Campus School Opens In-service Program Under Way

The Campus Demonstration School opened its doors September 9 for classwork after the teachers returned from the Kentucky-Tennessee Teachers' Convention, which was held during the first formal week of school beginning September 3.

To date more than 70 boys and girls are enrolled in grades one through eight, with Miss Elsie Peterson, Mrs. Dixie Wilcox, and Mr. Winton Ferris as teachers. The enrollment should reach around 80 when additional married students with children of school age enter college.

Observation and directed teaching are done in this well-equipped campus school, and those who are planning for elementary teaching as a life-time career will find it a pleasant place in which to do their practice teaching.

Under the direction of Mrs. James D. Simmons, the Ridgeway church school, an in-service training center, has 15 pupils enrolled in six grades, with Rachel Ramsey and Helen Twombly as teachers. They are affiliating and will earn 12 quarter hours of college credit this fall.

Robert Eaton is at the Chestnut Hill school under a similar program, although he will work directly under the supervision of Mrs. Susan Ard. Harry Bowden is at the Cave Springs Home for Children working with Mrs. Julia Grow. It is believed that all these school affiliations will strengthen and enrich the practical work experience of any student-teacher.

There is still time for those not enrolled in other colleges to come to Madison for the fall quarter which starts October 2, where they can enter the teacher-training program which leads to a B.S. degree in elementary education or to a two-year professional certificate. A limited number of scholarships are available for this department.

The director of this department is Mrs. James D. Simmons, a teacher and former conference educational superintendent with more than 30 years of experience.

Nutrition Head Announces Offerings

Mrs. A. Olga Lorenz, head of the Home Economics and Nutrition Department, fortified by her new Master of Science degree from the State University, is entering with enthusiasm upon her work for the new school year.

"The work is a tremendous challenge. There is no field of education where the opportunities are greater or more interesting and varied," she says, "and Madison must fulfill its responsibility in this area."

Mrs. Lorenz is a graduate of Madison College with a major in nutrition. Her degree admitted her to the University of Tennessee, where she spent a year earning her master's degree. Her major and minors included Foods and Institutional Management, Home Economics Education, and Family Relations and Child Development.

She states that the shortage among women teachers is far more acute in the field of Home Economics than in any other, and this shortage, and the prospects of even greater shortages in the future, based on present enrollments, is causing educators grave concern.

In the field of institutional dietetics and food management the situation is even worse, she reports. The opportunities in this field are promising and varied—hospital dietitians, college and academy food service directors, community nutritionists, industrial nutritionists, and research nutritionists.

Mrs. Lorenz has already begun teaching her one class on the high school level with twenty-four girls in the group.

When the college classes begin in a few days, the department will be offering work in foods, nutrition, sewing, textiles, and home furnishings.

New Workers Join Staff

Among the many who in the last few months have come to Madison to join the self-supporting work are Mr. and Mrs. George W. Walper and their two children, from Los Angeles, California.

Mr. Walper is taking up duties in two separate phases of institutional activity. He is assuming the position of Dean of Labor in the college and will also organize a personnel management office for the entire institution in cooperation with the general manager, Mr. Paul Dysinger. Mr. Walper will also be associated with Professor Cossentine in the Division of Fine Arts as instructor in organ and piano.

It is in this latter capacity that Mr. Walper has already become known to the campus, as he arrived just in time to play for the three weekend services of the 1957 college commencement exercises.

Mr. Walper's training and experience qualify him uniquely for his new teaching position. From early youth he has been at home on the organ bench. He has studied under nationally-known organists, including David Craighead and Margaret Dow.

His college work was taken at La Sierra College, the University of Redlands (California), and Stetson University (Florida), where he received his B.A. in music. His teaching experience includes four years at Forest Lake Academy in Florida (where he was associated with Professor Cossentine) and one year at Lodi Academy in California.

Modern Apartments Built from Cottages

Four units of the new Peachtree Apartments are ready for occupancy. The former Sunshine Court cottages, which were moved to the peach orchard area, have been completely renovated, with modern kitchens and bathrooms added. The walls have been plastered, the entire buildings insulated, and the exteriors stuccoed. The units are electrically heated.

Let's Be Friendly

Our school life affords golden opportunities to meet new people and form friendships that may last throughout the years.

Here we are at the beginning of another school year. Since first impressions of a place and the people are usually lasting, how important for each of us to be friendly to all, especially new students.

The South is famed for its hospitality and friendliness. Even though we are not all native Southerners, let us all remember that a warm smile, a firm, friendly handshake, and a sincere "May I help you?" mean a great deal to a person far from home in a new environment.

Our friendliness or lack of it at the beginning of the year may affect the entire school year, for better or for worse, for some.

Even though we may feel down in the dumps at times, let's have a smile for everyone. For we never know whose day we brighten and whose load we lighten just with a warm, friendly smile.

