Vol. 5      Madison, Tennessee, October 15, 1957      No. 17

Christensen to Head Cumberland Echoes

Deryl Christensen was elected editor of the 1958 Cumberland Echoes in an election by the student body on October 16. Deryl is a junior industrial arts major.

John Dovich, sophomore industrial arts major, was also elected to the position of parliamentarian of the A.S.M.C. executive council.

These students fill offices made vacant by resignations.

The student association voted last May to ask the journalism class to carry the editorial responsibilities of the MADISONIAN for the year. The names of the members of this class appear as editorial assistants in this issue of the paper.

At the October 16 election Charlie Myers was chosen as business manager of the MADISONIAN and Maureen Drake as circulation manager. Assisting Maureen will be Elizabeth Milliner and Mary Lou Ward.

Nurses Get Stripes

Student nurses reached another milestone in their course Monday, when they received their stripes indicating that they were now senior or junior nurses. Stripes were presented in chapel by Maxine Page and Virginia Davidson, clinical instructors.

Those receiving senior stripes: Terry Brown, Deloris Cross, Otis Detamore, Woodrow Ek, Hoytie Freeman, Jack Gibbons, Robert Hale, Glenda Luzader, Don MacIntosh, Nadine Myrick, Arthur Quance, Everett Saulsbury, Robert Slattery, Ray Webster, Petra Sukau (two days later). Those affiliating at Cincinnati who also are eligible to two stripes are Mary Doneskey, Mary Faye Draughon, Jackie Giles, Sheila Moore, Vero Wright, Joline Zerbee.

Those receiving junior stripes: Kay Johnson Burk, Marie Branchley, Margaret Dixon, Maureen Drake, Elizabeth Milliner, Mary Lou Ward, Alyce Williams.

Sandborns Called To Michigan

President and Mrs. Sandborn were called to Kalamazoo, Michigan, on October 17 because of the serious illness of Mrs. Sandborn's father, Mr. N. M. Deal.

Southern Self-supporting Workers Meet

Laymen Hold Forty-seventh Convention

Former FBI Agent Tells Experiences

Mr. W. E. Patterson, former Prohibition agent, special agent in the Treasury Department, and FBI agent, told experiences connected with his work of uncovering crime in a chapel talk on Monday, October 14.

When Mr. Patterson was 16 years old he attended Fletcher Academy and there received a vision of what he should make of his life.

But he forsook his vision, and his aspirations led him to government work. For 20 years he worked in the underworld, engaged in law enforcement; some of the cases he successfully handled cost the government one million dollars.

However, he never lost sight of the vision he had caught in his boyhood at Fletcher. When he retired in 1950, at the height of a successful career, he came to Madison to learn more about the self-supporting work. Finally, last January he left for Harbert Hills to head the little school he has established.

For the forty-seventh time Madison College was host to the Annual Convention of Southern Self-supporting Workers, which was held on the campus from October 10-13.

From Indiana on the north to Florida and Mexico on the south, from North Carolina on the east to Kansas on the west, and from a score or more of units in between, came more than 100 men and women from small schools and sanitariums, rest homes, children's homes, treatment rooms, and agricultural units.

These represent a dedicated group who, some for many years and some for less than a year, have been carrying out the instruction given years ago by Mrs. E. G. White concerning the Southern field: "Let schools and sanitariums now be planted in many places in the South."

The keynote of the convention, "Following the blueprint to the finish," was sounded in every session, as doctors, nurses, teachers, and farmers showed how God had blessed their work. B. E. Sheffield, at present establishing a new unit in Florida, was chairman of the convention.

Always the chief interest of the convention, the reports from representatives of the units were again heartwarming.

Robert Zollinger from Laurelbrook, Dr. Ralph Maddox from Lawrenceburg, Mrs. Julia Grow from the new Cave Springs School for Handicapped Children, Kent Griffin from Fletcher, Leland Straw from Little Creek, Adolph Johnson from Pine Forest, Mrs. Susan Ard from Chestnut Hill, and others gave cheering reports.

