Three ASMC officers-elect for the 1964-65 academic year recently attended the 14th annual Eastern Intercollegiate Workshop held at Andrews University, Berrien Springs, Michigan, April 23-24.

Delegates attending were Ed Hagopian, ASMC president-elect, Kearron Purcell, Cumberland Echoes editor-elect, and Harryette Good, MADISONIAN editor-elect. Also attending was George Smothermon, ASMC treasurer for the past school year.

"The purpose of this year's workshop is to determine the influence and jurisdiction of the Student Association in our denominational schools," stated Bill Haynor, president of the Andrews University Student Association and workshop director. The theme was "scrutiny."

The keynote address for the workshop was given by Dr. Lief Tobiason on Thursday morning. Dr. Tobiason first originated the workshop idea and is now professor of history and political science at Andrews University.

Workshop delegates from the eight Seventh-day Adventist colleges in attendance spent most of their time participating in one of the many discussion groups organized by the Andrews University

L. J. Larson to Be Academic Dean

Mr. Lewis Jennings Larson, B.S., M.A., Ed. S.

Will Receive Doctorate Soon From Peabody

Lewis J. Larson was invited by the College Board in its recent meeting to become Dean of Madison College. He will assume his full responsibilities as Dean within the next few weeks.

Judson Assumes Charge of Ag Department

Mr. Frank Judson, who has been acting this year as consultant and associate head of the Agriculture Department, has now taken complete charge of the Department and will move here early in June, according to an announcement by President Beckner.

Judson comes to MC from La Sierra College, Arlington, California, where he and his assistants operated the college's agriculture department on a large commercial basis. While under his supervision the farm netted $30,000 a year, and the poultry cleared $18,000.

He helped perfect a 17 per cent protein all-vegetable chicken feed from grains and legumes, with most of its fats in unsaturated form. He said that for more than five years the department has been producing eggs with a near-zero cholesterol content.

A graduate of the Madison College Class of 1938, Judson also holds the Master of Science degree from the University of Tennessee.

Mr. Judson is bringing with him $12,000 worth of his own personal farm equipment. The additional equipment includes a powerful Massey-Harris 44 tractor, grass and corn choppers, a Gehl Brothers self-unloading silage wagon, and a silo filler which is Mr. Judson's own invention.

Other members of the agriculture faculty for 1964-65 will include J. A. Tucker, M.A., Lee Eusey, M.A., and Dale Anderson, who is receiving his master's degree from Oklahoma State University this month.

Dean Larson brings to his new position a wide and varied background of educational experience. He has served on the staff of Spicer Memorial College, Poona, India, intermittently from 1945 to 1961. He has been principal of intermediate and secondary schools both in the United States and in India, and was a Ford Foundation Teaching Fellow at George Peabody College for Teachers in Nashville.

Dean Larson was a student teacher at Walla Walla College and at Broadview College, was dean of boys at Forest Lake Academy, and has taught at Madison College in 1937-38, 1945-46, and 1962-63. This past year he has been principal of Madison Academy.

Dean Larson received his Bachelor of Science degree from Madison College in 1938, his M.A. in Education Administration from George Peabody College for Teachers in 1947, his Specialist in Education degree from Peabody College in 1963, and is a candidate for the Ed. D. in Higher Education

Administration at George Peabody College.

Dean Larson is a member of Rotary International and Phi Delta Kappa. He has served as an editor and is the author of numerous books and magazine articles.

IN AN INTERVIEW recently Horace Beckner, college president, expressed his happiness over the appointment.

"Elder Larson has a fine record of experience in denominational school administration behind him. We are very happy that he has accepted this position and are confident that he will do much to strengthen the academic position of Madison College," Elder Beckner stated.

Madison College Celebrates Sixtieth Anniversary

The annual home-coming and sixtieth anniversary programs were held earlier this month, beginning Friday evening and ending Saturday night on the weekend of May 1 and 2.

A sacred musicale was presented by faculty and student representatives from Little Creek School, Concord, Tennessee, before the consecration service. Elder Don R. Rees, president of the Southern Union Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, spoke on "Prayer, Faith, and Action."

