New Baldwin Organ Now in Use

The Music Department and the Madison College Church announce the recent purchase of a Baldwin Electronic Organ, Model 5-A, valued at around $5000. This organ meets the requirements of the American Guild of Organists, of which Mr. Walper, organ instructor at Madison College, is a member. He states that it is suitable for both recital and church use. The Hammond organ, for which retired organ instructor Professor James G. Rimmer raised the money, has been of faithful service and in constant use for about twenty years. It has been moved to the music rehearsal room where it will be used for student practice and for accompanying the choir rehearsals. Organ students are now able to learn the important essentials of both pipe organ and Hammond registration.

Chimes to Be Added

Mr. Walper hopes that before long money can be raised for a set of chimes ($500). The present set of chimes is being loaned to the school on a temporary basis. Eventually equipment will be obtained which will enable the chimes to be amplified all over the campus.

If any reader of this column feels impressed to donate a sum of money toward this cause, send the contribution to the Madison

Music Program Coming

The Christmas program, which will include all the campus choral organizations in addition to several off-campus groups, has been scheduled for Friday night, December 12. The first concert by the College Band will be presented on Saturday night, December 13. Further information about these performances will appear later.

College Music Department and specify that it is to be used toward the purchase of a set of chimes.

Reverberation chambers will soon be installed above the platform to replace the temporary speakers now located at the rear of the platform.

Mrs. Zeigler Is Appointed New Director of Nursing

Mrs. Freda Zeigler

Mrs. Freda Zeigler was appointed the new director of nurses for the School of Nursing at the recent board meeting held October 9.

Mrs. Zeigler steps into this position with many years of experience in all fields of nursing. A graduate of Madison College School of Nursing and Madison College, she has been in nearly every nursing service in the institution, besides being a teacher, counselor, and friend to the students throughout the years.

For nearly eight years she has been associate director of nursing in education, and since the resignation of Mrs. Clapp a year ago she and Mrs. Naomi Vaughan have been associates in directing the department.

Mrs. Zeigler has done graduate work at Peabody in the field of Public Health Nursing.

At the same board meeting, Mrs. Doris Thomson was appointed associate director of nursing in education. Mrs. Thomson, a graduate of St. Anthony Hospital

Japanese Group Presents Program

Dr. and Mrs. Perry A. Webber and a group of Japanese students presented "Mysteries of the Orient" Saturday night, October 25, in the college chapel.

As the curtains were drawn, the platform revealed a row of gaily and attractively dressed Japanese men, women, and children in gorgeous native costume.

Dr. and Mrs. Webber explained each costume as the wearer came to the front and then told of many interesting customs of the Japanese people.

The audience learned that Japan leads the world in the manufacture of rayon, nylon, and dacron fabrics as well as native silk.

Following the "dress parade" and a song in Japanese by Harry Fujita, there were colored slides of the Mt. Akagi School in Japan, where the Webbers, Rachel Yatani, the Fujita brothers, and others pioneered in establishing a self-supporting unit.

The Japanese students who assisted the Webbers in the program were Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Yoshimura, Rachel Yatani, and Alfred and Harry Fujita. Others who modeled Japanese costumes were Marie King, Carol Hilgers, Fay Eller, Kay Eller, Dorothy

Freshmen Visit Fletcher, Little Creek, and Laurelbrook Schools

The members of the orientation class have just completed their annual visits to the self-supporting schools.

The first group of about 45 left Madison on October 21 for Little Creek School, Concord, Tennessee. After an unfortunate delay when the bus broke down, the group arrived at Little Creek in time for dinner.

They particularly enjoyed chapel, during which the school band, composed of nearly all the students and a few teachers, played for them, and the school choir, including all the students, sang. Then some from the college group gave a short program. Dr. Sandborn, Rebecca Perillo, Zoraida Roman, Lydia Guerrero, Terry Sweeny, Richard Mitzelfelt, Harry Fujita, Sammy Alabata, and Assiria Silva participated.

A second group of 50 left for Fletcher Academy, Fletcher, North Carolina, on Friday, October 23, by way of the beautiful Great Smoky Mountain National Park.

