Classes Combine for Spring Picnic

Two hundred twenty-five students attended the "combined" class picnic held May 16 at Shelby Park. All classes—from academy freshmen to college seniors—were represented at this spring picnic, which took the place of the traditional class picnics held at different times in the spring.

The various classes had charge of the menu and transportation and recreation throughout the day.

Regardless of irregular work programs, all students were able to participate in some of the day's activities, as the college bus left the campus every hour throughout the day, beginning at 7:00 a.m., and also returning to the campus at hourly intervals.

The morning activities included a softball game from ten to twelve o'clock, played by volunteer players. The final score was 16 to 15. The grand event of the day was a baseball game played in the afternoon from one-thirty till four o'clock by chosen teams of academy and college students. It ended with a score of seven to four in favor of the college team.

Other games engaged in during the day included volleyball, croquet, and badminton.

Evangelism Class Holds Week of Tent Meetings

Planning and conducting a series of tent meetings was the spring quarter project of the college Evangelism class. The meetings were held May 1-6, and the tent was pitched on Gallatin Road between Eastland and Stratton avenues.

Members of the class pitched the tent, constructed a platform with velvet curtain hangings and a backstage painting of the New Jerusalem by Victor Rivera, and seated the tent with 150 chairs.

Victor's 40-foot-long and four-foot-tall announcement along the Gallatin Road side, with the flood lights playing on it, made a striking advertisement. Alex Rojas, Mrs. Stearns, Mrs. Gulley, Esther Kowalski, and Lydia Zajt were responsible for producing 3000 handbill invitations, which were distributed on the Sabbath preceding the opening of the meetings.

A Conn electric organ was lent to the group by Nashville's Period Furniture Company at no charge. Flowerland florists furnished free flowers for the opening night. The H. G. Hill Real Estate Company gave, free of charge, a choice site for the crusade, and the city officials issued a permit in record time.

Those attending were welcomed at the entrance by the hostess, Pauline Sanders, and the host, Alfred Fujita. Mary Lou Sullins was at the organ, and the music, including a vigorous song service, was led by Verne Miller. A health talk, given by a nurse in uniform, preceded the message of the evening. Also a special music number always preceded the evening talk. On two occasions the films "One in Twenty Thousand" and "The Crucifixion" were shown.

On the last night of the meetings, the service was climaxed by a spontaneous testimony meeting, at which some twenty persons, both church members and non-church members, testified of the Lord's goodness.

As a result of the meetings, a baptismal class is being held on Sabbath afternoons, in which three are studying further the truths they heard at the meetings.

The advertising committee, which was responsible for announcements on two TV stations and two radio stations and in the Tennessean were Pat Adkins, Esther Kowalski, and Verne Miller.

The special music committee included Barbara Hill, Carolyn Holder, Dorothy Graham, Wilma Keller, and Verne Miller.

The organization committee members were Kay Forrester and Charles MacMillan. The class secretary was Evelyn Thomas.

Choir Gives Concerts At Three Academies

The Madison College Choir, under the direction of Francis R. Cossentine, and accompanied by George Walper, made a tour of several academies during the weekend of May 6-8.

The itinerary included a picnic dinner in the Smoky Mountains, which were in their full dress of spring beauty at this time of the year.

At the choir's first performance, on Friday evening at Fletcher Academy, Fletcher, North Carolina, Laura Mae Slattery and Juanita Sossong sang solos and the male quartette gave several numbers in addition to the numbers by the choir. These singers also participated at the other programs.

On Sabbath morning, at Mt. Pisgah Academy, Candler, North Carolina, the choir participated in the church service and gave a special program in the afternoon.

Field Trips

Many and varied have been the field trips most of us have been privileged to participate in during this school year. We as students appreciate the interest which our teachers take in giving us a broader view of what we read in our textbooks. The article below is a description of one of the dozens of trips students have taken this year.

