Madison Church Celebrates 60th Anniversary Oct. 28-29

By Myrle Tabler, Press Secretary
Madison Campus Church

Manual labor for the day was over for the missionaries on the rocky farm beside the Cumberland River near Nashville on March 11, 1906. The chickens, from whose eggs a large part of their income was derived were resting on their roosts; the cows, whose milk supplied their tables, were sleeping in their stalls. From the surrounding woods wild creatures of the forest began their nightly chorus which drifted up to the Old Plantation House on the hill.

Here a momentous meeting was in progress. Twenty some men and women were gathered here to organize the first Madison church. They knew they were following divine guidance, for had not the Lord's messenger said that God's work in the South was to start here?

In the year 1904, this small group of dedicated, humble Seventh-day Adventists, guided by the Spirit of Prophecy, had bought land and began a self-supporting institution near the town of Madison, Tenn. About two years later, they did what most missionaries do as soon as work begins to show progress—they organized a church. So, on March 11, 1906, those who desired to transfer their church membership letters were recognized as constituting charter members of the N.A.N.I., Tennessee, S.D.A. Church.

Two of the charter members were to give practical and spiritual support to the church for more than fifty years. They were Professor Edward A. Sutherland (later Dr. Sutherland) and Miss M. Bessie DeGraw.

On October 28 and 29, 1966, the Madison Campus Church celebrated the 60th anniversary of its organization by special commemorative services. Elder N. C. Wilson was the first pastor on record. His son, Neal, now vice-president of the General Conference for North America, was the principal speaker for the Friday evening and Sabbath morning services. Elder Neal Wilson lived here on the campus for a time as an early resident.

Olive Shannon (Mrs. A. J. Wheeler), only living charter member, was present and honored at the Friday evening gram. Her husband, Andrew Wheeler, another early member who joined the church in 1916, was also present. Four other early members also received commemorative plaques: Dr. Frances Dittes, who came in 1910; Mrs. Laura Rimmer, in 1915; Miss Elizabeth Windhorst, 1917, and Mrs. Kathryn Bertram, 1921. These four are still living on the campus, and have had continuous membership.

The young church was active from its very beginning in its outreach to the community. Like young bees swarming from the mother hive, groups of members separated themselves to form daughter churches—Hillcrest (near Nashville, on White's Creek Pike), Fountain Head (Portland, Tenn.), Sand Mountain (Long Island, Ala.), and Oak Grove (near Goodlettsville). Many others were founded later in widely-separated places in the South. The history of the church has been one of ever-widening influence in the South and in the world. Madisonite foreign missionaries to date number nearly a hundred.

At one time Edson White, son of Mrs. E. G. White, always deeply interested in Christian work for underprivileged peoples, was a member of the Madison Church. He was the owner of the missionary boat, "Morning Star."

In his Sabbath sermon, Elder Wilson expressed the conviction that the future of Madison would far exceed its past in the greatness of its service to God. "Lives of men and women today are confused and muddled," he said. "More than human wisdom is needed, and the gospel of Jesus Christ is the only solution to their problems. Changes will continue to affect the appearance of Madison, but not its spirit of unselfish service."

On Sabbath afternoon the history of the church was reviewed by Mrs. Robert Stewart, and a program of special music was given by Madison Academy band, choir, and girls' glee club.

HOMECOMING, 1967

The Homecoming date for 1967 has been set by the alumni committee for April 28, 29. We hope many will plan to attend. The class of 1942 will be the honored silver anniversary class of 25 years ago.

56th Convention of Southern Self-Supporting Workers

The 56th annual Convention of Southern Self-Supporting Workers was held October 13-15 at Mountain S-H and Fletcher Academy in North Carolina. At the Friday morning devotional service George B. McClure of Wildwood impressed upon his hearers the necessity of arousing to the task of finishing the work, and emphasized the vital importance of laymen and self-supporting workers in these closing moments of earth's history. He quoted from An Appeal for the Madison School, by Mrs. E. G. White:

"The students have been taught to raise their own crops, to build their own houses, and to care wisely for cattle and poultry. They have been learning to become self-supporting, and a training more important than this they could not receive. . . . To this is added the knowledge of how to treat the sick and to care for the injured. This training for medical missionary work is one of the grandest objects for which any school can be established." The Madison School, p. 33.

Panel on Institutional Standards

A panel on institutional standards followed the devotional period. Douglas Parker, administrator of Lawrenceburg S-H, said, "We in self-supporting work need guide lines. It's just good business. There is great need for understanding the principles of accounting." Herbert Atherton, administrator of Wildwood Sanitarium, agreed.

Robert Santini of Pine Hill Sanitarium spoke of the importance of cleanliness, cheerfulness, loyalty, and maintaining our church standards among all workers regarding smoking, coffee, meat eating, make-up, etc.

Gordon Brown, assistant principal of Fletcher Academy, spoke of the aims of educational institutions, the value of earning all or part of one's way, and said we should not lower the line on our standards. We ought not to be so concerned with aims, as whether we are reaching our aims.

Leland Stray of Little Creek told of his experience at SS of Usi Mission in Africa when he was a boy, and of the workers' dependence on gardens for food. They went to town (Bulawaya) only about once a year, when a native boy was sent to bring back what he could on his head. The only real security, he stated, is to stay close to the soil. By buying too much instead of producing more, we have slid into dependence.

Herbert Atherton asserted that our problem today is that we are not hungry enough. God intended that his children should show the world how to produce their food free from disease.