Dr. Joe Sutherland, a local physician and son of Dr. E. A. Sutherland, who founded MC, was presented a plaque for being the honor alumnus of the year. John Crowder Sabbath afternoon by Mr. James Zeigler, Mr. L. J. Larson, and President Horace Beckner. Elder F. A. Mote spoke at the short vesper service at sundown.

About two hundred alumni, friends, and invited guests attended the Saturday-night banquet in the Williams Hall dining room. The evening program was listed as a Cantonese Soiree in Shangri-la Gardens and followed an oriental theme throughout.

A gift of appreciation was presented to outgoing president Bernard Bowen, director of the School of Anesthesia, and to his wife, Dollie.

Mrs. Edythe Cothren, new president of the alumni association, made a short acceptance speech, saying that "the shadows of events blurred into just one word — CHALLENGE! We will meet this challenge by our achievements . . . To paraphrase the words of our late President Kennedy, 'Ask not what your college can do for you; but ask what you can do for your college.'"

Other newly elected officers include Mr. William Grover, vice-president; Mrs. Jean Hassenpflug and Mrs. Winifred Kelly, secretaries; and Mr. Kenneth Knight, auditor. Mr. James Blair will continue as treasurer and will be assisted by Mr. Lawrence Bidwell of the fund-raising committee.

Sandborn Honored at LLU

William D. Sandborn, a graduate of Madison Academy and a Madison College student in 1958, was one of thirteen medical students recently initiated into the national medical honor society, Alpha Omega Alpha, at Loma Linda University.

Billy is a member of the Class of 1965 at Loma Linda University, California, reports the LLU Scope.

Art Berard Wins First Award in Pen League

Arthur Berard, a student in English composition, has won a first award in the 35th Annual Youth's Instructor Scholastic Pen League contest. He received $50 for his story of how his academy senior class built a church near Pine Forest Academy, Chunky, Mississippi.

Art's award was one of four first awards given this year. No grand award was made. A total of 195 manuscripts were submitted this year; 13 received awards and 11 were judged usable for publication.

Berard, whose home is in Atlanta, Georgia, is an X-ray student here. When a vacancy occurred in the office of president of the ASMC, he was elected to fill the position last March. He is also a news writer for the MADISONIAN.

Last year Cheryle Chisholm and Jo Anne Hilde received third awards of $25 each in the Freshman English division. Jim Wagner, whose story was judged usable and accepted by the contest judges for printing, was awarded $20. All three students submitted first-person stories.

The Pen League was begun in 1929-30 by Lora E. Clement, who was the editor of the Youth's Instructor for 30 years. The purpose of the program is to train Seventh-day Adventist young people in the technique of writing for Christian journals.

Miss Elizabeth Cowdrick is the instructor for the classes in English composition at Madison College.

Guest Editorial

Excellence to Be Watchword of Madison Education

by L. J. LARSON, ACADEMIC DEAN

A most interesting statement is made by Ellen G. White on page 17 of Education. "Every human being, created in the image of God, is endowed with a power akin to that of the Creator,—individuality, power to think and to do . . . It is the work of true education to develop this power; to train the youth to be thinkers, and not mere reflectors of other men's thoughts." (Italics supplied)

In the areas of education to be offered at Madison College—academic, technological, and trade—excellence must be the watchword. Inferiority and mediocrity have no place in God's plan for the youth of His church.

"The head—not the tail" indicates outstanding superiority. This is a goal worth striving for as administrators, teachers, and students at our college.

Let us all plan now and work together for a rewarding future.

New Dean Is Well Qualified

The college is fortunate indeed to have L. J. Larson as its new academic dean. Mr. Larson recognizes the need for scholastic improvement and greater academic excellence at our school. His wealth of experience and his progressive ideas are certain to help our college achieve a superior reputation.

In his first chapel talk as dean, Mr. Larson announced that the college would seek full recognition and accreditation as a junior college from the Southern Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools. He said that the first two years of a regular collegiate program would be offered, beginning in September. The technical courses will also be on a collegiate level. These courses will be so designed that the students can transfer if they wish to four-year colleges to complete the requirements for a full college degree. One-year trade courses will also be taught but these will not be taught in association with regular college courses and will carry no college credit.