Our location near Nashville, know as "The Athens of the South," and in a state rich in Civil War lore, makes us especially fortunate. Visiting educational institutions, museums, battlefields, homes for the aged, the crippled, and the blind enlarges our vision for service for God and man.

Class Attends Art Festival

Friday the thirteenth was a lucky day for the members of the Elementary Art Composition Class and their instructor, Mr. Victorio Rivera, who enjoyed a visit to the Tennessee State Museum and to the Nashville Arts Festival at the Parthenon.

At the Tennessee State Museum the group drew inspiration from the famous portraits of great men of Tennessee and historical paintings of this state, painted by the famous artist, Gilbert Gaul, and insured for the huge sum of $60,000.

The visit to the Fourth Annual Nashville Arts Festival, Fine Arts Competition, at the Parthenon, was a challenging one. The exhibits included paintings, architectural and free hand drawings, graphic arts, ceramics, metal smithing, and textiles. The photographic display, festival of flora, horticulture, children's art carnival, and the children's art exhibit were of special interest to the class.

The film entitled "Face of Lincoln" was an inspiration to the class. In this film the sculptor, Merrell Goze, tells his story of Lincoln as he molds his "egg-shaped mass of clay" into an amazing likeness of young Lincoln. As he continues the biography through a series of delightful anecdotes, the face ages. . . . until finally the assassin's bullet ends the story.

Delta Nu Zeta

Wednesday, April 27, the girls enjoyed a hike to the river. For a picnic supper they enjoyed Madison weiners, cake, punch, potato chips, and apples. This is just one of the social functions of the girls' club, and the new officers for this quarter still have many good things in store, for instance, swimming and camping.

Two committees have been formed—a program and a food committee, so that something will be prepared for each time the club meets. On the food committee are Sally Lazalier, Lorraine Fields, Rebecca Crittenden, Carolyn Holder, and Carol Hilgers. On the program committee are Karylyn Hudson, Lois Bullock, Kay Bramble, Rose Walden, and Loraye Long.

The girls really enjoyed club meeting on May 9, when a Truth or Consequences program was presented. When those called upon missed the questions Sally Lazalier asked, they were asked to perform amusing and unusual consequences. Betty Brooks, a probie, had the privilege of drinking from an unusual type of pitcher. Carol Smith sat on the dunce stool, with an umbrella over her head, all during the program. Becky Crittenden worked at scrubbing the rostrum with a toothbrush.

The new Delta Nu Zeta officers are as follows: Barbara Pickel, president; Shirley Zinke, vice-president; Betty Brooks, treasurer; Pauline Romo, assistant treasurer; Neva Milliman, parliamentarian; Kay Forrester, song leader; Carolyn Holder, assistant song leader; Carol Burchard, pianist; Darlene Closser, assistant pianist.

One night about midnight Maloa Alexander and Correne Bunch heard someone crying, "Oh, no, oh, no!" They were alarmed, of course, and wondered whether someone was being attacked. Upon investigating, however, they found that it was only Gladys Ocampo having a nightmare.

Carole Franklin and Carol Cantrell enjoyed visits from their parents last weekend. The Franklins came from Washington, D.C., where Carole's father is employed at the Esda Sales, of the General Conference, and where her mother is a nurse. The Cantrells came from Fletcher Academy, where Mr. Cantrell is farm manager.

A new arrival! Lila Ring is the proud owner of a new Studebaker Hawk.

Phi Mu Sigma

Phi Mu Sigma Forum has been making use of the good spring weather we have had. Recently the Forum held two worship periods around bonfires in the recreation area. Ed Barton, our vice-president and social committee chairman, was in charge of the meetings.

Elder Coon was the guest speaker at our first outdoor meeting. Before and after he gave his inspiring talk, the boys, accompanied by Joe Fields and his accordion, sang several hymns.

At the second meeting, the Delta Nu Zeta members were guests of the men. Again Joe Fields accompanied us as we sang. The guest speaker for the evening was Mr. Stearns.

