"Fall Fantasy" Features Student Talent

Elder Wittenberg Is New College Pastor

Elder and Mrs. W. N. Wittenberg

Elder and Mrs. Warren N. Wittenberg, from Mt. Vernon, Ohio, visited the campus over the last weekend in October and will be moving here shortly, as Elder Wittenberg has been called to be the new pastor of the Madison College Church.

Elder Wittenberg has been serving as MV and Temperance secretary of the Ohio Conference for nearly ten years. From 1947 to 1952 he was Home Missionary and MV secretary of the Potomac Conference. Previous to this he served as Home Missionary secretary in the Southeastern California Conference. He also served in Oklahoma for five years as evangelist and Home Missionary and MV secretary. He was ordained to the gospel ministry while laboring in the Oklahoma Conference in 1937.

As a young man he was engaged in medical missionary work in San Francisco, before going to Pacific Union College as a student. Later, he continued in medical missionary ministry in several places. At one time, during depression days, twelve of the young workers formed a company and went into the health food business. They baked whole wheat bread, mainly, and made nut foods. One or two nurses in the group gave home treatments.

Elder Wittenberg is a brother of Mrs. D. A. Delafield. Mrs. Wittenberg, the former Zelma Neufeld, is a graduate of the Loma Linda School of Nursing. She was a missionary nurse in Alaska at one time for almost two years.

G. A. Coon to Hold Week of Prayer

President Speaks on Christian Standards

Christian schools face the responsibility of upholding God's standards in this age of spiritual blindness. This was the challenge presented to Madison students in a chapel talk given by President Ralph Davidson on Tuesday, October 26. The president emphasized the need of better faculty-student relations in carrying on a successful character-building program. He pointed out that in a sense students and faculty are all learners, with, basically, the same goal in mind, but each has a different idea of how it should be reached. For this reason students and faculty should study God's word to learn of His ways, and then all can move ahead with better understanding and cooperation.

The president referred several times to his own personal experiences as a student at Madison. He told of the valuable lessons in Christian decorum which he learned from Dr. E. A. Sutherland, who was president at that time.

The Fall Week of Prayer will open on November 10 with the vesper service on Friday evening and continue until after the Sabbath morning service on November 18.

Elder G. A. Coon, a former pastor of the Madison College and the Boulevard churches, will be the speaker. Elder Coon, a brother of Miles R. Coon, has been engaged in evangelistic work in many parts of the United States since leaving Madison.

Norman Jones, from California, will be associated with Elder Coon as song leader during the week.

Students Hear Voice Of Prophecy group

Students had an opportunity to hear the Voice of Prophecy radio group Wednesday evening, October 25, at the First Church in Nashville.

The speaker for the evening was Elder H. M. S. Richards, Jr., the son of the well-known radio speaker. Also among the group were the Duane McConnell, David Kingry, and Norma Umali were the winners in the Fall Fantasy talent program, presented by the ASMC on Saturday night, October 28. These three were the judges' choice from the vocal, instrumental, and readings sections, respectively.

Preceding the talent program, a spaghetti supper, also a part of the ASMC activities of the evening, was held in the cafeteria. Nearly 300 people were served.

Those who participated in the instrumental group were Steve Thompson with an accordion solo, "Lady of Spain"; David Martin, trumpet solo, playing "Victory"; Toni Walden and Mr. Slattery playing a South American number, "La Carioca," on their guitars; DuWayne Olson, playing "Panda Dance" on his bass saxophone; Jerry Brown, with a piano solo, "Come Back to Sorrento"; Mrs. Sondra Cuthbert, in Latin American costume, playing "Tico, Tico" on the organ; and award winner David Kingry playing "Cavalier Fantastique" on the piano.

Norma Umali represented the next section with a reading, "The Grace of God."