On Sabbath afternoon a panel of Madison workers consisting of President William C. Sandborn, Elder Felix A. Lorenz, head of the Bible Department, Paul Dysinger, general manager, and Ralph Martin, head of the Madison Associated Services, discussed Madison's efforts to "get back on the right road" and to follow the blueprint explicitly.

These men emphasized the development of the Agriculture Department at Madison. This past year has been one of the department's brightest years. An agricultural agent recently stated that the Madison farm may well be an object lesson of what can be done in this area.

Dr. Sandborn also stated that another step toward making agriculture the A, B, and C of education is the new requirement at Madison College that every student who graduates must take at least one course in agriculture.

On Saturday night a group of young people from the different schools participated in a panel discussion on Christian recreation. They reported on types of recreation engaged in at their schools—hiking, nature study, campfires, hayrides, swimming, useful work, missionary projects.

Ray and Marie Comstock, from their self-supporting mission in Chiapas, Mexico, showed their film, "Jungle Mission," at the close of the evening's session.

An outstanding contribution to the success of the convention was

The Greatest of the Graces

Since the beginning of time man has looked for the best in life. Especially is this true of the Christian. Charity, or Christian love, is often called the greatest of the graces, yet it is really the embodiment of them all. In fact, if a Christian possesses love, he possesses all other God-like traits.

Love is like a light, which, when passed through a crystal prism, comes out on the other side broken up into different colors. Here are a few of the colors: patience, kindness, generosity, humility, courtesy, and unselfishness. All these make up the Christian.

Everything in this modern age becomes out of date after a certain time. Textbooks, ten years after they are published, are considered much behind the current times. Also cars, locomotives, and other machinery look like relics of the past just a very few years after they are made.

The treasures that are everlasting, that never grow old and out of date, are those cultivated in the character of the loving and lovable Christian.

Starch and Stripes

The nurses of the class of '57 took their State Board examination on October 4 and 5 and are now calmly waiting returns. At the close of the second day of exams they were all entertained by the clinical instructors at the home of Mrs. Thomson.

Miss Golden Williams, secretary-consultant of the Tennessee Board of Nursing, was here recently for her annual inspection of the nursing school. Her friendliness and her counsel were much appreciated by the staff, who feel encouraged over the progress the school is making.

The Tennessee Nursing Association and the Tennessee Association of Student Nurses have both held meetings in the Hermitage Hotel this past week. Mrs. Zeigler and other members of the nursing staff and also the local T.A.S.N. officers have been in attendance. The theme running through the meetings has been "The Patient and Nursing—Today and Tomorrow."

The Zeiglers are happy to have as their guest Mr. Zeigler's father, Mr. Howard Zeigler, from Akron, Ohio.

Delta Nu Zeta

Mrs. Temples, our dean, thought her girls were all tucked in for the night on Monday, October 7, but about 10:30 Shirley Burk began playing very loudly on the piano, and the girls came trooping down the stairs. When things quieted down, our dean discovered that she was being initiated into dormitory life. Then followed a welcoming program and refreshments, and good nights were again said.

Anybody need a haircut? We have a barbershop set up in Williams Hall. Operator Openshaw states that it will be located in her room for the girls, and in the kitchenette for the boys.

Mrs. Alexander, Gotzian dean, and Lucy Courter, were hostesses at a baby shower for Dora Kitzerow on Thursday evening, October 17, held at the home of Mrs. Teckla Wilson. Dora, before her marriage, was a Gotzian Home girl.

Karen Huckle and Thelma Hodges seem to be suddenly interested in cosmetology. What's the reason?

We are sorry to report that Lila Ring was called to her home in McClure, Kentucky, because of the death of her father.

Donna Wagner has decided that it doesn't pay to go out of her room and lock the door when men are in the hall.

Lost: A black kitten. If found, return to Darlene-joan McKibbin.

Darlene Richardson, from British Columbia, had the pleasure of having her mother come with her and then visit with us for about four days. We were really happy to have her.

Two by Two

We are happy to have Marie Wilson Logan back with us again. Marie graduated in 1953, with just a few months of nursing time to make up. Circumstances such as marriage and a little son, Lee, came along to prevent her doing this at the time. Encouraging letters from her husband Ruben and phone calls from little Lee are helping her to keep up her courage and her determination to reach her goal—that R. N. behind her name.