For God and Country

Occasional letters from our service men let us know that they appreciate the M. V. Newsletter. Pfc. James Culpepper writes from Germany:

"I am still the only S.D.A. here on this post, and naturally do miss the companionship of others of the same faith. I am sure I will learn to appreciate much more the privileges of my belief and what it can mean to an individual. It isn't hard to live by your religion once you make your stand. Just be sure you are standing for the right and stick by what you stand for. Thank you again for the letter."

Joe and Barbara (Busch) Schnell paid friends and relatives a brief visit last month. They were on their way from Ft. Sam Houston to Washington, D. C., where Joe is stationed at the Walter Reed Hospital. Barbara is working at the Washington Sanitarium pharmacy.

We bade farewell to Ronald Christensen on August 20. On his last Sabbath here, Jack Gibbons, in behalf of the M. V. society, presented him with an M. V. service kit.

Elder R. L. Mole, an alumnus of Madison College, now a chaplain in the U. S. Navy, and his family spent a few days at Madison on their way to Florida. Elder Mole is on his way to Okinawa, where he has been assigned for fourteen months, and he will leave his family in Florida during his absence.

Five of our new academy students, composing the entire graduating class of the Blythedale Junior Academy, Maryland, were very happy to see Elder Mole, for through his influence they all came to Madison College.

Snoopy

It really seems like old times to have the old students back from their vacations. A few who returned from their vacations early in September are Clyde Holland, Bob Channell, Karen Hucke, Jimmy and Velma Webster, and Imogene Lemacks, who is no longer Miss Lemacks, but Mrs. Hugh Shepard. Mr. Shepard also is here.

We have many new students with us, and we who have been here longer are trying to help them adjust to college life and become acquainted with their fellow students.

Remember the way Maureen Drake likes to cook? Well, the other night she decided to make a batch of Brownies to send to Ronnie Christensen. Anyhow, to make a long story short—something happened to them and they were flat and eating them was just like trying to bite into a steel plate. She put them out in the hall with a note which read, "Eat at your own risk." The next thing we knew the plate was empty. Maureen is trying to blame her culinary flop on the weather.

If you ever hear of a "floating appendix," would you please pass the word on to Glenda Luzader. She spent half the day recently trying to find one.

We have a new Madison Square Shopping Center—not down town, but in Alyce Williams and Doris Leatherwood's room.

Remember all the fun we used to have making ice cream? Well, I wish you could have been with us a few nights ago as Clyde Holland, Bob Channell, G. H. Kim, Jackie Giles, Mary Peek, Sheila Moore, Shirley Hancock, and I made a freezer of the best strawberry ice cream. It really hit the spot.

We're looking for all of you at registration time.

Starch and Stripes

One of the nicest things about the beginning of a new school year is seeing the old students return again and getting acquainted with the new. In some cases this year, as always, it will be merely new names. Among the most recent with new names are Mrs. Imogene Lemacks Shepard, Mrs. Kay Johnson Burk, and Mrs. Ramona Scott Barham.

Clyde Holland is back again with renewed energy, after having spent a pleasant eight weeks working at a boys' camp in West Virginia as nurse, counselor, lifeguard, etc.

The Jimmy Websters are also back after a busy summer working in a hospital in Covington, Kentucky. They feel fortunate to have been able to obtain a recently vacated apartment in the new apartment house.

One familiar and beloved individual we will miss seeing around is our former director, Mrs. Doris Clapp. Mrs. Clapp left September 1 to assume a temporary position as acting associate director of the Southern Missionary College School of Nursing. Writing from the Florida Sanitarium, she says that she loves her new environment and that everyone has made her feel welcome, but that she still misses her old friends at Madison.

Mrs. Freda Zeigler has added the responsibility of acting director of the Department of Nursing to

Mary Kate Gafford

To most of us the name Kellogg is familiar in more ways than one; for the Kellogg brothers have played an important part not only in the history of the Seventh-day Adventist denomination but in the medical and industrial history of the United States. Seventh-day Adventists remember John Harvey Kellogg in connection with the world-famous Battle Creek Sanitarium. His younger brother, W. K. Kellogg, is equally famous in the industrial world, becoming a multimillionaire through the medium of the corn flake.

You will want to read the biography of the younger brother, who after living and working under the "shadow of his effervescent older brother" for a quarter of a century, finally broke away and started alone the business which ultimately made him one of the richest men in America.

The title of this fabulous success story by Horace B. Powell is unusual as titles go—The Original Has This Signature—W. K. Kellogg—and was inspired, no doubt, by the inscription placed on the boxes of cereal.