These announced programs are certain to please almost everyone, and they are the type which the MADISONIAN has been advocating this past year.

When all the standards are met and when accreditation is received at last, no student need ever be ashamed of his alma mater.

In fact, some of us who are beyond the sophomore year in college wish, in a way, that we weren't. How wonderful it will be to have a part in building the new Madison College!

Fun With Chemistry Brings Near Disaster

(ACP) — Peter Riesenfeld, 18-year-old freshman at the University of California, Berkeley, was working on a supposedly safe and routine experiment in his home, says The Daily Californian.

The experiment failed and Riesenfeld poured the results into an empty flask. But the flask wasn't empty. The incident caused the evacuation of four homes in the area. Foot traffic near the home was rerouted. All cars were removed.

A few days before, he had poured some glycerin into the flask after using it to lubricate stoppers in his equipment cabinet. The glycerin and the solution from his experiment reacted to form over 50cc. of nitroglycerin. Nitroglycerin is so explosive that only a few drops will blow up a safe. Jarring or loud noises can detonate the explosive.

Riesenfeld realized his mistake. He telephoned an explosives company to find out what to do. He was told to call the fire department. This brought a demolition crew, which poured the chemical solution into a bucket of sawdust and washed out the flask with acetone. The bucket was burned at the city dump.

At last reports, Riesenfeld still is a chemistry major.

Do you remember the book, Dr. Ida, the story of the founder of Christian Medical College at Vellore, India? The author of that thrilling, inspirational book, Dorothy Clarke Wilson, has written another story, equally interesting, inspiring, and dramatic. It is the biography of a young Indian woman, Dr. Mary Verghese, who, shortly after graduation from the college founded by Dr. Ida Scudder, fell victim to an accident which left her a paraplegic. Take My Hand is the story of "how she reconstructed her life, how she learned to perform delicate hand and face operations while seated in her wheel chair, and how she became a fully qualified rehabilitation specialist." Every Christian should read this narrative of an "extraordinary Christian faith and devotion born out of intense sufferings and shared with people in many parts of the world."

Last month we called attention to the book, Eleven Blue Men, by Berton Roueche. Just recently we received another book containing additional stories of medical detection written by this author, entitled

Frezza, Combs, and Jahr Win in Madisonian Literary Contest

Three entries in the MADISONIAN Literary Contest were judged acceptable for publication. No grand, first, or second award was given.

Richard Frezza won third award and $4.00 for "The Plumber." James Combs and Judy Jahr were runners-up who received $1.00 each for "Childhood Memory" and "Aroma."

All three are college freshmen.

The Plumber

by RICHARD FREZZA

With much dismay, I gazed upon the tangled mass of pipe that crisscrossed in all directions under the floor of the girls' dorm. It was my job to untangle and sort out, if possible, the unsalvageable pipe and restore—in proper order—with new pipe.

Now, one who is not familiar with plumbing cannot have the faintest conception of what it is like to attempt to dismantle steam pipe that has been tightly sealed by thirty or forty years of constant steam and accumulation of rust. Most of the time old pipes such as these are so welded together by corrosion that it is sometimes impossible to loosen them with a wrench. How, then, do we disconnect the stubborn joints? By sheer sweat and blood and the use of a two-pound hammer. The joint is battered with great force until it is shattered, setting the pipe free.

As to working conditions (under the girls' dorm), the temperature would be considered somewhat tropical, ranging from 120 degrees to 130 degrees. This can be very cozy, considering that the space between the ground and the floor varies intermittently from sixteen inches to the extreme height of twenty-four inches, which, of course, necessitates crawling on one's stomach while under the building.

You might ask, "Why would

At the same time, Andrews University was host to an MV workshop dealing with general discussion problems which the MV societies of SDA colleges must face. Madison College's delegate to this workshop was Glenn Belk, MV leader.

Letters to the Editor

EDITORIAL NOTE: Opinions and views expressed in the following letters do not necessarily represent those of the editorial staff, the ASMC, or Madison College.