All were impressed with this well-organized and well-conducted school. The evening Missionary Volunteer program was given by the Madison group. Those who

Beauty on Our Campus

Have you ever stopped to consider the beauty which is right here on our campus? If not, why haven't you? Do you think that this beauty has always been here? I know differently. I have talked personally with some of the individuals who have been responsible for the planting of these lovely tall trees. These trees not so many years ago were just small saplings. When you think of our campus as having only small trees and very little grass, you haven't a very attractive picture, have you?

Then there are the flowers which are blooming in front of the Assembly Hall. Have you thought of the toil which has been put on these flowers that we might see something lovely?

Too often we take the cutting of the grass, the weeding of flowers beds, and the trimming of bushes all for granted. What would happen if these growing things didn't receive care? Would we notice them then?

Let each of us every day strive to be more appreciative of the beauty about us. BEV

Alumni News

At the annual business meeting of the Alumni Association held in the cafeteria during the Laymen's Convention, Mrs. R. R. Bowes was elected president, L. L. Dickman president-elect, Mrs. Margaret Tate secretary-treasurer, and Mrs. R. E. Stewart, assistant secretary-treasurer. Ralph Martin and Edwin Martin were elected to the board, and Paul Taylor was elected faculty adviser. Guest speakers were Dr. M. C. Horning, who was voted in as an honorary alumnus, President Sandborn, and Dean Byers.

Dear friends,

Please send us a year's subscription to THE MADISONIAN.

We will always follow Madison College with keen interest. It gave us quite a thrill as we went South to find so many Madisonites along the way. We stopped at Wildwood, Fletcher, and the Hialeah Sanitarium and Hospital, Hialeah, Florida. Four out of six Sabbath school teachers in the adult division of the Hialeah Sabbath school were from Madison. Imagine our surprise when Elder Buck got up to preach. He is their new pastor.

We are enjoying our work here at the Bella Vista Hospital and clinic very much. Brother and Sister Baron are here and Jesus and Opal Vega; so even here we are with our friends from Madison.

Sincerely,
The Horsleys

Starch and Stripes

Mrs. Arthur Quance, of the Nursing Office, was called home some time ago because of the serious illness of her father. A week later Mr. Quance was called home because of his father-in-law's death. Our deepest sympathy goes to the Quances and other relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Vest, their daughter Nelda Fay Ackerman, her husband, and their children were involved in a car wreck a week or so ago. While they were on their way to a family reunion in another state, a driver ran into their car, injuring Nelda Fay, her husband, and her mother. All three were in the hospital, but are better now.

October 29 and 30 were days long to be remembered by a group of nurses on the campus. These were the days for their final examinations, which all had "looked forward to" for the past three years. State Board is the last exam required, which, if passed, will attach the title R. N. to their names.

Did anyone miss a familiar face from among the student body? Surely, you did. Joyce Bowe was missing for more than a week, but someone discovered she was in Room 427 on Surgical Wing. She had what is termed an "appendectomy."

One Sunday morning the friends of Velma Robinson and Alice Surdahl were feeling rather sorry for them, because the two girls had stomach ache while on duty. It was learned that the evening before they had enjoyed a feast which consisted of Fritos, popcorn, tomato juice, chocolate pudding, peanut butter and cottage cheese, hot root beer, and Soyloc. Poor girls, they must have been hungry to get that conglomeration down. Wonder whether they will try it again.

Two by Two

Did you hear about the hayride and campfire supper the married students had on Saturday night, October 18?

The fun began at 6:30 when they began to congregate down behind the barn. They came bringing their quarts of milk for hot chocolate, weiners, buns, pickles, catsup, et cetera. It wasn't long before Opie and Lawrence Cantrell came chugging in with the tractor and haywagon. Everyone piled in, and the hayride was off to a good start.

All were feeling their best as they rode along and sang the old folk songs and many others to their hearts' content. What a contribution Bob Beaman and his guitar made!

When they reached their destination—the river—the food was brought out and put together in a hurry. Soon it was suppertime around the campfire. When everyone had had all he could hold, the wagon was loaded again.

Off they went, toward the graveyard, through Wilson's pasture—Oh! Oh! What was that jar? It was the wagon wheel going over a ditch, and yes, the wagon tongue was almost broken. But Opie Cantrell knew what to do. He got out his wire and mended it, and soon they were on their way once more.