We are glad to have Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Tetz and Mrs. Alex Nischuk back with us again after spending a nice cool summer in Canada.

Did you hear the tale of Otis Detamore and the runaway Buick? Otis went down to trailer court to use the clothes dryer. He parked his car as usual and went about his work. Suddenly there was a crash—the Buick had stopped in the middle of an old expandable trailer. The building was a wreck, the windshield was shattered, and Otis was shocked. It could have been worse, you know!

Jack Gibbons is really getting some good experience in Home and Baby Care. Nancy has been in the hospital with the flu this past week. You should see Jack with his apron on preparing formulas and bathing the baby. And then there's Ching the pup to care for too. It is all really a handful.

On October 14 a little son weighing 2 pounds, 14 ounces was born to Mr. and Mrs. (Merritta Haviland) Tommy Thompson, of Old Hickory, Tennessee. Baby Thompson is doing well in the incubator.

Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Myers entertained Polly Roethel (Anesthesia, Class of '55) over the weekend.

Mary Kate Gafford

Those of you who have read The Little Princesses will enjoy another book by the same author, entitled Mother and Queen, the story of Queen Mary, grandmother of the princesses, and consort of George V, king of Great Britain. Marion Crawford, the author, employed for seventeen years as governess of the royal children, Princess Margaret and Princess Elizabeth (now Queen Elizabeth II of Great Britain), is no doubt better qualified than any other person outside the royal family to write such intimate stories.

How are children of kings and queens educated? What do they wear? What do they eat? With whom do they associate? How do they spend their time? These and many other questions are answered in the two books mentioned.

According to the author, "Queen Mary is much more than a figure in an historical pageant; she is a great woman of our time." (Queen Mary died since the book was published.) Tidiness, punctuality, thrift, and industry were outstanding traits which would have made Queen Mary a success in whatever occupation she might have chosen had she not had her life's work determined for her by circumstance of birth.

As a mother, Queen Mary was also a success. Of her children, the author writes: "They were brought up to live quietly, with family prayers, church attendance, regular lessons, pocket money that they had to account for, walks in the country, and above all, the society and guidance of their parents."

Queen Mary's interest in the living and working conditions of the people was intense. "Visiting hospitals in two world wars . . . she has witnessed far more pain and suffering than most of us." More than once, we are told, she rolled up her sleeves, went behind a counter, and served tea to soldiers.

But you will want to read these two books for yourself. The call number for The Little Princesses is 920.7 C85L; for Mother and Queen, 923.142 M36c.

Noon-day Prayer Band Meets

The Hour of Power, the noon-day student prayer band, is now in its third year. Each day, from Sunday till Friday, at 12:30, a group of students meet fifteen minutes for prayer. One student presents a devotional thought from the Bible or from the Spirit of Prophecy and then all participate in a prayer season. The prayer band meets in the library class room, at the south entrance to the library. Those in charge invite all who wish to attend.

the music provided by the Madison College Music Department, headed by F. R. Cossentine. Mr. Walper's organ numbers, Dr. Umali's and Mrs. Moon's violin solos, the string ensemble directed by Mrs. Moon, and vocal music by Messrs. Cossentine, Crook, Jorgensen, and Ferris and Mrs. Neva Joyce Bullock were all heartily enjoyed. Mrs. Ralph Maddox, from Lawrenceburg, sang a beautiful solo on Sabbath afternoon.

Guest Speakers

Among the guest speakers at the convention were Elder Wesley Amundsen, secretary of the Association of Self-supporting Institutions, Elder H. K. Christman, a Madison alumnus and now circulation manager of the Signs of the Times, Elder D. R. Rees, president of the Southern Union, Elder H. S. Hanson, secretary of the Department of Education of the Union, Elder Andrew Fearing, president of the Georgia-Cumberland Conference, and Elder E. L. Marley, president of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference.