The following participated in the vocal group: Verne Miller, solo, "By the Bend of the Pines"; Teresa Patterson, Toni Walden, Rose Walden, trio, "Now Is the Hour"; Annette Burks, Juanita Cantrell, Linda Myers, Juanita Kunau, Linda Brashears, and Jo Ann Young, academy sextet, "Kentucky Babe"; Grace Dow, solo, "Autumn, Leaves"; Jim Herman, solo, "Roll On, Thou Deep and Dark Blue Ocean"; Verne Miller, Duane McConnell, Eugen Domke, and Jim Merklin, male quartet, "A Song of Old Hawaii." "Take Me Back to Colorado" was sung by grade-school cowboys, Danny McColpin, Bernell Clark, and Verlin Chalmers. The award winner in this section was Duane McConnell, who sang "Old Man River."

"Much of the success of the evening," stated Eugen Domke, ASMC president, "was due to the widespread advertising which Emcee Buzz Benson, from WSIX radio station, gave the program." Mr. Domke also stated that the near overflow crowd was more than had been anticipated.

"Seek Ye the Lord"

Prayer is the key that unlocks Heaven's storehouse. If our eyes could be opened to look into God's plans, we would see an over-abundance of blessings only awaiting our readiness to receive them. As God's children, we rightly deserve the things that He has for us. But because of sin in our hearts, we are alienated from the close communion with Him which is necessary before He can fully bestow His blessings upon us.

The Fall Week of Prayer is just ahead. Whether or not it will be a success depends on the personal attitude of every student and faculty member. We should not wait until November 10 to begin special prayer. Each one should look into his own soul and if there is anything un-Christlike there, he should begin now to seek the Lord's cleansing power. Then, when the Week of Prayer begins, we can move together united in spirit and purpose, and God can work in and through us to accomplish His purposes.

What Would You Like?

Complaints about many and varied things are common, even on a school campus. And yet, the complainants never seem to come up with really better ideas; or if they do, they are so busy telling everyone else about them that they forget to tell the ones who could carry them out. Sometimes students do have very good ideas about rules, regulations, etc. The following is a survey of student opinion concerning campus life and activities. The question asked each student was "What would you like to see at Madison in the way of improvements?"

Peggy Capps: "I think that Madison should have recreational facilities for games and for supervised skating. This would give the students some physical exercise so that they would be more relaxed and enjoy life more fully. It seems to me that at Madison it is all work and no play."

David Grogg: "I would like to see student-faculty relationship improved by a revival of spiritual influence."

Donna Hicks: "Warm water instead of dirty steam to wash my face in every morning."

Bill Johnson: "More recreation."

Dorothy Graham: "A place to skate."

Charline Ward: "More recreation—interesting school functions."

Carolyn Holder: "Outside recreation with mixed groups."

Richard Kunau: "A church built—more reverence in our church services now."

Starch and Stripes

What is Dr. Frederec Cothren, Chief of Obstetrics and Gynecology at Madison Hospital, doing slipping up the stairway and into the back entrance of Surgical Wing, with a small, blue bundle in his arms? So Mrs. Gladys Duran, Director of Nursing Service, must have wondered as she was suddenly confronted with the doctor's unexpected entrance during a routine inspection of the ward.

Turning her back on the scene, Mrs. Duran, though realizing that a hospital rule was being violated, pretended not to see the tiptoeing doctor as he quickly made his way to Room 422. She had a very special reason for turning her back, for she knew that one of the greatest moments in the doctor's lifetime had just taken place and that his unexpected visit to Room 422 sprang from a heart filled with thankfulness and humble gratitude. For within that blue bundle which Dr. Cothren held was a tiny, helpless baby boy, and in Room 422 was its mother, who, only hours before, had hung dangerously close to death on the operating table.

Twice before during his medical practice, Dr. Cothren had seen the life of a new mother slip away because of a rare blood condition which prevents clotting of ruptured blood vessels, allowing the patient to bleed to death. This time, however, in a race against time, an emergency operation had been performed as the mother, who had begun losing blood rapidly following the delivery of her baby, began to turn pale. The operation had been successful, thanks to the quick action of the doctors, and she slowly began to regain strength.

After showing the mother her baby, Dr. Cothren returned to the Obstetrical Ward. With tear-filled eyes he sat alone, thankful that a life had been spared. A miracle had truly been performed in answer to a prayer, for he never performs an operation without first breathing a prayer for guidance. His reward—a baby's cry, a mother's smile, a father's tearful "Thank you," a family spared from near tragedy and able to return to normal life, united and happy.