To the students:

It has indeed been a privilege to serve you this year. We, the elected officers of the ASMC, appreciate the trust you placed in us and hope that we have proven worthy. Your spirit of cooperation has made our job much easier than it might have been and any success that has been achieved belongs to you, for without your contribution it would not have been possible.

For this we sincerely thank you.

We have had many good times together this year in work, study, and play. We shall always recall these memories with fondness, I'm sure.

We students of Madison College have much to be proud of. Our school may not compare with other institutions in size, prestige, or material advantages. And it should not, but at Madison one can find many good opportunities which can be found nowhere else, if he will only look. In any endeavor, no matter what or where, one gets out of something exactly what he puts into it.

We are all human. We may find influences of which we disapprove and individuals with whom we may disagree, but we must look for the good in others and search out the undesirable points in ourselves.

If your sole purpose in coming to Madison was to seek an ordinary education to make a living, then you have come in vain. The world offers much more in terms of money, prestige, and fame. Thomas Gray penned eternal words of wisdom when he wrote:

The boast of heraldry, the pomp of pow'r,

And all that beauty, all that wealth e'er gave,

Awaits alike the inevitable hour:

The paths of glory lead but to the grave.

Sincerely your friend,

George Smothermon
ASMC treasurer

The MADISONIAN staff announces that an award of two dollars will be made from time to time for outstanding letters to the editor. We hope that many students will take advantage of this opportunity and will feel free to express their opinions. Award winning letters will be designated by three stars.

Student Opinion Poll

Question: What are your comments regarding the student association, its activities, or the recent elections?

Patricia Bergen:

I think the ASMC should be commended for the things it has done for Madison College. I know everyone has enjoyed the social functions we have had.

Our school paper is always "newsy." It is usually out on time and the editorial staff is doing a good job.

Joyce Wynn:

I feel the ASMC should sponsor more activities. One problem, however, is that not all of the students participate in the activities that are provided.

Maybe the ASMC could sponsor some small-group campouts. And perhaps they could announce cultural and musical events to take place in Nashville so that interested students could attend.

Josie Tipton:

I am well aware of the fact that the Student-Teacher Council is elected by the student body. But I do not feel it is fair for the STC to decide who will run for the various offices. The student body should be allowed to make these nominations.

If the student body were to nominate these candidates, more students would be nominated and we would have a greater number of candidates from which to choose. This system of elections would be more democratic and more students would have an opportunity to run for offices.

Loretta Wyatt:

I think the ASMC should have more chapel periods. I wish the school song could be sung more often.

Sue Copley:

I would like to ask a question regarding the voting procedure used to elect our new officers. Why was it necessary to have the ballots numbered and then why were the students required to sign their names next to corresponding numbers on the voting registration sheet? In the democratic system that we have today no one should be able to see who voted for whom.

Editor's reply: This voting procedure is used to make sure that only registered students at MC vote in the election, and that no student votes more than once. After this check is made of the ballots and before the votes are counted, the numbers on the corners of the ballots are torn off and thrown away under the supervision of the committee designated to count the ballots. Thus no one ever compares the markings on the ballot with the name of the voter.

Born in Arkansas City, Kansas, on September 7, 1944, Ed Bradley has served this year as president of the college chapter of the American Temperance Society.

Ed is a cheerful freshman who always has a slight grin for everyone he meets. He stands six feet, two inches tall, and lists his hobbies as driving a car and traveling.

He enjoys a variety of foods but likes pizza the best. He doesn't approve of people who have no aim in life and he dislikes fast talkers and slow drivers. In sports he likes water-skiing, swimming, and baseball. When he has time, Ed enjoys listening to classical music.

His favorite general subject is Bible. This interest will help him in his life ambition, to be a staff member at an SDA school.

Ed is noted for falling asleep in his classes and often has to be poked in the ribs to be kept from snoring in chapel.

His philosophy in life might be put in these words: Approach people with a Christian spirit and you'll be sure to win their friendship.

Glynda Howard

Glynda Howard hails from Boulder, Colorado but was born in the state of New Mexico. Born on October 12, the date of the discovery of America by Christopher Columbus, Glynda discovered America in 1942.

