Week of Prayer Stresses Positive Thinking

Four - Hour Praise Service Climaxes Week of Prayer

The Week of Prayer, with its theme of joyful, positive, radiant Christian living, came to a climax on Friday evening, when, for more than four hours, students and faculty filed past the microphone giving joyful testimony to the goodness of God, to victories won, and to the blessings of the week. Some who were listening to the service over the campus radio got out of bed and came to testify.

Patients at the sanitarium were blessed by the meetings all during the week as they listened over their radios. Some sent their testimonies, expressing thankfulness for their improved physical condition.

By CHARLOTTE COMER

"Now I'm singing as the days go by, Jesus took my burdens all away."

Thus began the fall Week of Prayer, as Elder Glenn Coon and his associate, Norman Jones, with singing and praise, brought to the campus a message of the joy and happiness that characterize the true Christian life. The first inspiring service on Friday night set the pace for a successful Week of Prayer.

Elder Coon, who is no stranger to the Madison campus, having pastored the college church from 1947 to 1952, stressed practical Christianity in his sermons. The joy and delight of being a Christian, a theme which was woven throughout his talks, was stressed in his opening text—Zephaniah 3:17:

"The Lord thy God . . . He will rejoice over thee with joy; He will rest in His love, He will joy over thee with singing."

The Week of Prayer program consisted of devotional studies, held twice a day in the Assembly Hall, prayer bands, and group discussions. Classes were shortened to provide time for the afternoon meetings.

Each morning Elder Coon also held meetings with the academy young people at their chapel service.

"When you point one finger of criticism at another," says Elder Coon, "you are pointing three at yourself. You do the thing you accuse the other of (Matt. 7:1); you are a hypocrite (Matt. 7:5); and you are an associate anti-Christ (John 5:22)."

"True Christianity is a spiritual courtship between God and man."

"Christians should unite duty with beauty and right with delight."

Contributing to the success of the week was the earnest, spirited leadership of Mr. Jones, who directed an enthusiastic song service at the beginning of each meeting. The band, under Mr. Haupt, also added to the meetings. Both instrumental and vocal numbers were presented by students at all the meetings. Mrs. Coon, at the piano, and Carolyn Cothren, at the organ, accompanied the singing.

Four Seniors Named to "Who's Who"

Wayne Hayes, Mary Silvers, Lydia Zaft, and Faye King have been chosen by the faculty and students to represent Madison College in the publication Who's Who among American Universities and Colleges. This is a publication that gives somewhat the same recognition that Who's Who in America gives.

These seniors are chosen by the student association in conjunction with the faculty for their scholarship, their contribution to college life, and the promise they show of future leadership.

Wayne Hayes, religion major, has been an active leader at Madison College since his arrival four years ago. He graduated from high school in his home state—Nebraska. During his freshman year he served his class as pastor. Last year he showed his leadership and talent as he filled the position of editor of the MADISONIAN. He has also been active in church work, holding offices in the Dupontonia church. Now, during this his senior year, his classmates have shown their confidence in him by electing him president of the Senior Class of '62.

Faye King graduated from high school in her home town, Franklin, Tennessee, and then attended Southern Missionary College during her pre-nursing year. Her sense of humor, her quiet yet friendly ways, her poise, and her conscientious Christian life have won for her many friends here at Madison. She has held offices in both the girls' club and the nursing club and last year was honored by being chosen Miss Student Nurse of Madison College for 1960-61.

Mrs. Mary Silvers returned to college to finish her education at a time in life when most women would be resigned to the fact that their education wasn't completed in their younger days. She graduated from Cumberland County High School in Cross Plains, Tenn., and then established her home. Now, the mother of three children, she is finishing college, majoring in elementary education. She attended Tennessee Tech for two quarters and then came to Madison in the spring of 1959. Mrs. Silvers has always been active in church work, at present being the superintendent of the Junior Department in her church in Madison.

Lydia Zaft, who has been at Madison College for four years, calls Takoma Park, Maryland, her home now, although she is a native of Germany. She and her family suffered many distressing war experiences before they finally came to America. She graduated from Seminar Marienhoehe, a Seventh-day Adventist training school in Germany. Lydia is a nursing student. She has been a faithful member of Operation Bedside ever since its organization, having served as secretary of this medical missionary organization, and has also been one of the secretaries of the college Sabbath school and a church deaconess.