Through the Keyhole

By JERRY BROWN

Who was that I heard running down the corridor in Williams Hall at one o'clock in the morning? Don't tell me we are having Olympic tryouts for the 50-yard dash!

Pat Ricks' monkey act is good enough to give her an honorary membership in the zoo parade. If you haven't seen her perform, you should ask her to give a demonstration. I'm sure she will be more than happy to oblige.

Alice Gross and her mysterious partner (a resident of Williams Hall) were seen prowling in the halls in the most outlandish costumes. Maybe mums, cowboy hats, and suspenders will be in vogue next year—who knows?

To whom it may concern—If you ever get the urge to fry an egg on the bottom of an iron—DON'T! Especially if it is a steam iron. But cheer up, O connoisseur of tasty delicacies, a can of soup can be warmed up beautifully.

P. S. If you would prefer an easier way to warm food, try using the dorm kitchenette.

October's bright blue weather was so lovely. It seems that Nature outdid herself this year. The riotous colors of the trees, the blue skies and white fluffy clouds made us happy that we were spending our autumn in beautiful Tennessee.

Let's Get Acquainted

By RUTH GILL

Eugen Domke

Eugen Domke, a mild-mannered, soft-spoken Canadian with brown wavy hair and friendly blue eyes, came to Madison in the fall of 1959. Eugen, whose home is in Revelstoke, British Columbia, spent his academy years and his freshman year of college at Canadian Union College before transferring to Madison.

Since coming to Madison, Eugen has established a permanent spot in the hearts of his fellow students. His popularity is best evidenced by a look at the many offices which he has held. He was elected treasurer of his freshman class and president of the sophomore class. As a junior deacon of the church he has served faithfully. His greatest vote of confidence, however, came at the close of last school year when the student body elected him to the highest office attainable: president of the Associated Students of Madison College.

"Gene," as he is known by many of his fellow students, is majoring in Industrial Education, and his hobbies are electronics and photography. He also loves to sing, having spent much time both in the choir and in the male quartet as a tenor.

Probably the most significant step of his young life took place when Cupid stepped into his plans and tied his affections to a pretty blue-eyed girl from Virginia by the name of Janet Powell. They were married on June 3, 1961, and spent part of the summer traveling through the Western states. At present they are living in the new apartment house for students.

Mrs. Grow Speaks

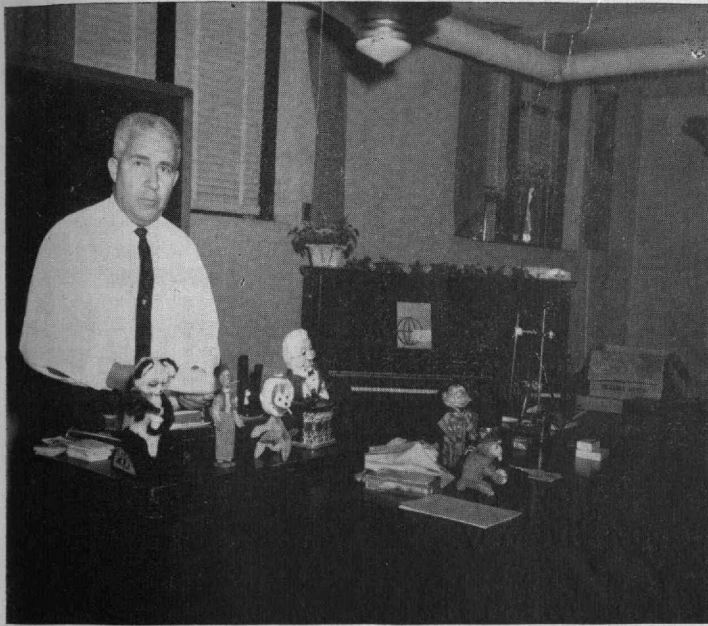

Mrs. Julia Grow, founder and director of Cave Springs Home-School for Handicapped Children, was the chapel speaker on Tuesday, October 31. She told of the miraculous way in which the Lord has led in establishing and maintaining the work at Cave Springs.