This year she was chosen treasurer of the graduating class. Glynda, who possesses the nickname "Gigs," lists three "R's" as her favorites—reading, riding, and records. She has an unusual interest in travel by car, bus, or train. She enjoys many things ranging from homemade ice cream and tomato sandwiches to people with a sense of humor and those who do not lose their temper.

Glynda attended Union College in Nebraska for two years, but this year came to Madison College so she could take Medical Records Technology. Her ultimate ambition in life is to be proficient in her chosen career.

She hates onions and rumors that have no basis. Her pet peeve is "two-faced people."

When asked about her favorite personality on the campus, Glynda grinned and laughingly answered, "My roommate, Kearron Purcell," and then added, "because she has put up with me without once losing her temper."

stepped from the train, our eager faces searching the platform for a precious and familiar face. Soon we spotted Dad, or else he spotted us, for he was just as eager as we were. There he stood, with a smile on his face and a flower in his hand—no one ever looked so good to three tired travelers. He led us to the car he had obtained to take us to our new home, and as we entered that strange new home with Dad, we knew that it was worth all the months of preparation and the weeks of travel to be again with one who loved us so much.

Aroma

by JUDY JAHR

Just a wee bundle of striped, soft silky black and white fur, a ballooning belly, a snub snout, two beady black eyes—that was Aroma. He was small enough to lie in the palm of my hand, the orphaned baby skunk.

He was given to us by friends of ours, who had two and decided the skunks were too much bother to keep any more. Aroma's mother had been killed by an automobile. He, with his five brothers and sisters, was captured near the place his mother met her fate.

Aroma would eat almost anything. His favorite foods consisted of raw eggs, hamburger, crickets, "crawdads," June bugs, and berries. We even got a doll bottle from which he would drink milk.

Because skunks are nocturnal, they usually sleep during the day. Aroma was no exception. He would waken about 7:00 p.m. and would

Scharffenberg Emphasizes Importance of Science

In his chapel talk on May 7, Dr. John H. Scharffenberg emphasized the importance of the teaching of science in our schools — teaching courses that will enable a student to be at the top in his field.

Dr. Scharffenberg quoted the following from Fundamentals of Christian Education, p. 186, as the basis for his remarks:

"A knowledge of science of all kinds is power, and it is in the purpose of God that advanced science shall be taught in our schools as a preparation for the work that is to precede the closing scenes of earth's history."

The doctor urged those who are interested in science to consider the many fields of usefulness open to them. In addition to medicine, he stressed the field of nutrition and the need for research workers, chefs, food service directors, bakers, dietitians.

"There is opportunity for Seventh-day Adventist nutrition scientists to demonstrate to the world principles that are far in advance of our age," the speaker said.

Dr. Scharffenberg is a research worker in the field of nutrition. A member of the Class of 1948, he received his M.D. degree from Loma Linda University and later took additional training at Harvard University. Before coming to Madison to help in reorganizing Madison Foods, he was connected with the Nutritional Research Foundation, Riverside, California.

Book Gossip

The Incurable Wound. Both books are as fascinating to the average reader as they are to the medical and nursing professions.

Eight years ago the world was shocked by the news of the death of five young missionaries to the Indians of Ecuador and to the dread Auca Indians in particular who ambushed and slew them. In spite of the difficulties involved, the wives of these martyred men resolved to carry on the work which was just getting started among the Aucas and to gain entrance, if at all possible, into the tribe, with the object, of course, of spreading the gospel. In her book, Shadow of the Almighty, Elisabeth Elliot, wife of one of the martyrs, tells of his life of consecration and deep devotion to the cause which ultimately led to his death in one of the greatest missionary adventures of modern times.

Through Gates of Splendor, written also by Elisabeth Elliot, gives a first-hand account of the martyrdom of the five young missionaries. A film by that name, based on this book, was shown here recently, you may recall.

The Dayuma Story, by Ethel Emily Wallis, tells of the efforts made to secure a safe entrance into the savage tribe responsible for the deaths.

"The world is full of men who are making good livings, but poor lives."