We Can Help Each Other

Now that the Week of Prayer is over, it might be well if each individual stopped and asked himself how he can help to extend the influence of the Week of Prayer into the weeks and months ahead. As human beings, we will all be tempted to forget the things which we have seen and heard. This is where Satan takes advantage of those who are not on their guard. Let's not be content to sink back into a state of spiritual lethargy. As students intelligent in the Word of God and the dangers of not heeding His word, we can each be a source of strength to our fellow students.

There will still be problems to solve, weaknesses to overcome, and battles to fight. But we are the ones who must do the solving and overcoming and fighting. No one else can ever do it for us. So let's strive, with God's help, to make this Week of Prayer a spark that will burn brighter and brighter as the school year progresses.

Meditations on the Week of Prayer

The sound of music vibrated through the campus air all during the Week of Prayer. The pervading spirit of the week was one of joyfulness and praise. The smiling faces that were seen in the classrooms and dormitories were living testimonies of the sunshine, heavenly sunshine, that was dwelling in happy hearts.

The power that we gained from the week can never be measured. God came near as we met daily in prayer bands. There is proof that God's smile and blessing were upon us as we sought Him in prayer. We saw those for whom we were praying—in one instance an entire family—dedicate their hearts to Christ.

As we think back upon this week of praise, prayer, and power, we must determine in our hearts to keep the light from dimming now that the week has closed. What we experienced last week is only the beginning of what can and will be accomplished on our campus. As a result of this Week of Prayer, hearts will be kindled with fire and zeal for Christ. And this fire will spread until our school will be filled with its brightness and warmth. And people who see us will know that we have walked with Christ. Thus we shall make Madison the college upon a hill which cannot be hid.

Phi Mu Sigma

By HERSEL MERCER

Roger Bradley

The outlook is promising for Phi Mu Sigma, the men's club, as the new corps of officers enter upon their duties. These officers represent a variety of states and parts of the United States.

Roger Bradley, president, comes from Boulder, Colorado. This is Roger's second year at Madison. Friendly and optimistic, he likes everything and everybody, especially people who are happy. His pet peeve is a frown.

Vice-president Eugene Slaughter comes from the deep South—Macon, Georgia. Tall and light complexioned, he is a friendly boy who enjoys boating, skiing, and lots of water sports.

Hershel Mercer, secretary-treasurer, comes from Pauls Valley, Oklahoma. One look at Hershel's car will show his interest in automotive engineering or hot rods. His pet peeve is the limited use he has of his car.

The club pastor, Daniel Dorchuck, comes from sunny California and has a disposition to match his state. Daniel says his hobbies are cars, hunting, and girls. Happy hunting, Dan!

Not least among the officers is the parliamentarian, Jim Merklin. His home town is Walla Walla, Washington. Jim says his pet peeve is an empty mail box.

Gotzian Dorm is getting a face-lifting. It is receiving a new roof, new siding, and a new paint job. We surely are proud of the way it's beginning to look. Thanks go to Mr. Kunau and his crew for the very fine job they are doing. A group of college boys work in the morning and academy boys work in the afternoon. When completed, the dorm will be one of the nicest appearing buildings on the campus.

Look at all those fresh white uniforms and those shoes polished so well that you can see your reflection in them! This is a picture of the twenty brand-new probies who launched out upon their brand-new roles as "Nurses." Yes, we probies have survived the Linen Room detail and are now "on the floor." You can be sure that the older nurses were overjoyed to see us coming, because our coming meant that we probies would have all the bed baths. We must have our practice, you know.

Someone asked Elpidio Laurel how his first day on the floor went, and he said, "I perspire."

Elaine Hauck has been experimenting with hair styles this week. It seems that she likes to wear her long, blonde hair down her shoulders in the morning until she gets to work; then she runs into the Nurses' Lounge and puts it up into a French twist for worship, only to let it down again when she goes to lunch.

Anne Jensen, junior nursing student from Goodlettsville, Tennessee, was elected president of the Madison College Nursing Club at a meeting of the club on October 27. Miss Jensen was named to fill the gap left when Marlow Coppage, former president, resigned after being elected to the position of second vice-president of the Tennessee Association of Student Nurses.

Have you heard how Ruth Gill rallied to the aid of one of her classmates? It seems that the speaker that Mary Calloway had appointed to take the San Parlor worship service one evening failed to arrive. After the opening song and prayer, Ruth detected a "What-do-I-do-now" look on Mary's face; so she quietly tiptoed up to Mary and told her to announce her (Ruth) as the speaker that night. To Mary's relief, Ruth was serious. So Mary took Ruth at her word. Ruth very "calmly, confidently, and concisely" gave the worship talk that evening.

