besides furnishing subject matter for some of the questions fired at the contestants by Mr. Stearns. Rodney Jones won when he answered the jackpot question, "What is a drawbar?" and took home a dozen eggs as a prize.

Mr. Hassenpflug and Lucy Courter each received a quart of milk for having the next highest number of points.

STARCH and STRIPES

The nurses, in particular, are looking forward to plans which are already well under way toward making West Hall over into an enlarged medical unit and North Hall into a convalescent psychiatric unit. Offices and utility space in both units are being enlarged. Also, there will be a waiting room for visitors in both units. It is hoped that the change can be made around the first of the year.

Anne Davidson was beginning to feel for a while that she was giving her patients a chill. For some mysterious reason they all seemed to run sub-normal temperatures. One day she discovered the reason for one, at least. The man had been eating ice!

In spite of heavy class and work programs, a large number of the nursing students have found time to do their part in the Ingathering program.

No nurse ever forgets the awful moment when he or she has to give that first hypodermic to a fellow classmate, does she, Mary Ward? Words of encouragement such as these may often be heard: "It won't hurt; just stick it in" or, "Just jab it in quick!" or, "Just pretend she can't feel it!"

With needle and syringe poised in mid air and courage failing, Mary Cole pleaded, "Could you just give my arm a push?"

Nevertheless, in spite of their fears, the members of the sophomore B class are well on their way to becoming quite skilled in the technic of hypodermic administration.

Edu cation Class Visits School for Blind

The class in Education for the Exceptional Child toured Tennessee's School for the Blind at Donelson, near Nashville, on November 28.

Mr. Ferrier, the principal, conducted the class through the classrooms, dormitories, music hall, shop rooms, and gym. The school has an enrollment of 150 students from grades 1-12.

The class learned that the course of study very nearly parallels that of the public school system although special emphasis is placed on vocational subjects that train the senses of touch and hearing.

A graduate of this college may be admitted to any state college of good standing.

There is no tuition charge, nor is a charge made for board, room, laundry, general medical care, or instructional supplies.

The class was very much impressed with the cleanliness and pleasant atmosphere which pervaded the school as a whole.

The Editor Speaks

Christmas time is here again. Many of us will be going home to celebrate the joys of holiday season with our families and friends. Relatives not seen for a long time are visited again, Christmas cards are sent and received, presents are exchanged, and Christmas carols are heard around our school.

We in America can enjoy the happiness of the Christmas season, but there are many poor, bedraggled people in all corners of the earth who will not experience the family gathering around the Christmas tree; their eyes won't light up with surprise because they won't have presents to open. Many do not know if their parents, brothers, or sisters are living or dead, nor where they are. Their homes are war-torn and shattered. Many do not know what Christmas is.

We in America take our prosperity and freedom too much for granted. We must be thankful to Christ that we have a home, family, and friends, and learn to think more of others than ourselves.

Senior Benefit Film Proves Real Success

The senior class gave their benefit program on Saturday night, December 1, presenting the picture, "John Wesley," the story of the life of the great reformer and preacher. Tickets were sold beforehand to adults and children. Seniors were admitted free.

Two showings were scheduled for 7:00 and 9:00. Doughnuts and hot chocolate were sold in the cafeteria after the first picture.

There was a large turn-out, and the profits from the picture will greatly help the seniors in their projects this year.

Class Visits Grocers

The Home Ec class was recently taken to the new Kroger store in the Madison Shopping Center to learn how to regulate their food budget and to buy food for better planning of meals.

The class was allotted a budget of $40.00 each to buy food for two, to last a month, pretending this was their first trip to the market after their marriage.

They wrote the amount of each item of food and the price in a notebook for later reference for meal planning.

Party Line

★ Hello! Is everyone listening? Listening—for the strains of music that came from the English IV room. No, it couldn't be; I thought they were having class. But as I peeped in I saw Elder Lorenz sitting at the piano playing, and the whole class singing carols.

★ It seems that everyone is expressing the Christmas spirit with singing this year. Why, last Saturday night I heard a group of girls who were waiting for the evening program to begin, singing their hearts out.

★ The academy choir made their first public appearance Sabbath, December 8, for the church service. As their special number they sang "This Is My Father's World."

★ Oh, do you remember those glasses Linda Pitman lost? Well, guess what? She finally found them in Dean Sandborn's office last week after nearly a year.

★ Have you seen the check book Denny Randall has been carrying around lately? It looks as if he will have no trouble enlarging the junior bank account after all those do-nuts the juniors have been selling.

★ Sugical Wing has acquired a new aide, Juanita Schwarz, who previously worked in the credit office. We know that with the help of Juanita and Nancy King, ward secretary, this part of the hospital won't lack for good service.

★ My, you should have tasted the chile we had Saturday night, December 8! The senior dorm girls—Sue Brown, Jackie Anderson, Virginia Cantrell, Delina Martin, and Pat Goodman—were entertained by the senior village girls with a "throat-tickling" supper.

I'll hang up for this time since I've told you all the news, but here's wishing "you all" a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

The academy students presented "The Christmas Story" Sabbath afternoon, December 15, for the M. V. hour.

The program was under the direction of Mrs. Sandborn, English teacher, and Evelyn Marshall, M. V. leader. Mrs. Ackerman was director of the musical arrangements.

Dora Young-Kitzerow, as grandmother, told the story of Christmas to her two grandchildren, Jane and John. Meanwhile, the story was acted out by persons representing Mary, Joseph, and the three wise men.

Musical numbers by Janet Harper, Jean Ruppel, Evelyn Aitken, JoAnn Schuler, Linda Pitman, the girls' trio, the boys' quartet, and the senior vocal group consisting of fifteen girls, added musical enjoyment between the different sections of the story.

Group Explores Cave

"Come on, gang, let's get going!" and a courageous group of ten were off to explore the Belle Meade Cave in Clarksville, Tennessee, on Sunday, December 2.

The explorers were Dean and Mrs. Theo Williams, Richard and Georgetta Zerbee, Ross Clark, Tui Pitman, Isla and Enis Esplin, Julia Keller, and Margaret Whitney.

Donning helmets and arming themselves with flashlights, the group entered the cave with anticipation and yet with some trepidation. The cave consisted of an entrance and three inner caves branching from it. The explorers had to jump over hundred-foot-deep precipices, climb slippery heights, wade through knee-high water, walk through bat guano, crawl on their stomachs through muddy tunnels and see the breathtaking beauty of calcium and salt-peter deposits and stalactites and stalagmites.

The ten explorers even had a few scares, as when Margaret Whitney fell over a small crevice and landed on bat guano. Then Julia Keller, with a scream, slipped on a muddy rock and fell twenty feet into a water-filled crevice where she miraculously hung by one hand until Richard Zerbee rescued her. Even under the expert guidance of Ross Clark and Richard Zerbee the group got lost, but soon found their way out.

The explorers report that they came back very tired but were satisfied with their adventures and would like to go back again.

The Belle Meade Cave, though not so well known as Mammoth Cave in Kentucky, is as large or larger and just as beautiful.