Down Neely's Bend Road to Larkin Spring Road and then back home at 9:45. Oh, what fun it was! Let's do it again sometime.

Those who enjoyed the evening were Don and Jackie Cantrell, Clyde and Barbara McCulley, Harley and Laura May Slatery and baby, Bob and Ruth Beaman (and his guitar), Dewey and Arlene Luzader, Raymond and Grace Campbell, Bob and Pat Silver, Herb and Margaret Tate, and Alfred and Shirley Tucker.

Culture Corner

This corner will contain, from time to time, suggestions on various phases of Christian culture and courtesy. The editors will welcome contributions. Perhaps the following observations, by students, will serve as a starting point for helpful hints.

Question: What lack of courtesy have you observed on our campus?

"Even though one doesn't know the person he meets on the walk, he should speak. It certainly makes one feel little to speak and receive no response. Let's try to be more friendly especially with those outside our circle."

"People with taps on their shoes should walk quietly in the library, with consideration for those who are trying to study."

"In a large class like P. and A., it seems everyone is trying to leave at the same time, which makes considerable pushing. We're all in a hurry, but on this point we need to improve."

"Clipping fingernails during public meeting or church is disturbing."

"I've noticed that girls sometimes take the boys' courtesies for granted. They even forget to say thanks!"

"Some students sleep during chapel. Others study, read, or chew gum. What impression must this make on a speaker, especially a guest?"

Mrs. Zeigler—from p. 1

eral, private duty, and office nursing.

Mrs. Zeigler states that the objective of the School of Nursing at Madison is not only to educate nurses for the highest efficiency in their profession, but to lead these nurses to a complete consecration of their talents to ministering to those in need.

Also, she says, the educational program endeavors to provide an atmosphere which will stimulate inquiry and study for continual growth throughout the nurse's life.

The Madison College School of Nursing invites young men and women who are interested in becoming useful citizens and medical missionaries in the homeland or in the foreign field to apply for admission to the nursing school.

Everyone should own a comfortable bed and comfortable shoes, because he's in one or the other all of his life.

Pathfinders Go to Mammoth Cave Park for Weekend Outing

Seventy-eight juniors and counselors left the college campus on Friday, October 24, for a Pathfinder outing to Mammoth Cave National Park, 90 miles northeast of here.

Here, in the 50,000-acre park, the Pathfinders found a perfect study room for a weekend of nature study. The beautiful fall colors were at their best and abundant wild life, such as deer and red fox, added interest to the trip.

A truck-tour of the park, a ferry trip across Green River, discovering the small caves in the park, and camp fire activities at night were highlights of the weekend.

Not least important to the juniors was the abundance of tasty and healthful food prepared and served by Mrs. Sossong, Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Paul, and Mr. and Mrs. Bill Craig.

Each morning after flag-raising, the juniors separated into groups for morning watch and prayer bands.

Sabbath school and church were held around a campfire. Mr. Ivan Peacock taught the Sabbath school class, Mr. Kenneth Smith told a colporteur experience for the mission story, and Gordon Roberts gave the talk at the church service.

Although it was cool and late in the season, everyone had taken enough along to keep warm and comfortable.

had parts were Sue Shelton, Penny Osborne, Robert Kohler, Robert Eaton, Mr. Dickman, and Doris Leatherman. They left soon after sundown on Saturday night.

The third group of 51 spent the day of October 30 at Laurelbrook School, Dayton, Tennessee. They were especially impressed with the lovely little sanitarium and the beautiful landscaping of the institution. During the program given by the Madison students, Josephine Anderson, Dolly Nelson, Mary Lou Sullins, Phyllis Campbell, Nancy Hollinger, Nancy Currier, Ruth Jennings, and Juanita Mercado took part.

The purpose of these trips is to acquaint the freshmen with the type of educational and medical work for which the Madison school was established.

Nashville Symphony Attracts Music Lovers

Fifteen students and numerous other Madisonites have bought season tickets to the 1958-59 series of concerts of the Nashville Symphony Association. Mr. Michael Semanitsky, concertmaster of the Symphony, was the first artist to be scheduled this year. Other nationally and internationally known artists scheduled to appear this season include Robert Casadesu, pianist; Nathan Milstein, violinist; and Roberta Peters, soprano. The performance of the contemporary choral work "King David" will close the season next April.