Cave Springs School is an independent, non-profit, non-sectarian institution founded by Mrs. Grow in 1956 to meet the needs of handicapped, retarded and orphaned children and youth. It features vocational training on the farm, carpentering, household arts, cooking, sewing, and also in the near future shoe repairing, upholstery, and sign painting. It is the only such institution in the Seventh-day Adventist denomination.

Mrs. Grow expressed her deep appreciation for the time spent by teachers, students, and entire classes from Madison College in constructing buildings and helping develop the work at Cave Springs.

Choir Gives Program At Bordeaux Church

The College Choir made its first off-campus appearance of the year Friday evening, October 27, at the Bordeaux church. The program consisted of four musical arrangements by the choir, a ladies' trio, and a vocal solo. The choir numbers were "Wonderful Grace of Jesus," "Master, the Tempest Is Raging," "Ye Watchers and Ye Holy Ones," and "All Glory Be to God on High." Teresa Patterson and Toni and Rose Walden sang "My Prayer," Duane McConnell sang "O My Soul Prepare."

Coppage to Speak at Nurses' Meeting

Mr. Marlow Coppage, District No. 3 president of the Tennessee Association of Student Nurses, will speak in Memphis at the District No. 1 Workshop on November 6 at 6:30 p.m. The purpose of the workshop will be to discuss the importance and value of the TASN. Mr. Coppage will discuss the benefits to be gained from active participation.

CORRECTIONS

In the October 20 issue of the MADISONIAN, several mistakes were printed for which the following corrections are made:

In the student roster, Sondra Cuthbert's hometown was listed as Indianapolis, Ind. She is from Orlando, Fla.

Paul Nettland was listed as a Junior in the student roster. Paul is a Senior.

In the article headed, "School of Anesthesia wins Second Award," the name of Mrs. Walter Bowman was a misprint and should have been Mrs. Walter Bowen.

Madison College was host to the Kentucky-Tennessee Ministerial Temperance Training Institute for ministers, temperance leaders, and academy principles, held on the campus October 15-17.

Elder E. L. Marley, conference president, and Elder F. W. Foster, temperance and educational secretary of the conference, acted as co-chairmen during the institute.

Sunday evening Elder W. A. Scharffenberg, executive secretary of the International Temperance Society, spoke on "Saboteurs of Truth," a talk that was considered a high light of the institute.

On Monday Dr. T. R. Flaiz, head of the Medical Department of the General Conference, brought to the surface what the public should know about tobacco. In the afternoon Mr. Bill Plymat, president of Preferred Risk Mutual Insurance Company, told how to solve the problem of drinking drivers.

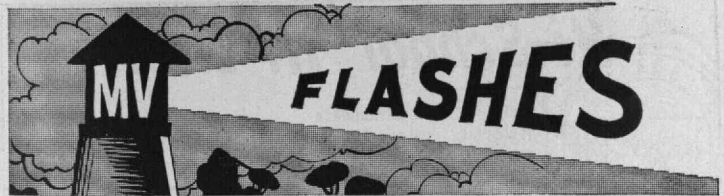

Several classes were dismissed for the afternoon to hear Dr. Flaiz speak on "Physiology, Pharmacology, and Psychology of Alcohol," a talk that gave an insight into the effects of alcohol on the human body.

The students were privileged to hear two of the institute lectures at chapel and to see two films at evening worship, one on smoking and the other on drug addiction.

Concluding the activities of the institute were a banquet and a model meeting for reorganizing the temperance programs in our churches.

PRESIDENT HOLDS WEEK OF PRAYER AT LITTLE CREEK

President Davidson is the Week of Prayer speaker at the Little Creek School this week. In his talks he has chosen to draw lessons from the life of Christ. Since the presidents' four daughters are graduates of Little Creek, he has a special interest in this school.

In a telephone conversation one morning last week, Mr. Gulley mentioned how busy he was.

"What are you doing?" I asked. "I have to wax my car," he said. "Car? Oh, you got a new car, didn't you, a 1955 Oldsmobile 88 Holiday?"