Where does it end? Maybe there is no end. I'm talking about Phil Hill's collections. Among other things, Phil collects stamps, paintings, rocks and minerals, fish, old books, and antiques.

Speaking of collectors, Jim Merrifield has quite a collection of model cars, and his roommate, David Grogg, has a smaller collection along with a stamp collection.

David Lima evidently collects MV honors and diplomas from Bible correspondence courses. He must have at least eight certificates and diplomas displayed among the many MV honors on one wall in his room.

Former Workers Will Open Clinic in Iran

A letter from Mr. and Mrs. Ivan Peacock, 111 Pahlavi Ave., Tehran, Iran, tells of their endeavors to build up the physical therapy work in that field. Mr. Peacock was formerly the head of the Physical Therapy Department at Madison.

Concerning their new clinic, he writes:

"The clinic is to be a physical therapy and rehabilitation clinic only. That means no hydrotherapy as a major modality. I plan to use fomentations, paraffin baths, and whirlpool, but the rest will be exercises, crutch walking, muscle reeducation, massage, etc. Several doctors are interested in our project and have promised to send us patients. . . .

"Hydrotherapy is considered the treatment of quacks because there are many uneducated persons here who make high claims for it, such as mending broken bones and curing deficiency diseases. What makes our hearts sad is that parents will deliberately deform their children so they can show their deformity and beg. There are laws against this, but still it goes on. There is a great need for physical therapy here."

The group enjoyed a picnic lunch in the beautiful surroundings of nature. They came to give a blessing to others, and in so doing they received a blessing. They left with a prayer that God continue his rich blessing upon the work of Mrs. Grow and her helpers.

U.S. History Class Visits War Shrines

The United States History class recently visited Fort Donnellson and "Surrender House," of Civil War fame, where General U. S. Grant became famous.

At the fort, much has been restored to give it the actual appearance it had during Civil War days.

It was at this strategic fort, which guarded the route to Nashville, that the Confederates surrendered to the yet unknown U. S. Grant. When Confederate General Buckner asked for terms, Grant made his famous reply, "Unconditional and Immediate Surrender," which gave him his nickname, "Unconditional Surrender" (U. S.) Grant.

This victory at Ft. Donnellson, the one at Shiloh two months later, and the third at Vicksburg just 18 months later were three providences that showed that God had His protection over the union of the nation that, for nearly 100 years now, has stood united to champion liberty and freedom for all.

Their last appointment was at Little Creek, Concord, Tennessee, for a Saturday night concert. They spent the night here and returned to Madison after breakfast on Sunday morning.

According to the choir members, the trip was profitable and enjoyable. They extend thanks to Mr. Robert Kunau, their resourceful and genial bus driver, who did much to make the trip enjoyable.

Loan Fund

Many students may not know that there exists at Madison College a student loan fund, which was established last year through the generosity of a friend of Madison College. Since its beginning more than 175 loans have been made to students.

Loans are made on a month-to-month basis, with a nominal fee of 25 cents being charged for each loan regardless of the amount borrowed. Students borrow from the fund on their honor, and as they repay their loans, the money is again available for other students who need temporary financial assistance. No student with a worthy need has yet been denied aid from the student loan fund.

Student loans are made at the Registrar's Office. Mr. Lynd announces that as the loan fund increases, he hopes to be able to make loans that will be payable after graduation. At present the fund is not large enough to accommodate such a long-range program of repayment.

TOT's Spend Sabbath At Children's Home

The Teachers of Tomorrow club members made their annual visit to Mrs. Julia Grow's Home for Handicapped Children on Sabbath, May 14.

Bob Kohler was Sabbath school superintendent. Mrs. Harter, club sponsor, was pianist. Harry Fujita led the song service, and how the children did sing! One young lady in the group has been blind from birth, and it was because of her that Mrs. Grow received the inspiration to establish a home for children such as she. Lyn Taylor gave the mission report, and for special music Irving Titsworth sang "Heartaches." The lesson study was conducted by Mrs. Harter. The kindergarten class was

Juniors and Seniors Picnic at Ky. Lake

Bright and early at 3:00 a.m. Sunday morning, May 15, the seniors and the juniors loaded the bus and were soon on their way to Kentucky Lake, where the seniors were the guests of the juniors at their annual picnic.

