Madisonian Has New Staff Members

Wayne Hayes
Editor

Edgar Aitken
Bus. Mgr.

Wayne Hayes was appointed editor-in-chief of the MADISONIAN and Edgar Aitken business manager at a meeting of the executive committee of the ASMC on October 3. Both of these appointments fill vacancies on the staff.

Wayne Hayes, a junior business major from Gainesville, Florida, is well qualified for his new office. Working with him on the editorial staff will be two associate editors and a full staff of reporters.

Mr. Hayes resides on the campus with his wife and two small sons. He is bookkeeper in the Patients' Account office of the sanitarium and hospital.

Edgar Aitken, sophomore business major from Old Hickory, Tennessee, will carry both business and advertising responsibilities of the paper. "Jim's" interest in the field of business is a guarantee that he will put his best into the MADISONIAN. He is employed at the Engineering Department of the college.

Pageant Climaxes Convention

Autumn Festival Features New Students

BY JAN NATIONS

"Autumn Festival," the ASMC New Talent Program, brought an evening of entertainment on Saturday night, October 8.

Many older students portrayed their talents, but the audience was especially interested in seeing some newer talent, such as that shown by Dana Dale, Margaret Ridler, the Ward twins, and many others.

The talent consisted of vocal solos and ensembles, instrumental numbers, readings, and skits. Victor Rivera also favored with some novelty drawings and a beautiful autumn picture in chalk.

Carol Taylor was chairman of the program committee, and Mrs. Watson was the sponsor. Much work went into the planning of the evening's entertainment, which was enjoyed by a full house.

Immediately following the program a candlelight service was held in the cafeteria for Classes

A and B couples. Those who attended enjoyed punch and cookies in the atmosphere of pretty Hawaiian music.

SMC Musicians to Present Program

Dorothy Evans Ackerman, Don Crook, and Mabel Wood, from the Music Department at Southern Missionary College, will present a varied program of vocal music on Saturday night, October 22, in the Helen Funk Assembly Hall.

Mrs. Ackerman, formerly of the Madison College Music Department, needs no introduction here. Many are familiar with her Chapel Record recordings. Mr. Crook is the brother of Stewart Crook, an alumnus and former dean of men at Madison.

The Golden Anniversary Convention of Southern Self-supporting Workers, held October 13-16, was climaxed on Saturday night by a commemorative program, "Yesterday, Today, Tomorrow."

In song, story, and illustration the program paid tribute to the founders of Madison College, to those who have served fifty years, more and less, and to all those who have gone out to establish small missionary institutions throughout the Southland and elsewhere. The last part of the program was a challenge and was dedicated to those who are preparing "For a Greater Work Tomorrow."

Among other features, the program presented an old-fashioned chorus, panel discussions, instrumental numbers, pictures, and readings. Mr. Felix Lorenz, Jr., was the narrator.

Many committees made the program possible and contributed to the beautiful platform decorations. The program committee consisted of Mrs. Gilbert Johnson, chairman, Mrs. George Thornton, Mrs. Marion King, Mrs. James Blair, and Mrs. William C. Sandborn.

Another outstanding program of the convention was the experience meeting on Friday evening, when representatives from the units told of the ways the Lord had led during the past year in directing their schools.

Guest speakers for the convention were Dr. Ruth Murdock, from Andrews University, and Dr. Philip Chen, well known nutritionist, a former teacher of Madison College. Dr. Murdock's talks on Christian education and Dr. Chen's on nutrition emphasized the importance of carrying out the principles given to Seventh-day Adventists concerning education and diet.

Field Day to Be Held on Nov. 1

Ingathering Field Day, formerly announced for October 19, has been postponed till November 1.

The Ingathering planning committee announces that on this date 36 cars will go out for all day and 12 to 14 for half a day to the towns and rural areas of Middle

It was Campus Beautification Day this year instead of Clean-up Day, for the campus didn't need cleaning up. Academy and college students and teachers donned work clothes and trimmed hedges, planted shrubbery, prepared flower beds, cut weeds and grass, and otherwise put finishing touches on nearly every spot on the campus.

