Temperance Rally Highlights Weekend

The large attendance from the campus and from churches in the Nashville area at the Temperance Rally, April 21 and 22, attested to its success. According to Dean H. L. Lynd, "This temperance rally was the high light of the year. It was well planned and very beneficial to our school."

Elders Scully and Soper from the General Conference Temperance Department and Elder Wayne Foster of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference led out in the meetings. Also Elder Anderson, church pastor, assisted. The judges in the contests were Elder Anderson, Mr. Coon, Elder Scully, President Davidson, and Elder Soper, chairman.

Terry Troy, college ATS president, and L. W. Watson, faculty sponsor, were highly commended for the well-organized program and its excellent quality.

Rebecca Culpepper, Darwin Secrist, and Pat Sheffield and Larry Bowes were awarded top honors at the closing session on Saturday night, April 22. Rebecca won a $15 award for her oration, Darwin, $3.00 for his jingle, and Pat and Larry $5.00 apiece for their posters.

Others who gave orations—Dana Dale, Mary Traynor, Walter Hileman, and Mary Ellen Young—received $5.00 apiece.

One hundred seventy jingles were submitted. Five were chosen as outstanding and received awards. Runners-up with Darwin Secrist were Mary Traynor, Jim Herman, Donnie Watson, and Gerri Schlenker, who received $1.00 apiece.

Bible Conference Brings Inspiration for Christian Living

By KAY FORRESTER

It was a thrilling experience to be a part of the 175 youth chosen from all the academies and the two colleges of the Southern Union to attend the Bible Conference held April 20-22 at the Blue Ridge Assembly located near Asheville, North Carolina. Never before have I attended a gathering of Adventist youth where the spirit of God was manifested in such a definite way.

Each day we attended discussion groups to learn more about subjects vital to Christian experience. Some of the topics were "How to Pray," "How to Have Faith," "How to Overcome Temptation," "How to Study the Bible and Spirit of Prophecy," "How to Lead a Friend to Christ." We learned principles that, if applied, will prepare us to stand in the conflict ahead.

On Friday evening, Elder Paul De Booy, a youth leader from the Central Union, challenged us to test the resources of our minds. He read the statement that none but those who have fortified their minds with the truths of the scriptures will stand in the last great conflict.

As he spoke, suddenly the lights went out. He continued by saying that there will come a time when we have nothing except that which is hidden in our hearts. "Look around you," he said. "You can see nothing. You can't see the person next to you. You can't see your songbook, your notebook, your Bible. To you, all there is, is the hidden treasure within."

Then, from one part of the room after another came the strains of such songs as "A Mighty Fortress Is Our God," "Rock of Ages," "What a Friend We Have in Jesus," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee," in which we all joined. It sounded like an angel choir. From somewhere in the room a solo rang out, "Are You Ready for Jesus to Come?"

What each heart experienced that night is inexpressible. The promises that rang out from various parts of the room—Matthew 19:23, Philippians 4:13, Psalms 34:7, and others—were real to us.

Then the lights came on, and as we looked about us, after being so close to God, we longed for the day of His return.

The closing meeting on Saturday night was also a never-to-be-forgotten experience. After a testimony and praise service in small groups, we formed a circle around a golden cord which encircled the chapel. Attached to the cord were bookmarks with Isaiah 60:1 on them—"Arise, shine, . . ." Each placed a bookmark in his Bible, accepted the challenge, and lighted his candle from a light passed on first by Elder Cummings to the MV leaders and then to us. With lighted candles we marched out, singing, to prayer bands on the mountain side.

We left the Conference different young people from the ones we were when we arrived. Our prayer is that God will help us keep the inspiration aglow in our lives and the fires of faith and love burning brightly.

Oratorical contest participants: Walter Hileman, Dana Dale, Rebecca Culpepper, Mary Traynor, and Mary Ellen Young.

Sponsors of Temperance Weekend: Elder F. W. Foster, Elder Francis Soper, Mr. L. W. Watson, Elder James Scully, and Terry Troy.

Think on These Things

Madison College is known for its Christian atmosphere, its emphasis on the dignity of labor, and the friendliness of its students and teachers. We are lacking at times, however, in the essential qualities of culture and courtesy. A recent demonstration of this is the conduct of some in the audience at the marimba concert of Mr. Douglas Williams on Saturday evening, April 29. This was an outstanding musical performance, one of the best to be presented at Madison College.