He succeeded in waxing and cleaning his car under the supervision of his wife and now may be seen riding in his "Merry Oldsmobile."

The MV staff wishes to congratulate Mr. Gulley on his new purchase, which is replacing his 1947 Studebaker, now being used as a giant toy for his son Johnny. We hope that his new purchase will carry him safely to and from his many speaking engagements and town runs.

Now, back to the MV future events. We are planning to launch our Master Guide program on November 4, under the direction of Mrs. Bowes. We are hoping the students will support this program and benefit greatly from the training that we have planned.

The near future also promises a program from the academy group on "Re-creation or Wreck-creation."

Our MV office has finally acquired a new desk and other furniture to make it complete and ready for operation. We will soon announce the date for Open House, when you will see the facilities that our Madison College MV Society has to offer the students.

Don't forget November 4, the Sabbath when we launch our Master Guide program. You won't want to miss it. VERNE MILLER

Students Are Guests of Faculty And Staff at Home Parties

If anyone passed by the old apartment house on Saturday evening, October 21, he might have wondered what occasion was bringing forth the unusual sounds and the merry laughter within. However, from ten other homes he might have heard similar sounds, for this was one of the faculty and staff parties which were in progress, at which the college students were invited guests.

The sounds referred to, which were coming from Richard and Carol Kunau's apartment, were a mixture of loud "meows," which are the vocal feature of a game called "poor pussy," the thumping of darts against a closet door, and lots of laughter. A peek into the apartment would have revealed Dorothy Graham down on her knees imitating a cat in her own quaint style, or perhaps Jackie Cothren clad in a long dress trying to figure a way to get out. While the guests were busy playing games and eating apples and popcorn, the host was silently snapping pictures at the most unexpected moments.

The following staff and faculty homes entertained groups of students: Mr. and Mrs. Homer Lynd, Mr. and Mrs. Warren Oakes, Elder and Mrs. Jack Just, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Eusey, Mr. and Mrs. Worth Lowder, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hassenpflug, President and Mrs. Ralph Davidson, Carol and Richard Kunau, Mr. and Mrs. Jim Herman, and Mr. and Mrs. Maurice Culpepper.

Robert Bowes, Polly Ward, Carl Adkins, Imelda Gutierrez, Glen Gee (under sheet), Lena Holder (hidden), Jean Pitts, Jackie Cothren, and Carol and Richard Kunau enjoy an evening of games.

Juniors and Seniors Announce Officers

Congratulations, seniors, for this surprising way you announced your class officers! You also did nice work in concealing your big secret and at the same time very cleverly learning the outcome of the juniors' meeting.

It turned out to be a noisy, active day Wednesday, October 18, when the juniors and the seniors "coincidentally" decided to announce their class officers for '62 on the same day.

Everyone was startled early Wednesday morning upon coming to school to see a large canvas strung across the top of the porch of the Demonstration Building, with the names of all the senior officers very neatly written upon it. And as the students entered the halls, there were those handsome, adorable posters displayed on the walls.* Also, what should be littering the entire building (and everywhere else on the campus) but the senior officers' presentation cards, which had been placed in books, on pictures, and behind any and everything available.

However, it was the seniors' turn to be surprised during academy chapel. The juniors startled the student body by jumping from behind the rear seats in the auditorium and shouting, "Yea, Juniors!"

Yea, Juniors!"

It was rather amusing to watch the juniors and the seniors staying clear of each other, and everyone was curious to know what the outcome would be.

Herewith are presented the names of the officers of the two classes:

JUNIORS

President—Jim Herman
Vice-president—Linda Brashears
Secretary—Sandra Lee
Treasurer—Jean Lindley
Pastor—James Combs

Happy birthday to each of you!

Did Y'all Come?

Entertainments all our own, aside from the college! That was the academy faculty's decision as a result of a brainstorm not long ago. Isn't that wonderful? We're independent!

The get-together Saturday night, October 21, was the first result of that brainstorm. The party was held in the new welfare building, a very good place indeed for such activities. A large number came and everyone enjoyed the evening. There were games, relay races, and refreshments.

We are all glad to hear that this is not the last get-together; there will be more—in the near future, we hope.