Just arrived! Dr. Tom Dooley, of international fame! You will, of course, want to meet him—if you get a chance, for he is very, very popular—and read about his adventures as a physician in his books entitled Doctor Tom Dooley, My Story and The Night They Burned the Mountain.

Another physician you will want to meet is Dr. Ignaz Semmelweis, The Doctor Who Saved Babies by discovering the cause and prevention of puerperal fever, which killed so many mothers and their babies around the middle of the nineteenth century. Josephine Rich tells his story in her book by the above title.

Other books in the medical field are: Modern Medical Discoveries, by Irmengarde Eberle, which tells of the discovery of some of our "miracle drugs"; So You Want to Be a Nurse, by Nourse and Halliday, which gives an inside, realistic picture of the nursing profession; and Leaping Upon the Mountain, by Barbara Jurgensen, the true story of a victim of spastic paralysis (cerebral palsy) and his courageous efforts to live with his handicap.

Turning to the field of travel, we present for your enjoyment the book Kon-Tiki, by Thor Heyerdahl, a true story of a modern voyage on a primitive raft, made by the adventurers themselves, 4,300 miles across the Pacific to Polynesia. While the edition we have is a special color edition for young people, we know—from experience—that older readers will enjoy not only the story but the illustrations.

For those of you who are interested in economics, The Waste Makers, by Vance Oakley Packard, will be of interest. In this enlightening book, the author throws the searchlight on some of the present-day practices of marketing, such as forcing consumer buying through "stimulation of materialistic desires, encouragement of the throw-away spirit, planned obsolescence, selling on credit, and dishonest merchandising practices."

nursing instructor. She still continues to help financially in the building up of Cave Springs and plans some day to make her residence there.

Miss Green is a sincere, genuine Christian, and her patients and her fellow workers enjoy her Christian fellowship. As a teacher, she is firm, yet kind, as she admonishes the student nurses against slipshod work of any kind. Truly, her simple, humble life is an example of one who is following in the footsteps of the Saviour, who lived to serve others.

Let's Get Acquainted

MISS NELLIE GREEN

By CHARLOTTE SMITH

God sometimes permits sickness, sorrow, and even tragedy to come that a life may become richer, fuller, and more meaningful. Such has been true in the life of Miss Nellie Green, R.N., dedicated nursing instructor at Madison College.

Because she has known loneliness in her own life, now her hand-clasp and her cheery smile lift the spirits of many a lonely, discouraged person. Her gentle voice, soft touch, and understanding ways have endeared her to her patients, for she also has lain on a hospital bed one weary week after another. As a lonely little girl in an orphanage, she determined that someday she would have an orphan's home where little children like herself would receive loving care.

Nellie Green was born in Michigan, the fifth child in a family of eight children. When she was only four years old, her father was stricken with tuberculosis, and because her mother was unable to care for her large family, the county authorities took little Nellie from her home and placed her in an orphanage. Here she stayed until she was fourteen years old. Then she was placed in a foster home, and later in another, to work and obtain her high school education.

Two years later, with three years of high school completed, she, too, was stricken with tuberculosis. For sixteen months the Tuberculosis Sanatorium at Ft. Wayne, Indiana, became her home. Here the friendship of a twelve-year-old girl meant much to her.

Upon leaving the sanatorium, she had opportunity to finish high school.

In 1929 she went to work as a nurse's aide in the T.B. hospital where she had been a patient, and was employed there for 23 years. During this time she received her L.P.N. certificate and determined to receive an R.N. someday. It was also during this time that Miss Green began receiving Voice of Prophecy lessons in the mail, not knowing who had sent them. She studied them carefully, accepted their message, and was baptized in 1946.

Then she heard of Madison, where older students were often accepted into nursing. She sent in her application and was accepted. It was also during this time that she learned that it was through the 12-year-old girl in the sanatorium that she had received her Voice of Prophecy lessons.

While in training here, she became acquainted with Mrs. Julia Grow, who was then dean of women. Upon learning of Mrs. Grow's desire to establish a school for handicapped children, Miss Green told Mrs. Grow of her own childhood dream—someday to have a home for orphan and unfortunate children. Thus the two were drawn together.

Miss Green and Mrs. Grow visited various sites looking for suitable spots to establish a school. Through their earnest efforts, Cave Springs was organized in 1956.