Although the sun made a quick exit upon their arrival, a few brave souls enjoyed swimming, but most of the morning was spent in boating.

About noon the hungry group made their way to the picnic area, where the delicious lunch of potato salad, baked beans, burger patties, buns, punch, and cake was served.

During the afternoon the sun came out, and those who wanted sun tans were happy. There were always some in the crowd who had to splash cold water, much to the annoyance of the rest.

When supper time came, the group roasted marshmallows and weiners over an open fire.

As the weary, sunburned group filled the bus once more, another junior-senior picnic had successfully come to an end.

PRISCILLA BRAMBLE

Patriotic Program Traces Country's History in Music, Speech, Drama

The annual spring program of the academy, "This Is My Country," was given in the chapel on Saturday night, May 14, to a capacity audience.

The program traced the progress of this country from its discovery down through the Revolutionary, Civil, and First and Second World Wars.

The Girls' Ensemble, the Academy Girls' Trio, a mixed quartette, the Cornet Trio, the Boys' Chorus, the Girls' Chorus, and the 68-voice Academy Choir were among the groups featured.

As the strains of "This Is My Country" were sung by the Girls' Chorus those in the audience felt it is good to be an American, both a privilege and a responsibility, and rose to their feet in tribute as a large United States flag formed on the stage before their eyes and as the organ filled the chapel with the strains, always stirring, of "The Star-spangled Banner," bringing a memorable evening to a close.

The young musicians, under the direction of Mrs. Pat Silver, showed the results of many hours of hard work and careful rehearsal. The work of the speech choir and coordination of the various parts of the program into a smooth-running continuity were excellently directed by Mrs. James Stearns, with the able assistance of Mr. Stearns, who saw to it that the right performers came on-stage at the right time. Mrs. Robert Kunau was responsible for the special costumes worn by Miss Columbia, Uncle Sam, the Statue of Liberty, and Abraham Lincoln, and also for the beautiful flag with its circle of thirteen stars, carried by the Fife and Drum Corps representing the Spirit of '76.

Dickman, Senior Men Are Good Players

An energetic group of seniors piled into the school bus recently and went to play miniature golf. Mr. Dickman, with his usual genial smile, drove the bus and turned out to be one of the better players.

Lucky for the seniors, they had free tickets, which were given them while they were in New Orleans on their recent senior trip.

As usual, Bill Bass and Bill Eddings stood out in front, as they always do when it comes to almost any type of sports.

RUTH GILL

The beautiful stage setting was designed by Alex Rojas. The accompanists were Mary Lou Sullins and Darlene Closser.

The weary and thirsty performers were served lemonade and cookies in the Nutrition Laboratory by President and Mrs. Sandborn after the concert.

Music Notes

The Academy Choir gave a program Friday night, May 6, at the First Church in Nashville, to an appreciative audience at their weekly MV service. Mr. Bob Silver is one of the MV leaders of the First Church.

The Academy Girls' Trio sang "I Am an American" at the banquet of the Women's Club in the Andrew Jackson Hotel, May 10.

A promising academy mixed quartette is made up of Claudia Kunau, soprano; Sylvia Mitzelfelt, alto; Jackie Cothren, tenor; and Bill Bass, bass.

Friday evening, May 20, the Academy Choir presented a sacred program at the Madison Boulevard Church. Special numbers besides the full choir numbers were given by the Girls' Ensemble and the Girls' Trio.

Sabbath afternoon the Girls' Ensemble and eight boys from the choir favored the Ridgetop vesper hour with another sacred program. The Girls' Trio, Rowena Felt, and David Martin gave special numbers.