A New Staff

As this MADISONIAN goes to press, the new editor, Wayne Hayes, is busy organizing his staff. He and his associate editors, Elaine Ferris and Paul Eirich, and both new and old reporters are laying plans to give Madison College a school paper that will be the voice of the students. These staff members ask for your cooperation in making this year's MADISONIAN the best in its history. Your contributions of news and suggestions for a better paper will be welcomed.

Up Down Campus And The

By BERTHA WAY KING

October's bright sun filtered through the morning fog showing busy students going about daily tasks. . . . In the trees noisy starlings gathered and some of them splashed in the bird bath by the hospital. And spry squirrels hunted acorns for winter's storehouse. . . . David White wandered around the Pharmacy with P & A study cards in his hand. . . . Esther Perales doesn't care for nurses' inspection day on a rainy day, "For how can you keep shoes white?" . . . Another nurse, Phyllis Watts, has a solution for eating okra with ease—cut it lengthwise and it will slide down our throat. . . . At the convention program Saturday night Henry Scoggins had a bit of trouble giving the four calves away to Lester Dickman for the Harbert Hills school. The largest calf refused to walk on stage, but did appear in a reclining position. Henry promised Mr. Dickman "soy milk" in the future from the soy-bean-fed calves. . . . If you are looking for the diminutive nurse, Thelma Hodges, nowadays, you'll find her in the Diet Office at the hospital. Judy King carries knitting around with her as her nursing task while in Occupational Therapy. . . . Betty Brooks' surprise birthday cake was good to the last crumb. . . . A work fitting well with Pauline Ward's last name is that of Ward Secretary on Medical Wing. . . . Paul Eirich volunteered his song-directing talent at the Dupontonia Chapel. Along with him were other young people, and plans are for a group of students to help out in Sabbath school work twice a month. . . . The Fog of Doubt may enshroud the Earth, but not so where the Light of Truth filters through when young people volunteer.

Down on the Farm

Under the direction of Mr. Jim Herman, head of Industrial Education and acting chairman of the Agriculture Committee, a face-lifting has been going on down at the farmyard. The farm shop, long a blemish, has been removed as has the old fire house that was adjacent, and the area has been graded.

One end of the long machine shed has been converted to a farm shop and much obsolete horse-drawn equipment sold off to make room for the usable equipment.

Long-range plans call for further improvement in this long-neglected area, including a new modern farm shop, a new milking parlor separate from the barn, and landscape improvements.

As I See It

By ELAINE FERRIS

You know, election time is a time when our true personalities really become known. Even the "donkey-eyed Democrats" and the "elephantened Republicans" show their true animal spirits, and rightly so.

Basically there are two schools of thought. First of all, there are those who are "parties-regardless" voters, who vote strictly Democratic or Republican, no matter who the candidate may be. Second, there are the "nominees-if-you-please" voters who vote for the man of their choice regardless of the party he represents.

Actually there is also a third group, who can be the most influential. These do not fall into a school of thinking, as they haven't thought. They are termed the "undecideds." Not until they enter the booth and pull the lever do they know for whom they are going to vote. It would be well for these people to take a little time out and decide intelligently for which party they wish to cast their vote.

Here are the views of a few Madison students on the soon-coming election:

Henry Bedford: "I believe the main issue has not come up as yet. No doubt it will arise during the closing weeks. It seems a Protestant change will have to come about. Religion, no doubt, will play a major role and it is inevitable. The majority of the public are easily swayed, and will vote accordingly."

Carol Hilgers: "I think it will be a close race—neck-to-neck, in fact. The winning issue, in my opinion, will be labor; therefore the candidate stressing this issue will most likely win."

Margaret Woodruff: "We don't know how closing events are coming about, as they will come so gradually. Catholic or Protestant, it will make little difference, as this is a crucial time in history and prophecy must come to pass."

Mrs. Helen Smith: "I think it is the duty of every Adventist to vote in this election. Some people are too complacent about voting, and they don't seem to realize the seriousness of it. I don't vote for a man or a party, but for what the man stands for."

Velma Robinson: "As Madison is so shut-in, it is difficult to keep abreast of what is happening. I would like to be kept up to date on the latest news being made. Really, though, I think it is everyone's duty to vote for his choice."

Paul Steen: "I feel that religion is of major importance in this election. Also the UN at present is rising to a front position. Russia is trying to create harassment by causing trouble at this time, for example, in the Congo and in Cuba, and is trying to oust Hammarskjöld."