The life of W. K. Kellogg may be divided into three phases: (1) the period spent as manager of the Battle Creek Sanitarium; (2) the period when he amassed his fabulous fortune from the cereal industry; and (3) the period of philanthropy, when he reinvested his huge fortune in a "foundation designed to help people to help themselves."

In the words of the author, this biography "is the story of the Seventh-day Adventist whose ideas on health reform made Battle Creek the cereal food capital of the world . . . It is the story of a naturally conservative man who was impelled to gamble his savings and credit in a highly competitive field . . . It portrays a manufacturer who would play no role but 'King of Corn Flakes,' but who was humble in arenas outside of business."

MARRIAGE vs. COOKING

An editorial in a recent university school paper comments upon the fact that last spring only three co-eds signed up for the evening cooking and food nutrition class in comparison to over half a hundred who signed up for the courtship and marriage class.

Says the editor: "This leaves one conclusion—a DWU female is interested in snaring her man, but she doesn't give a fig what happens to her prey and his stomach lining after she's made the capture."

Wedding Bells

ANDERSON—CANTRELL

Miss Jacquelyn Anderson, of Collegedale, Tennessee, became the bride of Mr. Donald Cantrell, of Madison College, on August 18, at 6:45 p.m.

The Harold A. Miller chapel at Collegedale was the scene of the ceremony, with Elder A. D. McKee officiating. The chapel was decorated with white gladioluses, ivy, and palms.

Dorothy Cantrell, Josephine Anderson, June Levens, and Stewart Crook sang solos, and Don Hall played on the marimba. Carol Hilgers was the pianist.

The bride's attendants were her sisters Josephine and Jeanette Anderson. Tracy Cantrell, the bridegroom's brother, and Clark Anderson, the bride's brother, were the bridegroom's attendants. Ushers were Jon Mac Randall, Duane Woodson, and R. C. Mizell. Patsy Ellis and Dorothy Cantrell were the candlelighters.

After a honeymoon to Washington, D. C., and other points of interest, the couple returned to Madison College, where they will continue their education.

RODRIGUEZ—MEISTER

Miss Stella Rodriguez and Mr. Donald Meister, Jr., were married at the Madison Boulevard S.D.A. church on Saturday night, August 24, at 8:00 p.m. by Elder Charles Edwards, pastor of the church.

Sally Hoover and Ruby Meister were the bridesmaids and Bonnie Bell Guier junior bridesmaid. Mr. Donald Meister, Sr., was best man, Rhea Harvey, groomsmen, and Billy Rodriguez, junior groomsmen. Mr. W. I. Tucker, grandfather of the bride, gave her away.

Wedding music was furnished by Carol Hilgers at the organ, and Donald Jensen, the bride's cousin, and Ann Davidson sang.

After their honeymoon at Daytona Beach, Florida, the couple returned to Madison College to attend school.

GAULDING—PERALES

Miss Patricia Gaulding, senior nurse, Class of '57, and Mr. Reuben Perales, R. N., Class of '56, were married at the City Road Chapel in Madison on Saturday night, August 31, immediately after the bride's graduation. Elder V. A. Chilson, pastor of the Lawrenceburg S.D.A. church, performed the ceremony. The church was decorated with white gladioluses and palms.

The bride's attendants were Nancy Gaulding, Esther Perales, and Sue Carol Gaulding. Little Michaela Gaulding was flower girl, and Efraeli Pineiro, Bible boy. The groom's attendants were Antonio Rivera, Walter Konstanzer, and Chico Pavia.

Robert B. Rau was organist, and soloists were Clyde Holland and Shirley Hancock. The bridegroom sang "I Love You Truly" as the bride came down the aisle.

The couple spent their honeymoon in the Smokies and are now living in Paris, Tennessee, where both are working.

RYALS—DURHAM

The chapel of the Helen Funk Assembly Hall was the scene of the wedding of Bonnie Ryals and Alfred Durham on September 1. Elder R. E. Stewart performed the ceremony.

Vero Wright, Maellene Haviland, Joyce Bowe, and Mary Faye Draughon were the bride's attendants. Bob Williamson, Clyde Holland, Ernest Plata, and Floyd McDaniels were the groom's attendants. Eileen Eller was the little flower girl and Stevie Keplinger, Bible boy. The ushers were Philip Lang and Cecil Hopps.

Bill Howard, Stewart Crook, and Eulene Borton sang. Mary Lou Sullens was the organist. Norma Goodge and Rebecca Vaughan lighted the candles.

Following the wedding a reception for the couple was held in the cafeteria.

Mr. and Mrs. Durham are residing on the campus, where Mrs. Durham is continuing her Medical Records course and Mr. Durham, Class of '57, is a laboratory technician at the hospital.

SCOTT—BARHAM

In a very pretty wedding held in the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Zeigler, Miss Ramona Scott and Mr. Alvin Barham were married at 6:30 p.m. on September 8. Elder O. J. Mills performed the ceremony.