Mr. Williams is a serious artist who is a master in his field, having played before discriminating audiences throughout the United States and other countries. Why then should not our students, who are here because they are interested in the better things of life, be able to acknowledge his talent with the common courtesy of sitting still and refraining from whispering? Are some of us so uneducated that we do not know how to conduct ourselves at a concert performance?

Is it not possible that if we would learn to conduct ourselves with decorum at church services and other campus programs we would find it easier to pay respect to visiting artists such as the one who was here Saturday night? As a group, we need educating in the appreciation of the finer things of life. Let us not continue to show crude behavior and uncouth manners, for "the religion of Christ never degrades the receiver, never makes him coarse or rough or uncourteous."

Campus Musicians to Play During Nashville Art Festival

Three Madison College musicians will participate in a portion of the Nashville Arts Festival, to be held at the Parthenon May 14-20.

Tuesday evening, May 16, will be devoted to organ music. A recital will be held in the Belmont Methodist Church at 8:00 p.m. Those playing on the recital are three members of the Nashville Chapter of the American Guild of Organists. Mr. Walper will play the first group of numbers. He will be assisted by Mrs. Silver and David Martin in a number for organ and trumpet.

DELEGATES RETURN FROM WORKSHOP

Delegates from the Eleventh Annual Intercollegiate Student Association Workshop of Eastern SDA Colleges returned to the campus Monday night, April 24, from Atlantic Union College, South Lancaster, Massachusetts.

The workshop sessions included group discussions by newly elected officers of the student organizations. Problems were discussed and plans laid for better inter-school communications as well as for more efficiency in student association activities.

The host college conducted a tour of Boston for the visitors, which included visits to many historic spots. The Madison group also visited Niagara Falls, Washington, D.C., and New York City on their return trip.

Those attending the workshop from Madison were Henry Scoggins, Eugen Domke, Robert Burks, Mr. Vito Fragola, ASMC sponsor, and Mrs. Fragola.

Off the Record

Dear folks back home:

You should see the campus now. The trees and grass are very pretty and green, and the grass has been mowed four or five times already.

The Practical Gardening class went down to the garden and planted twelve long rows of tomato plants. The boys dug the holes and the girls planted. Nadine Woods and some other amateurs were initiated into the mysteries of tomato planting.

The weather seems almost warm enough to go swimming. Since the sun has been shining, not through rain clouds, but in a clear, blue sky, the girls in Williams Hall have made their way to the sun porch. Some have been getting nice tans, but others only burns and freckles.

Last weekend Terry Troy took Lena Holder to the bus station to catch the bus for home. They got there just in time to see Lena's bus pull out. In desperation Terry ran down the street after the bus, yelling. The people all turned their heads to see what cyclone was going through. Well, he finally caught the bus when it stopped at a red light. Without a ticket, Lena was on her way, thanks to Terry.

Last week the "Probies" got their first uniform to try on for size. Some of them fit; others didn't. It seems that most of the striped dresses were either too long or too big around or both. Believe it or not, but Mary Traynor looked lost in hers. Besides being too big and too long, Mary's had no button holes for the buttons on the sleeves. It didn't take long for Mary to decide she needed to send hers back.

"Happy Birthday, Eddie." These are the words Eddie Barton heard for a week. Every day he would get the greeting "Happy Birthday" or an occasional birthday song at the dinner table. One day those who had been teasing him baked him a cake—a red and green one at that. You see, Eddie's birthday really isn't until December. All the "Happy Birthdays" came eight months early.

Until next time—so long.

By Elaine Ferris

We have been happy to welcome several new students for this spring quarter, who have been forming impressions of us and our college now for several weeks. All of us old-timers have grown to love our school, though often times we tend to take the privileges we enjoy for granted. I thought it would be interesting to find out from these newcomers just what has impressed them most about Madison in the time they have been here. In interviews with them, this was what they had to say:

Toni Walden: "The people here are very friendly to newcomers. Also I think the climate is very nice."

Geneva Pierce (new in Williams Hall): "Never have I found people who are any more friendly than here at Madison. Although not an Adventist, I felt accepted and welcomed almost at once."

Marilyn Chapman: "This is my third time back at Madison, so it must prove that I just cannot stay away too long. I like the size of the college and the feeling of being a member of a big family."

Imelda Gutierrez: "When I arrived here at Madison, I had come directly from Mexico. The English I had taken in Mexico has proved very helpful to me. Since being here, I have improved my English some, I hope. I like everything here at Madison—the students, the faculty, the food, the climate—just everything!"

Elias Lopez: "To me the climate is especially nice. All of the people have been wonderful to me, and I appreciate them very much. Their friendliness made me feel at home at once."