Sallie Lazalier: "Actually, I don't know too much about the presiding issues. I think most people tend to base their opinions on hearsay rather than on actual facts. Voters of this type would do well to remain at home, come election day."

Yes, the above survey shows that the Madison students are thinking about the election. In order to vote intelligently two things must be considered. First, the foundation of the party and its criteria, and next, the man chosen to represent the party and his qualifications for the job. Unless we have definite convictions on our own beliefs and a knowledge of the pertinent issues, we have demolished our right to vote, and thus destroyed the "political protocol" laid by our forefathers.

Remember, YOUR vote is important. As Goethe once said, "The smallest hair casts its shadow."

Students Present Heifers to Unit

Bill Kanfield, Dave Lewis, and Larry Van Uder bring "Bessie" to chapel as the students raise money to buy her and three other heifers for the Harbert Hills School. In the rear is "Cowboy" Dr. Bottsford, who sang the praises of "Bessie the Heifer."

Madison College and Academy students have presented four registered Jersey heifers to the school at Harbert Hills, near Savannah, Georgia.

The project was launched at chapel on Wednesday, October 12, by ASMC President Henry Scoggins.

"Bessie" and three younger calves were presented by Mr. Scoggins to Principal L. L. Dickman of Harbert Hills at the Saturday night program of the self-supporting convention.

Group Assist in Dupontonia S. S.

Nine college and academy students presented the Sabbath school program at the Dupontonia Church on October 8, Sabbath school Visitors' Day.

After a brief song service led by Paul Eirich, the Dupontonia superintendent introduced the group and turned the program over to Lucy Courter, acting superintendent for the day.

Those participating in the program were Charlene Ward, scripture reading and prayer; Mary Alice Griffin, secretary's report; Esther Kowalski, mission story; Robert Hansen, lesson study. Special music included a trumpet solo by David Martin, accompanied by Ruth Beale, and a vocal solo by Carol Watson, who was accompanied by Ruth Gill.

Ag Club Organizes

The Agriculture Club met for its first meeting of the new school year on Saturday evening, October 1. Members enjoyed a Veja-link and marshmallow roast near the river. Following the supper games were enjoyed at the home of Mr. Wilhelmsen, club sponsor.

The Agriculture Club is a curriculum club that is open to anyone interested in this field. At least one field trip is enjoyed each year, and the meetings are

Campus Chatter

By PRISCILLA BRAMBLE

Busy, busy, busy are the students of MCA, since this is the end of the six weeks. . . . Too bad the bus was unable to make the trip to Chattanooga for the American history class last Monday. They still plan to go, and now they are really anticipating a good time. . . . Did you notice the rising sun on David Breedlove's tie? Very pretty, David. . . . The academy girls were thrilled Saturday night when the Academy Cowpokes sang some favorite Western ballads. Eddie Post accompanied them on the guitar. . . . Did that cupcake with pink frosting that you spoke of Saturday night taste good, Donnie Watson? . . . Have you smelled an abundance of men's after-shave lotion? Surinder Deol has been around with his hypodermic syringe filled with after-shave lotion. . . . Clean-up day, three of the senior girls—Donna, Prissy, Judy—showed skill as they maneuvered the pick-up full of tree limbs over the muddy road to the dump. . . . As some of the girls have found out, tight jeans and strenuous exercises don't mix in phys. ed.

Everybody Works to Beautify Campus

A glance at all the academy students clad in work clothes was evidence that they were ready to take part in "Campus Beautification Day" on October 5. Cloudy skies and occasional sprinkles did not keep them from their assigned tasks.

Groups were designated to such areas as the food factory and garage, the peach orchard and swimming pool, the poultry farm, Wasiota Court, and the farm.

An observer might have gotten the idea that a reverse-order had been given, but it was proved that boys ARE capable of washing windows and cleaning dorm halls, and girls DO know how to hoe around trees, clean road banks, carry rocks, load and unload tree limbs, and even work around the chicken farm.

Everyone had an enjoyable morning, and at 11:30 the treat came when all proceeded to the cafeteria for a well-earned, delicious dinner.

Party Helps All Get Acquainted

The Saturday night of October 1 was set aside as the night for everyone in the academy to get acquainted. At the beginning of the week a committee of students had been chosen to plan the evening.