College and Academy Students Enjoy Annual Picnic at Shelby

Playing against the college softball team at the annual spring picnic held at Shelby Park, the academy students won the first game with a score of 8 to 4.

Bud Cossentine, junior academy student, took first place in three track contests—the one-mile run, 220-yard dash, and the 100-yard dash. Jerry Shilling, a college freshman, won second place in these races. Nancy Grotheer, college sophomore, won the girls' 50-yard dash, with Harryette Good and Elizabeth Larson from the academy tying for a second place.

In an unscheduled ball game the college team beat the academy with a 12-6 score. The college girls won the softball game against the academy girls.

A delicious dinner and supper were provided by the college cafeteria.

The college bus and private cars transported the students to the Nashville park on May 12 for the day of ball games, good food, races, and other activities sponsored by the student association.

want to play.

Skunks have a way of playing like no other animal. They stamp their tiny feet three times, scoot back, raise their tails — and stop. They'll threaten and threaten to spray, but never do they lose control.

After Aroma would tire of playing with us, or we would tire of playing with him, he would go outside and hunt for the rest of the evening. He would waddle back the next morning, his fur soaking wet from the dew—and with a deep sigh, crawl into bed with my sister or me. What better way is there for a skunk to end a perfect day?

MV Society Expresses Thanks to Students

Another school year is at its close. The Missionary Volunteer society thanks each student for helping to make this year a success. Many participated in the programs; others helped by ushering, controlling the lights, and attending the MV activities.

The missionary activities have been successful because many have been willing to give their time, effort, and money to support the jail band, orphanage band, sunshine band, and other activities. Unselfish efforts helped to give hope to the hopeless, put a smile on some child's face, and cast the gloom from an old person's thoughts.

Many students will be leaving the college this summer. Those who have had experience in the college MV work will be called upon to lead in their home church or in another school.

May God guide and direct each student's life so that all will be ready to go home with Him someday to be members of the heavenly MV Society forevermore.

Jobs Are Available For Prospective Students

Summer work opportunities will be available to students who wish to earn part of their expenses for the 1964-65 school year. A student who satisfactorily works a minimum of 400 hours will have a bonus-scholarship of eighty to one hundred dollars or more applied to his account in addition to the regular wages.

"Students who plan to attend Madison College in the fall quarter should file their applications as soon as possible," states Mr. W. W. Oakes, registrar and director of admissions.

The Office of the Registrar, Madison College, Madison, Tennessee 37115, will be happy to answer any questions regarding curriculum, costs, and admissions. A newly revised college bulletin will be available later in the summer.

Adventists Oppose Constitution Change

Washington, D. C. — The opposition of the Seventh-day Adventist Church to the Becker Amendment was aired Wednesday, May 20, before the House Judiciary Committee. The proposed amendment would permit voluntary prayer in public schools. Theodore Carcich, president of the Adventist Church's North American Division, presented the denomination's official statement of protest against the Becker amendment. The statement declared that the Becker amendment and others of a similar nature would weaken the First Amendment to the Constitution, which provides for government neutrality toward religion.

The amendment, if approved, would nullify the Supreme Court's recent ruling that prayer and Bible reading in public schools are unconstitutional, he said, and would result in a breach in the wall of separation between church and state. The Adventist church operates the largest Protestant parochial school system in the world, with a total enrollment of more than 320,000 students.

Graduates Express Thanks to Teachers

In behalf of the senior class we wish to express our appreciation to the school and the teachers for the wonderful training we have received. As we go our various ways we shall ever keep with us fond memories of Madison Academy.

We appreciate the way the teachers have helped us in our class rooms, both with our studies and with extracurricular activities. The spiritual help has broadened our outlook on life.

Wherever we go, we shall always uphold our school.

Students whom we leave behind, we encourage you to study hard, because the road ahead is not easy. Make the most of your opportunities. We shall remember you and the good times we have had with you.

Anne Grotheer

A happy, smiling, studious, and busy girl—that is Virginia Anne Grotheer, class valedictorian and recipient of a $100 scholarship to Southern Missionary College last month.