Fellow students, after reading the above, are we not ashamed of ourselves, the way we complain about the weather?

"Oh, it's so hot, I think I'll simply die!"

"Won't it ever warm up?"

"I'm so tired of cold weather."

"Rain, rain, rain! Every day it has to rain!" etc., etc.

The next item is food: Now, there is a subject that is most controversial, or should I say, conversational? True, the food is not Mom's home cooking, but when cooking is done for a large group, menu-planning is much more difficult. Mrs. Marshall and Mrs. Jones do their very best, and we should appreciate their efforts.

Item number three is friendliness: I agree that most of the students here are very friendly to everyone. However, lately I have noticed several "scowling" faces. True, we all have heavy schedules and are often tired. But, remember, a smile requires fewer muscles than a frown. Also it would be nice to maintain the reputation of being "the South's friendliest college." I'd like to close with a little

Six Receive Scholarships

Eight seniors from six academies received $100-scholarships for Madison College at the closing program of College Days, April 18-20. The following seniors were presented scholarships by Dean Lynd on Wednesday evening:

James Pickett—Little Creek, Concord, Tennessee
Barbara Johnson—Pine Forest, Chunky, Mississippi
Lolita Townsend and Cathy

Brook—Fletcher, Fletcher, North Carolina
Loretta Rhoton—Echo Valley, Wytheville, Virginia
Gloria Howell—Laurelbrook, Dayton, Tennessee
Judy Ball and David Martin, Madison College Academy
These young people were chosen on the basis of scholarship, character, and the contribution each has made to school life.

Marimba Concert Is Well Received

The lyceum program by Mr. Douglas Williams, marimbist, on Saturday night, April 29, was acclaimed an outstanding program of the year. Mr. Williams was assisted by Ortran Gilbert, pianist. The duo-team not only had a sensitivity and understanding of the music but also performed with a unity of purpose and a skill of true musicianship.

Mr. Williams' artistic playing displayed the full range of this uncommon concert instrument as he presented compositions from classical, romantic, and modern composers. Following the concert, students especially interested remained for bonus encores which were given in accord with the artists' friendly manner.

Those who were present for the program, as well as those unable to attend because of conflicting schedules, will be happy to know that plans are being made for a future performance.

Next Home Appliance Class Begins June 5

The date for the beginning of the next class in Home Appliance Repair is June 5. This class is open to academy graduates, college students, and other adults. The total cost for the three months' training is $300. This amount covers meals, room, laundry, and tuition. The cost of uniform and tools will be additional, approximately $50. For further information write: H. R. Lynd, dean, Madison College, Madison, Tennessee.

SNEA's Attend Arts And Crafts Workshop

By PAT BATCHELOR

Five members of the SNEA Club (Student National Education Association) attended an arts and crafts workshop held at the Woodmont Baptist Church in Nashville on Friday, April 21. The workshop, sponsored by the Cleco Crafts, Inc., of Nashville, presented a host of ideas which are a boon to the elementary teacher.

Each student was permitted to make one of everything that was on display for the 50-cent registration fee. The students brought home with them mosaic coasters, letter holders made from popsicle sticks, plastic dogwood flowers, bird pictures made with tiny colored stones, and a little dog made of yarn and pipe cleaners.

Those who attended the workshop were Lucy Courter, Sandra Johnson, Nancy Eusey, Pat Batchelor, and Paul Eirich.

On Friday, April 28, members of the Madison College chapter attended the National SNEA Convention at the Tennessee State Teachers' College in Murfreesboro.

Nature Club To Meet; Will Plan Field Trip

An interesting Nature Club meeting is planned for Saturday night, May 6, at 6:30 in the Science Building. Mr. Zeigler, professor of biology and sponsor of the club, will introduce the simpler forms of life in the microscopic world.

The club is also beginning to lay plans for the annual field trip to Fall Creek Falls. Those who are interested in nature and who want to have a good time are invited to join the Nature Club.

Phi Mu Sigma Plans Field Trip, Hike

At the last meeting of the Phi Mu Sigma Forum, plans for spring activities were announced. A marsh-mallow roast, a hike, and a trip to the Gates Rubber Company are slated for the coming weeks.

At a recent meeting the following officers were elected for the spring quarter: Eddie Barton, president; Darwin Secrist, vice-president; Verne Miller, secretary-treasurer; Joe Fields, pastor; Terry Troy, parliamentarian; Doug White, reporter.