Also here as guests were Dr. Leonard Brunie and his wife, Dr. Yolanda Sutherland Brunie, from California. Dr. Yolanda is a daughter of Dr. E. A. Sutherland. Dr. Leonard Brunie's two lectures on archeology and the Bible and archeology and evolution were much appreciated by all who attended.

1957-58 Officers

At the convention business session on Sunday morning the following officers for the Laymen's Extension League were elected for the coming year: president, B. A. Sheffield; vice president, Elder Felix A. Lorenz; secretary-treasurer, Florence Fellemente.

Owl Chooses Library

Patsy Adkins got quite a scare the other day while she and Carol Cantrell were working on magazines upstairs in the library. As Patsy took hold of her dustcloth as it lay on the banister, she let forth a scream. She had disturbed a little brown owl as it sat perched there. Both girls rushed down the stairs. David Hernandez was persuaded to come to the girls' (and the owl's) rescue and promptly went up and caught the bird. Evidently the owl knew which building to come to, to improve his proverbial wisdom.

Large Attendance at Prayer Meetings

Prayer meetings are proverbial for their small attendance, but not so at Madison while Mr. Ralph Martin is giving his series of studies on the Spirit of Prophecy.

The student evening worship period on Wednesday has been merged with the prayer meeting, and the entire school and community family meet at 7:00 p.m. for an hour of study, prayer, and testimony.

"And this is life eternal, that they might know Thee, the only true God, and Jesus Christ whom Thou hast sent." John 17:3.

With this theme text, Brother Martin begins his studies, calling attention by scripture and quotations from the Spirit of Prophecy to the seriousness of the hour.

The following key thoughts run through the meetings from week to week:

"World events show us that the crisis is not too far away. This crisis will come when church and government unite to propagate their doctrines. That time will be

Old and New Students Meet on Hike

A crisp October night with an almost full moon—an ideal setting for a hike!

Approximately 250 college and academy students enjoyed a three-mile hike through the woodlands, corn fields, and meadows of the college farm on the evening of October 5. As this was the first Saturday night social of the new school year, both old and new students looked forward to getting better acquainted.

Mr. Wilson, academy principal, together with other faculty members, led the long line of students from in front of Williams Hall to the long, rugged trail which started behind Central Heat. The trail was very difficult to travel at first because of the heavy brush and vegetation, but soon fields and meadows were in sight.

At a spot beyond the halfway point, beside a large roaring fire, hot chocolate and apples were served. And while a few still ate apples, Mr. Ferris, principal of the elementary school, led the group in singing campfire songs, which included patriotic songs and an over-edited version of "Old MacDonald." Then, before the hikers started homeward, Mr. Smith, a visitor, told a few humorous stories.

To Californians, Floridians, Texans, and all, the clear, Southern moonlight night, along with the invigorating exercise, made the evening an ideal one.

an hour of decision, not of preparation. We are in the time of preparation now."

Band, Choir Off to Good Start

Getting off to a promising start, the College Band met for the first time this term on Monday, October 7, at 7:30 p.m.

According to Mr. K. P. McDonald, bandmaster, the first rehearsal was most encouraging, with prospects for a larger group than there has been for many years. Particularly noted was the strength of the percussion and brass sections. It is planned to reinforce the woodwinds with more recruits, in order to bring about a better balance.

With a selected membership of more than 50 voices, the College

Choir rehearsed for the first time on Wednesday, October 9.

The director, Professor Francis R. Cossentine, commented on the unusually fine blend of the women's voices, and prophesied that with the cooperation of each member a record of achievement might be set that would surpass even that of last year's memorable choir.

Besides the annual Christmas program, other appearances are already being planned, with several out-of-state invitations having been received.

Married Students to Organize

Good food always draws the crowd at the Married Students' Club. They met for the first meeting and pot luck supper in the Nutrition Laboratory with Elder and Mrs. Lorenz as their host and hostess.

The following officers for the new year were chosen: president, Don MacIntosh; vice president, Grace MacIntosh; secretary-treasurer, Kay Burk; program chairman, Bob Hale.

Travel films of America furnished the entertainment for the evening. An invitation is extended to all married students to attend the club activities on the first Thursday evening every month.