College at Madison is in next year's plan for her, but Anne hopes to go to her father's alma mater, Union College in Lincoln, Nebraska, later on. Her ambition is to be a missionary to South America, perhaps a doctor. Her main scholastic interests lie in mathematics and science.

Anne came to Madison Academy for the 1962-63 school year as a sophomore, but she decided to work extra hard, and because of her diligence she is finishing high school in three years.

She was born in Macon, Georgia, on July 15, 1947. From Georgia her family moved to Canada, then to Virginia, Indiana, and finally to Tennessee.

Anne enjoys sewing and collecting snapshots. She also sings, plays the piano and one or two other instruments, and also gives readings.

David Jennings

One of the most carefree and light-hearted personalities in the senior class is David Jennings. No matter where he is, whether in or out of school, he always has something to say that will usually make you feel—well, light-hearted.

Water skiing, football, basketball, baseball, and especially drawing are well-loved hobbies. Many sketches such as the background for the academy springtime banquet and film benefit posters have all been drawn by David. His temperance posters won first and third prizes in the recent temperance contest.

David, class parliamentarian, has been very faithful in all phases of class activity. Undoubtedly, many have seen him selling doughnuts, spaghetti supper tickets, or standing behind a table during a senior bake sale.

After school David works on the college paint crew under the eye of the master, Mr. Oscar Grass. At present, he is helping paint the upper half of Williams Hall. Naturally, his pet peeve at the moment is painting at a high altitude with a sticky paint brush.

David has not quite decided on his life career, but no doubt it will prove to be an interesting one.

He is planning to attend college here at Madison next year.

David served as MADISONIAN editor part of this school year.

The quietest member of the senior class is Sandra Dorris, who has attended Madison Academy all four years. She was born on October 5, 1944. Sandra is five feet, five inches tall.

Sandra is a talented artist. Her hobbies include drawing people, constructing and drawing house plans, and planning interior decorating. She also enjoys sewing, gardening, cooking, and swimming.

Sandra's pet peeve is people who get big-headed. She says that she would like to travel and that she hopes to do some traveling some day. She also hopes to ride in an airplane one of these days.

Her greatest ambition in life should be the ambition of each Madison Academy student, that of pleasing others.

In September Sandra is enrolling in Medical Records Technology at Madison College.

Nellie Campbell

"Five foot two, eyes of green."

Well, maybe it doesn't rhyme, but it certainly describes another member of the senior class.

One of the busiest, happiest, most cheerful, and most willing members of the Class of 1964 is blonde Nellie Campbell, present editor of the academy section of the MADISONIAN.

She was born on March 6, 1946, in Vanderbilt Hospital, and is a member of a large and happy family.

Nellie has attended Madison Academy all four years. She has been vice-president of the junior class, secretary of the senior class, and secretary of the American Temperance Society. Along with all these activities and with her work as secretary in the alumni office, Nellie still finds time for her hobbies of cooking and horseback riding.

Nellie is looking forward to her freshman year in college at SMC, where she will study secretarial science.

In case some of the MADISONIAN readers don't know, Nellie's nickname is "Nookie."

Seniors Work Hard to Earn Money for New York Trip

"May 30 at 10:00 p.m.—that's the date and the time."

"The date and the time for what?"

"Why, that's when the seniors embark on their five-day trip to New York and the World's Fair!"

Immediately after graduation, the senior class is leaving for New York. They will be joined by their chaperons, Mr. and Mrs. J. Camara and Mrs. L. J. Larson, and ten others. The class arranged the trip with the Continental Trailways Tours, Inc.

Their itinerary includes sightseeing, an overnight stay in Washington, D.C., and three days' sightseeing in New York and at the World's Fair. On Thursday morning the class leaves New York and will arrive on the Madison campus Friday afternoon after an overnight stop in Roanoke, Virginia.

At the present time an all-out campaign is in progress for the raising of that last $100, the buying of new clothes, and the deciding of what old clothes to take along.

Elder Mote Will Speak at Commencement Service Is Theme of Class Aim, Motto

Elder F. A. Mote, field secretary of the General Conference, will deliver the commencement address at the Madison Academy graduation exercises on Saturday evening, May 30.