Secretarial Class to Present Skit

"Take a Letter," a skit to be presented by the secretarial science class at chapel on May 10, will give a glimpse of the training necessary to make a good secretary.

David Grogg, boss, will interview applicants for a job. After he dictates a letter to each girl, she types it and gives it to him for approval. Because of mistakes in spelling, punctuation, and capitalization, one girl after another fails to get the job. The position finally goes to the one whose letter has been transcribed perfectly.

Runners-up in the poster contest—Dana Dale and Bob Kohler—received $2.00 apiece for their efforts, and all who submitted posters received $1.00 apiece.

The rally closed on Saturday night with a new temperance film, "Pay the Piper," a graphic and interesting picture with the theme, "Whatsoever a man soweth that shall he also reap."

The things we think the most about

Are not the things that really count.

But the little things of every day

Are the ones that finally, really WEIGH.

Among the students who have recently returned from the Bible Conference a spiritual atmosphere prevails which they would like to spread among their fellow students. Here are comments upon the conference by some of those who attended:

Maggie Harms, college sophomore: "The Bible Conference has ended, but the memory of the greatest inspiration I have ever received still remains. The fellowship of those few days "in the mountains" helped me to see more clearly that Christ truly lives and that He's coming very soon."

Freddie Schwarz, academy junior: "They were the most inspiring meetings I have ever attended, and I felt they brought me closer to God because of the atmosphere which surrounded us—the people and nature."

Teresa Patterson, academy senior: "I cherish very dearly the experience of associating with Christian young people at the Bible Conference and also the material that was given to us in the form of lectures, sermons, and mimeo-

Secretarial Students Visit Business Firms

By LUCY COURTER

Recent visits to different offices have given Madison College secretarial students a new conception of the importance of the secretary. Often students feel that working in an office is boring and uninteresting—nothing to do but sit at a desk! However, most secretaries do not find their jobs at all uninteresting. The secretary feels that she is a spoke in a wheel that is necessary to make the business go 'round!

After the academy shorthand class visited the Madison-Old Hickory Insurance Company and talked with Mr. James Pigue, the class discovered that many activities revolve around the secretary and her boss.

The college shorthand class recently visited the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference offices. Elder Foster emphasized the need for good secretaries in denominational employ.

During May the secretarial students will visit the Life and Casualty Insurance Company and the Southern Publishing Association.

graphed notes. I accepted the challenge to "Arise, shine for thy light is come," and it is my desire to carry in my heart the spirit of Christian fellowship that I may be an instrument in the hands of the Lord."

Mr. Keplinger, academy principal: "The time spent at the conference was one of the most outstanding experiences that I have ever received. This experience, to my mind, was a sample of what Heaven will be like when all the saints are gathered together. . . . We felt that we were on a mountain top with our Lord."

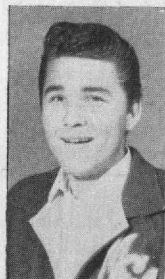

Verne Miller, college junior: "The spiritual atmosphere was tremendous. The students seemed to get a deeper insight into how to live a Christian life whose influence would be felt. The surroundings seemed to contribute to the general theme of the conference. The meetings helped me to sense the need for studying the Spirit of Prophecy and the Bible and to be ready to meet Christ when He comes."

Senior Sketches

Tommy Young

Five feet, eleven inches tall, Tommy, with dark brown eyes and brown hair, not only is good-looking, but has a sense of humor quite hard to beat. He comes from McMinnville, Tennessee, but has lived here for the past few years. His full-of-funness, his vigor, and his vitality help rate him as being popular among his fellow students. He sings in the Academy Choir and the Boys' Ensemble.

Pet peeve: "Criticism of anybody who is my friend"

Hobby: Gymnastics, outdoor life, and good music

Favorite food: Uncooked vegetables (green peppers)

Ambition: "To serve God and fellow man (be a doctor)"

Laneta Scoggins

This five-foot, two-inch-tall senior with hazel eyes and light brown hair very proudly claims "The Wonder State" of Kansas as her home. This is Laneta's second year here at Madison Academy. Her cheerful attitude and disposition have done much to brighten the lives of her fellow classmates. She has many friends and always endeavors to make more. Laneta informs us that she is anxiously looking forward to graduation.

Pet peeve: "People who always ask favors of you, but never return any"

Hobby: Hiking and cooking

Favorite food: Spaghetti

Ambition: To be a nurse

Have You Heard

That Eva Campbell's blouse proudly displays the personal signatures of the Seniors of '61?

The wonderful testimonies and opinions of those who attended the Southern Union Bible Conference?