After her graduation from nursing, Miss Green sought employment that would enable her to be of service and at the same time furnish financial aid for Cave Springs. For about four years she taught in the same T.B. hospital in Ft. Wayne where she had been before. Then she accepted a call to come to Madison to become a

By RUTH GILL

Terry Troy, tall, likable sophomore with short blonde hair and sparkling blue eyes, arrived at Madison College in September, 1960. Nineteen years ago he was born in Dyersburg, Tennessee, where he attended the city public schools for eleven years. His senior year at Highland Academy was enjoyable and still holds many fond memories for him.

Terry, with his out-going personality and leadership abilities, is the top-notch president of the Madison College Chapter of the American Temperance Society. He is now conscientiously serving his second year. Last year he was an active president of the Ushers' Club and leader of the Sunshine Bands. Now, he often finds time to give inspiring seminar talks, which the students thoroughly enjoy.

Terry is a sophomore nurse. After finishing his course, he intends to take anesthesia. He enjoys all sports, especially basketball. He states that his pet peeve is "poor organization!"

Patsy Adkins Is Elected "Miss Student Nurse" for 1961-1962

Miss Patsy Adkins, senior nursing student, is Miss Student Nurse of Madison College for 1961-62. By popular vote and faculty approval, Miss Adkins was elected to represent Madison before the Tennessee Association of Student Nurses. She will now appear before the general assembly of nursing schools in District Number 3, where a panel of judges will select a candidate to represent the district in the state finals. Each candidate will be judged on the basis of a speech to the assembly on the subject, "What Nursing Means to Me."

Patsy is five feet, five inches tall and has dark brown hair and sparkling brown eyes. She has a very warm and outgoing personality, a quality which has won for her a large circle of friends. She came to Madison from her home town of Bozeman, Montana, in 1956. Most of her academy years were spent at Mt. Ellis Academy in Bozeman, before transferring to Madison, where she completed her senior year.

As a district officer of TASN (Tennessee Association of Student Nurses), she has served as secretary and second vice-president.

On learning of her election as Miss Student Nurse, Patsy has this to say:

"I want to thank all my classmates and friends for selecting me for Miss Student Nurse of Madison College. It is a great honor, and I will do my best in representing Madison. A heartfelt thanks to all for the opportunity of adding this event to my moments to remember."

Patsy Adkins

The movings of the Holy Spirit were felt as Elder Coon presented Christ, the positive, "Christ in you, the hope of glory."

MV LITERATURE BANDS

Thirty went out to distribute literature Sabbath afternoon and a big turnout is expected this coming Sabbath for another trip. David Martin has been elected as the band leader.

MV OPERATION BEDSIDE

This active group met a few days ago to discuss plans. More than 50 people turned out for the meeting. Kay Forrester, the leader, was much pleased with the offering taken up at MV last week, which amounted to $25.

MV MASTER-GUIDE CLASS

Forty-five have signed up for the Master Guide class under the direction of Mrs. Bowes. From President Davidson on down to freshmen—all are enthusiastic to finish the course for a large investiture in the late spring. Still others are desiring to join this group—it already promises to be well over 50.

MV BIBLE CONFERENCE

November 29—and some 35 people will be heading for Florida for the second conference of its kind for the Southern Union. A full report will be given in the MV meeting the following week.

MV SUNSHINE BANDS

Plans are nearing conclusion for providing personal cheer to individuals in the hospital. A patient will be able to request a favorite hymn and have it presented by a trained section of the MV sunshine group.

NEW MV LEADER FOR THE ACADEMY

Because of a heavy schedule, Janice Thomson has been relieved of her responsibilities as academy MV leader. Her place is filled by Bunny Knight. We wish to express our sincere thanks to Janice for her good work and we welcome Bunny into our leadership.

MV HOUR OF POWER

Some ten or more students meet daily for devotion and prayer to gain strength as Daniel did at the mid-day. They meet in the faculty room at 12:30 from Monday through Friday. All are welcome to come whenever they can. Harold Gentry is the leader.

MV PRESENTS BOOKS

The society has presented the library with the 1962 Senior Reading Course books, which will soon be ready to circulate.

Academy Forum Elects Officers

Temperance Society Is Organized

This year the academy is having its separate temperance organization. At a recent election Larry Bowes was chosen president and Jo Ann Young, secretary of the academy ATS.

Functions are being planned especially for the academy students. Don't forget the orations, posters, essays, and jingles that may be turned in as soon as you complete them.

Want Another Party?

Do you remember the nice time everyone had a few weeks ago at a get-together on Saturday evening in the Welfare Building? And do you remember that we said there would be more such gatherings?