Successful Harvest From Sorghum Crop

Mr. L. M. Cantrell, of the Ag Division, reports a successful harvest from his newest crop.

Last spring he planted about an acre and a half of honey-drip cane sorghum. When the cane was processed at a Ridgetop mill recently, 187 gallons of molasses was the result. That amount will be sufficient to furnish syrup to the cafeteria, the sanitarium kitchen, the store, and individuals who wish to get it direct from Mr. Cantrell. The price will be $2.50 a gallon, according to Mr. Cantrell.

The farm is planning next year to get a mill of its own, and thereby gain the third of the crop which must be given to the processor.

"Hour of Power" Meets at Noonday

The Hour of Power, noonday prayer band, meets again this year every day except Sabbath at 12:30 in the faculty room. Here a group of students seek God for themselves, their teachers, and those in national authority. Special requests are made, which all unite in presenting to God. Sometimes one of the students gives a short devotional. Mr. Norman Gulley, Bible and history teacher, is the sponsor of the prayer band. All who are interested are invited to attend.

Field Trip

The class in the study of exceptional children visited the Tennessee School for the Blind on October 28. They also visited the Clover Bottom School for Mentally Retarded on the same day. Both schools are in Donelson, about 10 miles from the college. Clover Bottom houses about 1300 persons ranging in age from 7 to 50. At the school for the blind 165 are in grades from kindergarten through the twelfth. Mrs. Frances Aitken, an elementary education major at Madison, is a teacher at the Clover Bottom School.

A.S.M.C. Committees at Work

Chairmen for the six A.S.M.C. student committees were elected by secret ballot at an election held from two till five o'clock Wednesday afternoon, October 22.

After election, each chairman submitted, for approval by the Student-Teacher Council, names of the five other members of his committee.

These committees, which center their interests in the various phases of school life, will meet regularly to discuss matters concerning the welfare of the school and the student body. From time to time they will bring recommendations to the Student-Teacher Council and to the faculty.

Following is a list of the committees, the chairmen, and the committee members:

Programs and Recreation

Albert Isom, chairman. Bob McBride, Carol Hilgers, Rupert Ham-Ying, Terry Sweeny, Gerald Kelley.

Campus Life

$500 for Unit In Mexico

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Comstock, self-supporting missionaries to the Chiapas Indians in Mexico, left Madison College following the recent Laymen's Convention with a gift of $500 to help further their work in Mexico.

During the convention they told of their station, where they are building a model village to teach Seventh-day Adventist natives principles of health and sanitation. Their work has interested Seventh-day Adventists in all parts of the United States.

Youth Leader Visits Campus Again

Elder E. L. Minchin, associate world youth leader of the General Conference, was speaker at the chapel and evening services during his recent visit here with his daughter and son-in-law, Leona and Norman Gulleys.

Elder Minchin is no stranger on the campus, as he conducted the Week of Prayer here three years ago.

Both the students and the faculty appreciated Elder Minchin's two talks, in which he gave illustrations of living the true Christian life and enlarged upon the text, "Come unto me. . . and I will give you rest." The evening service was so well received that Elder Minchin held a short after-meeting, speaking on "How to Make Prayer Work for You."

Now that the Gulleys are teaching here at Madison, the school can look forward to hearing Elder Minchin more than in the past, as he will pay an occasional visit to his daughter and son-in-law.

Music Department

Purchases Instruments

To meet the shortage of school-owned instruments, the college has purchased for the Music Department one "King" E<sub>h</sub> alto saxophone, one "Olds" B<sub>h</sub> tenor saxophone, and two "York" upright, bell-front E<sub>h</sub> alto horns.

The new alto horns will replace two much-used old horns, and the new saxophones will enable two more players to enter the band.

Miss Bryant Sings At Chapel

Miss Joyce Bryant, former night club entertainer, now Bible worker from Washington, D. C., presented a short program of sacred song at chapel on October 29.

In his introduction of the guest singer, Elder Reynolds, editor of Message Magazine, told briefly of Miss Bryant's return to the church after a decade of night club singing. She has now dedicated her life and talents wholly to God's cause.

She sang two spirituals, "City Called Heaven," and "Lord, I Want to Be a Christian," and a third number, "His Eye Is on the Sparrow."