That the juniors and seniors are extremely eager for the picnic on May 3?

Of the proud aunts, Claudia and Juanita Kunau and Betty Lea, each of whom has a new niece, and our "uncle," David Martin, who now has a little nephew?

The humorous anecdotes that keep the American government class amused?

That spring fever has hit the academy? Hope it doesn't do too much damage.

That the seniors are still counting days? It's less than six weeks new. If you see the seniors studying harder than ever, that's why.

That Larry Bowes' temperance poster won one of the first-place prizes? Congratulations!

That Gerri Schlenker's temperance jingle was among the top five? Congratulations to you, too!

That the New Testament Bible class, which is mainly sophomores, has chosen officers to organize activities for their class? The results were: Jim Herman, president; Sandra Lee, vice-president; Wanda Scoggins and Linda Brashears sharing the duties of secretary-treasurer; and Harry Phelps, sergeant at arms.

That the freshman Bible class, Old Testament, has likewise organized? The results: Larry Bowes, president; Jo Ann Young, vice-president; Mary Jane Keimig, secretary; Nellie Campbell, treasurer; Donnie Watson, pastor; and Richard Sullivan, sergeant at arms.

Highland Is Host to Music Festival

Twenty enthusiastic young musicians, instruments, music stands, music, and, of course, their director, Mrs. Bob Silver, headed for Highland Academy in the bus on Thursday evening, April 27. The event was the Third Annual Music Festival of the Southern Union.

At the same time, other buses and cars were converging on Highland Academy for the same reason. Collegedale Academy was represented by Principal J. R. Siebenlist and Don Crook and Lyle Hamel of the Music Department; Fletcher Academy, by Principal L. E. Nestell, Gordon Brown, and Mrs. Helen Rust; Forest Lake Academy by Principal William Fuchs, Miss Joann Robbins, and Garland Peterson; Little Creek Academy by Principal and Band Director Leland Straw, Mrs. Alice Straw, and Mrs. Clara Goodge; Mt. Pisgah Academy by M. E. Moore, principal, Stewart Crook, and Leroy Schultz; and Pine Forest Academy by Principal Adolph Johnson and Andrew J. Wheeler.

Principal H. D. Lawson and Preston Wallace of Highland Academy were the hosts.

Friday was a very busy schedule of rehearsals of the Festival Band and Festival Choruses, as each director had to rehearse the number he or she was to conduct.

The Festival formally opened at 7:30 Friday evening with a program of sacred music. The theme of the festival was "Keep a Song in Your Heart," and was the opening number of the Festival Chorus. "With a Voice of Singing," by Shaw, was conducted by Stewart Crook. Joann Robbins conducted Ringwald's arrangement of "This Is My Father's World." Mrs. Clara Goodge conducted Burligh's arrangement of "Were You There?" and Mrs. Helen Rust directed the closing number, "Now the Day Is Over," by Barnby. Elder Desmond Cummings gave the sermonette.

At the Sabbath afternoon concert, the Madison Academy Girls' Trio presented Allitsen's beautiful setting of "The Lord Is My Light," and Pat Silver directed the Festival Chorus in "I Walked Today Where Jesus Walked."

At the evening Gala Concert, Mrs. Silver conducted the band in the opening number, "Notre Dame Victory March," and also the Festival Band and Chorus combined in the closing number, "Stout-hearted Men." Madison was also represented by the Girls' Ensemble singing "Some Folks Do"—looking very charming in their light blue dresses. David Martin played "Victory" as a trumpet solo.

MCA Groups Entertain at Banquet

During College Days the Madison College Academy seniors, as well as the visiting seniors from various schools, were treated as very special guests.

On Thursday evening all the seniors were entertained at a banquet. While eating Chinese food, they listened to music by Stephen Collins Foster presented by a part of the Academy Choir. A portion of the choir program, "Old Kentucky Home," which was given in March, was again presented at this banquet. The gay patriotic decorations added to the theme of the music.

Some of the songs by the choir were "Old Folks at Home," "Oh, Susannah," and "Beautiful Dreamer." Special numbers given were "We Are Coming, Father Abraham," and "If You'll Only Get a Mustache" by the Boys' Ensemble; "Jeanie, with the Light Brown Hair" by the Girls' Trio; "Old Black Joe" by Joann Malmade and Jim Herman; "Some Folks Do" by the Girls' Ensemble; "Open Thy Lattice, Love," by Sylvia Mitzelfelt; and "Old Folks at Home" by Mac McCrillis.
