Elder Dopp is Speaker for Week of Prayer

Elder W. E. Dopp, MV secretary of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference, will be the speaker during the Spring Week of Prayer to be held March 24-31.

Commenting on the theme which he has chosen to stress—practical godliness—Elder Dopp says:

"Believing that God's way is the best way for today and that the greatest challenge facing young people is to know God, we are looking forward with anticipation to this week of spiritual emphasis. International relations and current events add emphasis to the importance of vital religion."

Among the topics Elder Dopp plans to present are "Prayer," "Holiness," "Space Travel," "The Return of the Lord," and "Conversion."

As usual, students will furnish special music at the meetings and also have charge of the opening and closing features of the services.

Work at Cave Springs Is Progressing

Mrs. Julia Grow, operator of Cave Springs Home for Handicapped Children, was a campus visitor on Wednesday, March 1. Speaking at the regular one o'clock chapel period, Mrs. Grow told of the marvelous workings of God in carrying on the work at Cave Springs. She told how large and small sums of money come in from unexpected sources, many times in direct answer to prayer.

"The needs at Cave Springs are many, and there is never enough help to do everything," Mrs. Grow said. She told how the efforts of those who are laboring there have been blessed.

It was heartening to hear from Mrs. Grow that Dr. Sandborn is working at present with the group at Cave Springs and will be helping with the building program.

She also expressed her sincere appreciation for the many visits of students from Madison and for their help on the days they have spent in work.

Seventeen Nurses to Get Pins on March 25

Seventeen graduating nurses will receive their pins at a pinning ceremony on March 25. These pins will indicate that the nurses are completing the work required for graduate nurses and are candidates for the title R.N. upon passing the State Board examinations. Elder H. T. Anderson, college church pastor, will be the speaker at the ceremony.

Billy Graham Film To Be Shown March 23

"The Shadow of the Boomerang," the latest Billy Graham evangelistic film, will be shown in the chapel on March 23 at 7:30 p.m.

The film is a full-length color picture based on native and animal life in Africa. The sub-title describes it thus: "Man against God—in a powerful story of raw, human emotions that spans two continents."

Watch for further announcements.

Eugen Domke, industrial education major from Canada, was elected 1961-62 president of the Associated Students of Madison College at the election held on Monday, March 6. David Martin was elected vice-president; Margaret Ridler, secretary; David Grogg, treasurer; David Reams, parliamentarian; Judy Ball, editor of Cumberland Echoes.

The voting, which took place during the afternoon hours, was preceded by campaign speeches at chapel for the respective candidates. Robert Kohler was in charge of the platform, showing pictures of those running for office before the speeches were given.

Eugen Domke, president-elect, is from Revelstoke, British Columbia. An industrial education major, he plans to teach in Canada after he graduates. His activities include being president of the sophomore class, parliamentarian of the ASMC, sergeant at arms of the SNEA, former treasurer of the freshman class, and former president of Phi Mu Sigma.

David Martin, vice-president, graduates in June from Madison College Academy, where he has attended since his freshman year. During these four years he has been active in school life. Past and present offices include being president of his senior and junior classes, MV leader, vice-president of the Nature Club, member of the choir and the Boys' Ensemble, Sabbath school superintendent and teacher. He plans some day to be a surgeon.

Margaret Ridler, secretary, is from Greenfield, Iowa. After beginning her college career at Union College, she came to Madison. She is social committee chairman for the freshman class, a Sabbath school teacher, and an active member of the orphanage band. Margaret plans to be a church school teacher.

David Grogg, treasurer, is from Springfield, Ohio. A business major, he plans to be a Certified Public Accountant. At the close of this, his second year here, he finishes the secretarial course. He is secretary-treasurer of Phi Mu Sigma, president and treasurer of the Business Club, and a Sabbath school teacher.

David Reams, parliamentarian, came to Madison College after his father was appointed assistant pastor of the Madison College Church. He graduates from the academy in June and begins his ASMC office as a college freshman. He plans to be a laboratory technician. This year he is pastor of his senior class, president of the Academy Forum, and a member of the Campus Life Committee.

Judy Ball, editor of the Cumberland Echoes, comes from Port Deposit, Maryland. She graduates from the academy this year and will enter college next fall with plans to major in English and be a teacher. Past and present offices she has held and activities in which she has engaged include vice president of the freshman and senior classes, secretary of her junior class, Sabbath school superintendent, academy MV leader, associate editor of the annual, associate editor of Hi-School Hi-Lites, secretary of the Academy Forum, and member of the academy choir.