A consecration service on Friday evening will inaugurate the commencement exercises of the Class of 1964. Elder Don Holland, Missionary Volunteer secretary of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference, will be the speaker.

Elder F. W. Foster, educational secretary of the Kentucky-Tennessee Conference, will be the baccalaureate speaker Sabbath morning.

The class will be led by Phil Brooks, president of the junior class, and Lenetta Paddock, vice-president. The juniors will also march with the class and will stand as guards the length of the line of march.

Assam Girl Helped By Academy Freshmen

The freshmen of Madison Academy have raised $26.92 to help a young girl from Assam in northeast India become a doctor, the first of her people to receive medical training.

When Elder Willis Lowry, a missionary to Assam for many years, visited Madison earlier in the school year, he told the Academy during a chapel period of a girl in the Lushai Hills of Assam, who was studying to become a doctor, the first doctor of this area. She is a graduate of Spicer College, the Division senior college. Her parents are able to give $600, and the Southern Asia Division is able to give $600 more toward her training. The total amount needed is $1800. And so the freshman class thought it would like to have a part in her medical training. The members gave their class dues and also had two bake sales.

White-Elephant Sale Nets $168

The hard-working seniors of 1964, with the help of the community, raised more than $168 in less than five hours when they held a white-elephant sale on the porch of Assembly Hall on April 23.

Four tables stacked high with toys, chinaware, household goods, and games, all generously donated by different stores in the Madison-Nashville area and by people on the campus, attracted buyers of all ages. Soft drinks, sandwiches, and baked goods were also sold.

Later in the evening the Walt Disney film, "Tonka," was shown.

The senior class and their class sponsor, Mr. J. Camara, wish to thank Mrs. J. C. Gant, Mrs. Virginia Wright, and their helpers for their assistance in making the white-elephant sale a real success.

Mr. Camara to Be Principal of Nashville Junior Academy

Mr. Joseph Camara

Mr. Joseph Camara, senior class sponsor, has accepted the principalship of the Greater Nashville Junior Academy. Mr. Camara, who has received a $1500 scholarship from Peabody College, will also work on a doctorate in science education.

Mr. Camara received an M.A. from Walla Walla in Biology and an M.A. from the University of South Dakota in Parasitology. His B.A. is from Atlantic Union College.

He has worked with the Boy Scouts of America, the Red Cross, the Missionary Volunteers, the Pathfinders, and a Community Scholarship Committee.

Mr. Camara has various hobbies including flying, fishing, and hiking. He has his own private flying licenses.

Juniors, Seniors Picnic at Edwin Warner Park

A day of fun, ball games, running, "getting wet" in the creek, eating, and just sitting around in the spring sunshine, made up the May 7 junior-senior picnic held at beautiful Edwin Warner Park about 30 miles away.

The juniors and seniors piled into cars about eight o'clock in the morning and returned that evening. They were accompanied by Mr. Joseph Camara, Mr. and Mrs. L. J. Larson, and Mrs. Lois Thompson.

A tasty spaghetti dinner was preceded and followed by ball games. Relay races and other games filled the afternoon. Congratulations to Meredith Hudgens—he succeeded in resisting all efforts to throw him in the creek. Steve Yoshimura wasn't so lucky.

The spaghetti dinner and the sandwich supper were prepared by Lenetta Paddock and Elizabeth Ann Larson. Phil Brooks, George Slater, David Kelley, Bud Cossentine, and Dan Ballew planned the games.

Graduates Tell Plans For Next Year

Four of the seniors will go to Southern Missionary College next year: Ronnie Herman will study premedicine; Nellie Campbell, secretarial training; Martha Workman, physical education; and Angie Chism, music.

Seven have chosen to stay in the Madison area. Three will take class work in Nashville: Sheila Wright, secretarial training; Penny Hancock, nursing; and Mary Jane Keimig, cosmetology. Three will study at Madison College: David Jennings is undecided as to what course he will study; Sandra Dorris will enroll for Medical Records Technology; and Norma Gant is also undecided. Jack Porter will continue working at the Southern Publishing Association.