It has been suggested that during or just before the Christmas holidays would be a nice time for a party. Any suggestions as to kind of recreation and games will be gladly received. The specific date will be set later. Keep watching for it.

Choir Sings for Church Services

The academy choir has been alternating with the college choir from week to week at the second church service. On November 4 the schedule was changed and the academy sang for the first service instead. Everyone enjoys the inspiration of listening to music that only a choral group can give. You will be hearing from this group again. The choir wishes to welcome its new members.

An Invitation

Those who have been attending the Friday night academy prayer band wish to invite others to join in these weekly prayer circles. Mr. L. A. Watson has been leading out in the band, which is held in the Demonstration Building immediately following the vesper service. You will receive a blessing as you are drawn closer to the Saviour in these gatherings.

Jackie Cothren was elected to the presidency of the Academy ASMC Forum at an election held recently. Daniel Bartell was elected secretary. Mr. Keplinger was chosen as the coordinator. These three will represent the academy at meetings of the Student-Teacher Council.

Have You Noticed?

Sandra Dorris has lost her golden brown locks in exchange for a short haircut. But we like your bob, Sandy. . . . Did you ever find your missing purse, Jean Lindley? Hope so, but if not, happy hunting! . . . The academy students were highly honored last week to have a special guest in their classrooms, "Snoopy," a dog. Get out, you rascal! . . . Have you met our new member of the freshman class? Welcome, Delores Cutter. . . . Also, have you seen the Chinaman among us? Linda Myers, we adore your long blonde braid. . . . Have you noticed something unusual, something different? If you have, just let us know, and we'll put it in this column in the next issue of the paper.

Happy Birthday!

Elder Jack Just plays a clarinet solo, accompanied by Mrs. Just at the piano

What Does the Week of Prayer Mean to You?

Loretta Billings: "A chance to renew my faith, a better understanding of religion."

Lydia Zaft: "A new outlook on the beauty and positiveness of Christ."

Dorothy Maxwell: "It brings a closer connecting link between Christ and the students."

Jerry Brown: "A renewal of spiritual convictions."

Tommy Young: "It gives me a better spiritual outlook on life."

Juanita Mercado: "It has helped me to come closer to God. I enjoyed it so much that I didn't want to miss a single sermon."

Steve Marlow: "It has shown me a practical way to overcome many of the problems of my life."

Betty Williams: "The faculty and students are drawn closer together and are striving for the same goal—Heaven."

Delta Nu Zeta Announces Officers

The new girls' club officers made their appearance in a unique way at the club meeting on the evening of November 2.

Nita Lanham, dressed in black with hair powdered white, came out onto the platform looking very much distressed about something. It seemed that some money had been misplaced and Nita was very anxious to find it. Esther Minesinger, Darlene Syvertson, and Glenda Sheffield had evidently had a hand in the loss, and Ruth Gill appeared, trying to help the situation. The skit pinpointed the need of the girls' paying their club dues so that the club might function properly.

Ruth Gill then announced the new officers: Ruth Gill, president; Esther Minesinger, vice-president; Darlene Syvertson, secretary; Glenda Sheffield, treasurer; Nita Lanham, parliamentarian; Billie Jean Harrison, pastor.

The members of the Madison College music faculty were presented in concert on Saturday night, November 4, in the Helen Funk Assembly Hall. They presented a program of instrumental and vocal numbers, which was well received by a large audience.

The five members of the Music Department performing in the concert were Elder J. A. Just, tenor; Mr. J. C. Haupt, French horn; Mr. G. W. Walper, organ; Mrs. Rose Chesnut, piano; and Mrs. Donna Just, piano. The program, the first music concert of the school year, opened on a patriotic note, with the audience singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

Mr. Walper, teacher of organ, played "Agincourt Hymn," "Pieces from the Musical Clocks," "Festival Toccato," and the general favorite, "Finlandia."

Elder Just, chairman of the Music Department, sang "I know a Hill," an Italian number, "Caro Mio Ben," "Pleading," "Calm as the Night," "When Love Is Kind," and "Tally Ho." He also played a clarinet solo.

Mr. Haupt, band director and instructor in band instruments, played "Dream of the Rose," "Traumerei," "Cavatine from Greischutz," "Mazurka," "Romanza," and "Rhondo" on his French horn.

The closing numbers—"Cossack Picnic" and "Sicilienne"—were presented in piano duets by Mrs. Donna Just and Mr. George Walper.