EDITORIAL

In the last two issues of the MADISONIAN we have presented to the student body letters which have endeavored to point out apparent reasons for lack of interest in the ASMC. Certainly we recognize that there is wisdom in a multitude of counselors, and once again we present the views of a student, this time the president-elect of the association for 1961-62. We solicit still further suggestions.

Dear Editor:

I am aware that the students here at Madison seem to lack interest in the student association. I suggest that the trouble with the student body here is overwork. We are plain "fagged out." After eight to ten hours of manual labor, plus four to six hours of class work and study per day, the student doesn't care whether there is an active association or not.

The work program must go on, certainly. So also the study program. However, I believe the situation could be improved somewhat.

As was mentioned in the last paper, we here at Madison are trying to "keep up with the Joneses." What other colleges, three and four times as large as Madison, are doing, we are doing. We have committees by the dozen, we have clubs by the gross, we have activity piled upon activity. After awhile there is a breaking point, and the whole thing folds up under the pressure.

We have too many brands in the fire and not a large enough fire to heat them to a practical temperature. I suggest eliminating some of the brands to leave enough heat for the others. Getting rid of all inactive clubs and committees would leave us leaders to lead out in the more important phases of the ASMC, such as the MADISONIAN and CUMBERLAND ECHOES. Eugen Domke

Up Down Campus And The

By BERTHA WAY KING

A wintry March wind whistled high over the campus. . . . Silvery raindrops and soft snowflakes played hide and seek with spring sunshine. . . . A playful cool breeze reminded Elenia Portalatin to put on her nurse's cape. . . . Sally Lazalier got all "ducked out" for spring during her recent visit to the beauty parlor. . . . "Is it bigger than a Volkswagen?" was the question from Angel Jimenez, when he received an offer from David Kingry to trade his motorcycle for the Volkswagen. . . . The Smith family welcome Theresa Walters, who is missed by the seniors of Senior Home. . . . Chemistry confused Betty Miller into spelling her name "Ytteb Rellim," which confused the teacher in giving the grade, "neetxis". . . . Mouse or mice? Mice or mouses? It is all a question of tails, but to Charlene Ward it is two mouses' tails. . . . Pekinese puppy dogs captured Dean Watson's heart, but she found they cost a pretty penny. . . . A new library assistant, Mrs. Betty Johnson, cheerfully helps the students in their search for the right books. . . . Editor Hayes and Professor Gulley are getting used to "little girls' ways" and enjoying it, too. . . . For the Kasser Kings and the Dr. Mitzelfelts it is another darling granddaughter. . . . Priceless is the picture of a new babe nestled in the mother's arm. . . . Thus spring is borne by sunshine and rain.

Starch and Stripes

The nursing students in Miss Munn's Red Cross class recently taught classes in Home Nursing to the girls in the Home Economics class at the DuPont High School. The Home Economics class presented Miss Munn with an African violet plant and the nursing students with cookies and candy they had made for them.

Mrs. Sylvia Kaldahl and Mrs. Lillian Culpepper recently taught a class in Mother and Baby Care at the Freewill Baptist College in Nashville.

Mrs. Naomi Vaughan, director of Nursing Service, recently returned from a Nursing Service Convention held in Houston, Texas. The theme of the convention was ways in which nurses can improve patient care. Mrs. Vaughan is enthusiastic about the intensive care given patients in the Methodist Hospital in Houston, which she visited.

Also, Mrs. Jennie Vest, Miss Mary Faye Draughon, and Mrs. Edna Face recently attended a convention for nurses sponsored by the American College of Surgeons in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania.

Many pleas for money went home this month to the parents of prospective nursing students planning to enter nursing in March. Three of the girls sent the following letter after learning of the financial requirements:

Dear Home:

Hi! Money, money, money. Three little words will get me through. I'm sending this plea back home to you. A Madison nurse is always nifty, provided she has her hundred and fifty. It sounds like a lot, and to get is a task; but to help me get started is all that I ask.

I'm lucky to be here, and it could cost more; for one hundred and ten I can get on the floor. But there are the socks and there are the shoes. With these things added, what can you lose? In only three years I'll be an R.N. I'll work on my own and pay you back then.

You ask when I need it? This you should know: I get my acceptance when they get their dough. I was called in today and questioned like mad. I was certainly thankful for dear mom and dad. This quarter is over at half past March. Till they get their money, I won't get my starch.

Other than money, things are the same. Study and eat is my middle name. Until there's more news I must bid you farewell. I must go to class—oops! there is the bell.

As ever I am,

Your Roving Reporter

By Elaine Ferris

It has been said that we all belong to a "Mutual Admiration Society," in that there are certain well-known figures whom we all admire and respect. We enjoy reading articles about them in newspapers and magazines. We are interested in learning about their likes and dislikes, their personalities, and their views on various topics. I thought it would be interesting to ask various students what famous personalities, in the limelight at present, they admire most.