A white lattice archway, covered with ivy and white and pink blossoms, framed the large window before which the couple said their vows.

Mrs. Mills was at the piano and Petra Sukau sang "Bless This New House." Evelyn Barham, sister of the bridegroom, was maid of honor, and Clarence Webb, uncle of the bridegroom, was best man.

Invited guests were close friends of the families. A reception was held after the wedding, an interesting feature of which was the tiered and decorated wedding cake, baked by the bride with the assistance of Mrs. J. G. Rimmer.

Mr. Barham is a junior industrial education major and Mrs. Barham is a junior nurse. Both will continue their education.

GROVE—CAMPBELL

About 70 guests gathered on the beautifully lighted and decorated lawn of the Stearns home at 8:00 p.m. on September 12, when Miss Grace Grove and Mr. Raymond Campbell were united in marriage by Elder O. J. Mills.

Miss Patsy Neely and Mr. Richard Sutton were the attendants. Bill Howard sang "I Love You Truly," and Elder and Mrs. Mills

Hnatyshyns Guests

The Alexanders recently had as their guests Elder and Mrs. J. N. Hnatyshyn, from Canada. Elder Hnatyshyn, Sabbath school and home missionary secretary of the Dominion of Canada, came to Nashville to attend a meeting of home missionary secretaries at the Southern Publishing Association. Mrs. Hnatyshyn is the sister of Mrs. Alexander. Elder Hnatyshyn spoke to the students in joint worship.

Roads Improved

New campus roads are the order of the day at Madison. The wide hard-surfaced road from the milk plant to Sanitarium Drive is much appreciated, as is also the new road from the Sandborn Circle houses to the main thoroughfare.

Now in the process of construction is the paved road from the milk plant to the farm.

The long-awaited-for road to the san kitchen and other hospital buildings must wait till the new pipe-line ditch is covered. Then the old tunnel will be removed and the old road straightened and improved.

Walper,
Eileen, and Leslie

More recently Mr. Walper has been employed by the Ace Drill Bushing Company of Los Angeles as training director and personnel manager. He has taken post-graduate work in personnel management at the Los Angeles State College. Thus he is also equipped to be of real assistance in solving some of the problems in this field at Madison.

With interests in cabinet-making, interior decorating, and a wholesome family life, the Walpers fit in well with the philosophy and ideals of Madison.

Also joining the staff of the Division of Fine Arts are Mrs.

Francis Cossentine, wife of the chairman, and Mr. Stewart Crook, dean of men.

Mrs. Cossentine is to teach piano, with special emphasis on the preparatory levels for elementary school and academy students. A graduate of Pacific Union College, she has taught at both Arizona Academy and Enterprise Academy (Kansas).

Mr. Crook is assuming the position of instructor in art, succeeding Mrs. Kathryn Bertram, who has retired after many years of inspiring service in this department. Mr. Crook is a Madison graduate, having been president of the Class of 1957.

her already busy program here, since Mrs. Clapp's resignation.

Mrs. Doris Thomson and Miss Virginia Davidson, who so recently received their B.S. degrees, seemed to enjoy college life while it lasted. However, they say they are just as happy not to have to burn the midnight oil anymore while studying for examinations.

Michigan caught a brief glimpse of Miss Davidson the weekend of September 8 when she made a "flying" four-day trip (by car) to Battle Creek with her parents for a family reunion.

The nurses who stayed by to hold the fort worked hard, but there is always time for a bit of humor. For example: Glyen Haugen was a bit puzzled over a "stat" medicine ticket he received from the nurse in charge while he was giving medications. The ticket read: "Two bottles root beer, stat." Who was the patient? you ask. Well, that would be telling, but it seems that someone was getting a wee bit thirsty.

Mrs. Peggy Newhart, our Obstetrics supervisor and instructor, has been asked to teach a series of Red Cross Mother and Baby Care classes to expectant parents, beginning September 11, at one of the large department stores in Nashville. Anyone interested in attending should contact Mrs. Newhart for details.

900-foot Steam Line Installed

A month of blasting and another month of torn-up campus is part of the price that is being paid for the new 900-foot, eight-inch steam line to the sanitarium. $15,000 is the rest of the cost of the project.

Sanitarium and hospital expansion during the last few years has made the old lines entirely inadequate to carry the steam load required.

The ditch for the new line was blasted out of rock to a depth of six and one-half feet at the upper end of the line. Because of the blasting, the ditch-digging was contracted by Eller Brothers of Madison. The laying of the pipe is being done by the college engineering crew.

The new pipe is thoroughly insulated with a new type of insulation which makes it possible to bury the pipes so that access to them will not be necessary for twenty years. It is expected that the new line will increase the efficiency of the heating system and reduce the cost of heating at least twenty per cent.