To begin with, there were games in which everyone participated. Then came some still more lively relay races. The balloon stomp, in which the object was to keep the balloon tied around your ankle from being burst, was noisy but fun. The last part of the evening was spent in a relaxing march with very pretty music. Mr. Keplinger led the marches.

At the end of the march all thought the evening was over and bade one another farewell. But they were met with a pleasant surprise—refreshments—as they walked out the door. After punch and cookies they did go home, with a pleasant memory of the evening lingering in their minds.

The committee that planned the evening consisted of Dotty Wilhelm, Priscilla Bramble, Judy Ball, Bobby Bowes, George Smothermon, David Martin, and Jim Herman. Mr. Keplinger was their adviser.

Girls' Ensemble Is Organized

The Academy Girls' Ensemble is busy working on a repertoire. This year the group is made up of the following: Sopranos: Claudia Kunau, Donna Chalmers, Teresa Patterson, Arlene Blackburn; Second sopranos: Sylvia Mitzelfelt, Juanita Kunau, Gerry Schlenker, Ann Houser; Altos: Eva Gill, Joann Malmede, Jo Ann Young. The group is directed by Mrs. Silver.

Freshmen Visit Fletcher Academy

By EDNA BRYANT

Thirty-five freshmen from the Rural Sociology class boarded the faithful old Madison College bus on October 7 and headed for Fletcher Academy for the weekend.

This was the first of three trips to self-supporting schools to be made by the Rural Sociology class.

Most of the freshmen in this group had never visited Fletcher Academy, which is located on a thousand-acre farm just three miles from Fletcher, North Carolina. The tree-covered mountains surrounding the campus were beautiful in their autumn colors. Some students were evidently not used to climbing mountains, for they huffed and puffed as they went from the cafeteria up the hill to the assembly hall.

The Week of Prayer was just ending. Elder Strickland, former president of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference, held the Friday night and Sabbath services. Many answered his appeal for reconsecration by rededicating their lives to the Master.

The Madison College freshmen were in charge of the MV meeting Sabbath afternoon. They presented a beautiful program on the second coming of Christ.

Those participating in the program were Pat Batchelor, Roger Bradley, Edna Bryant, Phyllis Gross, Fred Hooberry, Shirley Howell, Richard Kohler, Wayne McNutt, Jan Reese, Evelyn Reiber, Charlotte Smith, Ralph Taylor, Irving Titsworth, Terry Troy, and Herbert Weise.

They were entertained Saturday night by Bob Brown and his Science Circus, which was a fascinating program of science stunts.

Sunday morning Mr. Cantrell, farm superintendent, took the visitors on a hayride tour of the campus, which included a trip to the apple orchard and the Pathfinder House up in the woods. The only near calamity occurred when Charlotte Smith lost her billfold.

The trip home included a look at Mt. Pisgah Academy, a tour through the Smokies, and a stop at Cherokee, where they saw Big Chief himself.

The group were impressed with this progressive self-supporting school, with its well-kept buildings and grounds and its productive farm. They thoroughly enjoyed the trip and thank Mr. Keplinger, who drove the bus, and Mr. Forrester for making it a success.

Nurses Receive Jr. and Sr. Stripes

Four senior nurses and eleven junior nurses received stripes last week indicating that they had reached another milestone in their training.

Those receiving senior stripes are Margarita Casillas, Nancy Criswell, Sylvia Kaldahl, and Gene Sellars.

Those receiving junior stripes are Lily Cabansag, Phyllis Campbell, Dorothy Chase, Edith Durocher, Thelma Hodges, Laura Holly, Lorna Holly, Faye King, Patricia Mendenhall, Esther Perales, and Rebecca Ravenell.

Morris Reports on Summer's Research

Professor Leslie V. Morris, head of the Chemistry Department, gave a report at a recent faculty meeting on his summer's research at Penn State University, where he assisted Dr. Mary L. Willard in a research program. The research concerned the occurrence of stereoisomers of the 2,4-dinitrophenylhydrazine derivatives of some diketones.

These reactions, Mr. Morris says, are being studied in relation to the use of these compounds in analytical work, for instance in the clinical laboratory in the detection of certain hormones in the blood. Mr. Morris succeeded in making seven derivatives for the first time in history and added to the list of known organic compounds which already number over a million.