Lorna Holly: "My favorite personality is Gary Moore, who is MC of 'I've Got a Secret.' I enjoy watching his friendly manner and easy style in meeting people and making them feel at home on the program."

Jim Aitken: "Paul Harvey, who reports news throughout the day, I admire very much. He has a unique way of bringing the front-page news plus human-interest items with humorous sidelines included."

Carole Franklin: "To me, Morgan Beatty is a most interesting news commentator. He phrases the news items in an ear-catching manner, making ordinary, every-day news happenings sound very interesting."

Raymond Wynn: "I like to read news articles concerning our new President, JFK. It is interesting to me to follow his policies as he is in the public eye from day to day."

Gypsy Lawson: "As far as local personalities go, I like Hudey Crockett because he seems to take such a personal interest in presenting the news to Tennesseans. In the national news, I like to follow Billy Graham. If you have ever heard him, then you will know why!"

The above responses prove that several of our students are keeping abreast of current events through the news. We should all keep ourselves informed on the world situation, at home and abroad. Maybe more of us should make a habit of reading about and listening to our leaders and important people, that we may be able to converse intelligently and objectively when we are with friends who are discussing events of the day.

Faculty-for-a-Day Learn How It's Done

Classes and other regular functions on the campus were carried on as usual on Monday, March 7, although there wasn't a faculty member or executive on the job during the entire day.

The occasion was the annual College Student Faculty Day, a day set aside each year for students to take over the operation of the college. From all outward appearances it was a usual day, with classes, committee meetings, and work going on as usual.

However, inside the buildings, a new group had taken over. Students stood before the classes; student committees wrestled with "problems." For instance, the citizenship committee studied some of the current couple problems of the campus. Frances Keller went to the office of the registrar, Rebecca Culpepper, to register for the Home Appliance Course, but didn't know what appliances were. It seems that where she grew up, they didn't use such things.

Wilma Keller, dean of girls for the day, served refreshments all afternoon in the dean's apartment. Needless to say, she kept the girls in a good mood.

At the one o'clock chapel period, Dean Gene Sellars began the hour with these familiar words: "We have a number of announcements." After the announcements, the time was devoted to campaign speeches for the candidates of the various ASMC offices to be filled at the election that afternoon. Each candidate had a campaign chairman who spoke in his behalf.

It was during these speeches that some hitherto-unknown facts were brought to light. For instance, Maggie Harms' own arrangement of the song "Davy Crockett" clearly showed her unusual singing talent as well as the merits of Terry Troy, the candidate she represented.

And when Verne Miller, campaigning for Sandra Johnson, quietly asked the audience to tell him confidentially whom they really wanted for secretary, he was startled to hear his own name.

By the time Gene Wheeler finished his talk for David Grogg, everyone knew that Dave just wasn't the right man for the job.

After chapel the balloting booth was set up in front of Assembly Hall, and the afternoon was devoted to the elections of the ASMC officers for next year.

Later in the day, the students treated themselves to an hour of films. Afterwards the Student-Teacher Council met and discussed among other things plans for the coming College Day, when visiting seniors from surrounding academies will be guests of Madison College. Then the names of the new officers for 1961-62 were announced.

New ASMC Offices

Very soon the campus will witness the opening of the new ASMC executive offices. They will be something that the students can be proud of. Under the well qualified hand of Efrain Pineiro, a room in Assembly Hall upstairs has undergone a miraculous transformation. The once shabby room has been turned into three rooms that will fill the requirements for offices for the ASMC and the MV Society.

The office rooms are finished with sheetrock and equipped with modern recessed lighting. The conference room has pine paneled walls and celotex ceiling. A large picture window will open out over the campus toward Williams Hall. The floors of the three rooms will be covered with vinyl-asbestos tile, and heat will be provided by thermostatically controlled electric heaters in each room.

"May I help you?" Norma Forrester, director of nurses, asks.

"Yes, you have enough credits to graduate," Dean Sellars tells Lucy Courter.

"This schedule will need to be revised," says Registrar Rebecca Culpepper.

Senior Sketches

Teresa Patterson

This attractive senior girl is five feet, three inches tall and has clear blue eyes and always - neat, reddish-brown hair. She comes to us from the Bluegrass State of Kentucky, but has been here attending a academy since her sophomore year. Teresa has wonderful talent in the field of art. She also has a lovely voice and has previously sung in the Academy Choir and the Girls' Ensemble. She also plays the piano well.

Pet peeve: Insincerity

Hobby: Painting, music, swimming, sewing

Favorite food: Prune cake

Ambition: Commercial teacher or secretary

Sylvia Mitzelfelt

This petite little miss of the Senior Class has lived at Madison for ten years. Therefore the brown eyes, brown hair, and five feet, two and one-half inches of fun and personality which compose Sylvia are well known here. However, she still proudly claims Washington State as her original home. Musically she is very talented: she sings in the College and Academy choirs, Girls' Ensemble, and Girls' Trio and plays French horn in the College Band. She is also editor of the Hi-School Hi-Lites.

Pet peeve: Women drivers who can't make up their minds

Hobby: Music, collecting foreign dolls

Favorite food: Bavarian cream

Ambition: Medical secretary and housewife

Mac McCrillis

"Six foot one, full of fun." That is blond-haired, blue-eyed Mac, who hails from the golden state of California. He is a very friendly and popular young man with a warm smile and lots of friends. This is his first year at Madison; last year he attended Thunderbird Academy in Arizona. Mac has a beautiful baritone voice and sings in the Boys' Ensemble and the Academy Choir.

Pet peeve: Fanatics

Hobby: "Girls"

Favorite food: Pizza

Ambition: Undecided

Senior Class Will Visit Washington, D.C.

Next to graduation, the event the seniors have been looking forward to throughout the year is their trip to Washington, D.C. They will be leaving on Wednesday, March 15, and will stay there until the evening of the 21st.

Washington was the seniors' choice because of the seemingly endless list of educational spots they can visit. They will, of course, see the Capitol, the White House, and Washington Monument. Other interesting stops will be at the FBI, Smithsonian Institution, Arlington Cemetery, and Senator Ke-fauver's office. They will tour the Washington Missionary College campus and attend the Takoma Park and Sligo churches on Sabbath.

Academy Presents Musical Program

An overflow audience gathered in the Assembly Hall on the evening of March 4 to enjoy the annual Academy musical program. The theme this year was the works of Stephen Foster.

Humming the melody of "My Old Kentucky Home," the young men, with ruffles on their shirts and black string ties, and the young ladies in beautiful long dresses, strolled down the aisle as if on their way to a lawn party at the Southern mansion portrayed at the rear of the stage.

Then followed the choicest numbers from the great variety of songs of Stephen Foster, and several scenes showing the influence of the music of the negro slaves on his folk songs.

The 45-voice choir sang Roger Wagner's arrangements of "My Old Kentucky Home" and "Beautiful Dreamer," Marryott's arrangement of "Oh Suzannah," and Noble-Cain's arrangement of "Ring, Ring de Banjo," with Claudia Kunau as soloist.

"De Camptown Races" was presented as a cornet duet by Mrs. Silver and David Martin. David also played the song about the famous river boat, the "Glendy Burk." Jim Auge on his saxophone brought the plaintive melody of "Massa's in the Cold, Cold Ground."

Mrs. Bob Silver is director of the Academy Chorus, Mary Lou Sullins, organist, and Theresa Walters, pianist. Mrs. Ethel Chalmers was director of the dramatic skits, and Mrs. Orlena Kunau was responsible for the costumes, making the enchanting picture hats worn by the girls of the ensemble, the ruffles for the boys' shirts, and their string ties. She also obtained the loan of two Civil War uniforms from the Tennessee Historical Museum. A boy in blue carried the flag to the front of the auditorium, accompanied by another in Confederate gray.

David Reams did an excellent job as narrator, and Ethel Kemp, Jim Herman, Joann Malmeld, Sue Carney, and Shirley Prosser added greatly to the success of the program by their parts in the skits.

Campus Chatter

By PRISCILLA BRAMBLE

Have you ever had a joke backfire? Well, the chemistry class did one day. As usual, the students entered the rotunda in little groups and found their seats. One of the first ones in wrote on the board a little sign which read "No Chemistry Today." Several of the mischievous students suggested that the whole class hide in a room down the hall; so one by one the deserters filed out. They could have been very easily located, as snickers filled the small room.

In the distance they could hear Mr. Martin running down the hall and then down the steps to class. After a second's pause he ran up the steps again and then down again. Silence prevailed as the class listened to hear the last little sound. Footsteps going up the steps and voices upstairs made the students feel sure that the time had come for them to sneak back into the rotunda. Quietly, one by one, they crept back and took their seats. Jo Ann Houser and Joan Aitken closed the doors so they could really surprise Mr. Martin if and when he came back.

All of a sudden, much to the surprise of the pranksters, a voice came from the back of the room. It said, "It's a good thing you all came back."

Mr. Martin had gone to the control room in the rear while the sneaking students had been hiding. Everyone agreed that the joke was on them. They are glad they did come back to class, for they had a colored film as a treat.