Medical Work and Current Problems

Dr. P. J. Moore, Jr., staff physician at Mountain S-H, was moderator of the panel on medical work and current problems. He spoke of great competition in the medical world.

Robert Santini told of the work at Pine Hill, and of the vegetarian cafeteria which was operated in Birmingham for many years.

Herbert Atherton, in speaking of God's true remedies, urged that it was better to prevent disease than to cure it. He stated that a new, 36-bed facility is being contemplated at Wildwood, using five of the eight true remedies, and stressing exercise, such as walking, in the prevention of heart disease. There are 3,000 preventive centers in Europe and Russia.

Mrs. Louise Kuiken, of Bethel Sanitarium, Evansville, Indiana, said the Bethel Sanitarium was organized in 1949 as a non-profit organization with 30 beds. Now they have 74 beds, 30 acres, and 11 housing units for workers. They raise much of their own food. They have a great need for more Adventist doctors, nurses, and workers. Dr. Edwin Brooks, an anesthesiologist and an LLU graduate, has located in Evansville, and takes emergency calls for the sanitarium.

Dr. Moore concluded the discussion by stating that the time is past when we can become isolationists. We should endeavor to improve our public image by getting people to become better acquainted with us.

Panel on Educational Work

Friday afternoon at 1:30 Leland Straw acted as moderator for a panel on educational work, and mentioned that we do not need a college education for many respectable occupations. He cited piano tuning as a good example.

L. E. Nestell, principal of Fletcher Academy, stated that five or ten per cent of his seniors are not able to enter college (scholastically) and posed the question: "What can we do for this neglected group?" He referred to a book, The Sheepskin Psychosis. The idea of a college education being essential to success is not true.

Walter Coulter, dean of boys at Laurelbrook, spoke of the great need for more self-supporting workers, and told about the junior worker program at Laurelbrook, where their graduates stay on as junior workers. "Look around you," he said. "In this meeting, almost without exception, you see graduates of Madison College, but there is no Madison College now. Where will we get our 'unit' workers in the future?" Mr. Atherton agreed that the South is filled with Madison graduates who had this concept.

Robert Zollinger of Laurelbrook spoke of the need to establish some type of training program for self-supporting workers. He said we should find young people who are interested and send them to the units. John Bullock, acting administrator of Pewee Valley Sanitarium, expressed his fear that since Madison College is no longer a school, there will be a lack of trained workers, to which Leland Straw replied: "At one time during the depression, Madison could have had anyone it wanted for workers. I think it won't be long until we can have all the workers we need." He also stated that he had become interested in Madison College through George McClure, and he had in turn interested Bob Zollinger in entering this type of work.

George McClure expressed a burden for industrial and agricultural education. Sister White says: "The operations of agriculture illustrate the Bible lessons. . . . The same principles run through the spiritual and the natural world. Divorce God and His wisdom from the acquisition of knowledge, and you have a lame, one-sided education. . . ." FE 375.

L. L. Dickman, an academy principal for ten years, told of his experience at Harbert Hills with problem boys, and urged the need for some real heart searching by parents. Elder Vernon Becker, educational secretary of the Southern Union, addressed the convention. Among other points he emphasized the value of smaller schools where there is closer touch between student and teacher.

Friday Evening and Sabbath Services

At the Friday evening meeting Elder Don Kenyon, pastor of the Fletcher church, spoke. The Sabbath morning sermon was preached by Elder Desmond Cummings, president of the Georgia-Cumberland Conference. He said, "We appreciate your work, and hope you will never forget the call you have had to this work."

On Sabbath afternoon, missionary experiences were related, such as sunshine and temperance bands at Fletcher, answering calls to help fight fire at Harbert Hills, etc. Robert Santini reported the purchase of the film, "One in 20,000," and the showing of it in the large high schools in Birmingham, sometimes five times a day to as many as 2,000 students.

Wildwood Sanitarium in Georgia is a beehive of evangelism. They have eight branch Sabbath schools going, and ten churches have been raised up. Petra Sukau is a visiting nurse, and is teaching health in the public schools in two communities.

Bob Zollinger reported that Laurelbrook has 50 students, and had won an award for campus improvement for the last two years. A teacher of rural sociology from Middle Tennessee State College visited them, and stated that he was going to bring his class over.

The speaker at the Sabbath afternoon meeting was J. C. S. Van Rooyen, of SMC, who related the story of his conversion while in Africa. His wife, Mary Arlene, is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Moore of Woodbury.

Report of Nominating Committee

New officers, 1966-67: President, L. L. Dickman; vice-presidents, Charles Martin and Robert Santini; secretary-treasurer, Florence Fellemente.

Quotes from Elder Wilson's 60th Anniversary Sermon

"It is with a measure of emotion that I bring you a message. A few years of my younger life were spent here. Although I never went to school at Madison, I feel I had part of my education here.

"The story of Madison is a story of vision, struggle, hardship—and success. It is a story that should be told and retold. It is a story of men and women of devotion and conviction who have been trained here and have gone out to the ends of the earth. Around the world we see many in the work who are a product of Madison. Some think the glory of Madison is departed and all we can do is look back to a heritage, but Madison must yet do more for the finishing of the work. All that was done was but a foundation. The greatest days of Madison are not in the past, but in the future.

"We live in a changing world, but must never change our aims and goals. I rejoice with you on this 60th anniversary. We may have to change our methods and approaches, but we should never lose sight of the goals. Madison has had to undergo some of these changes. Continue to demonstrate the spirit for which Madison has been known."

Tithe Then and Now

(Gleaned from the church history)

Tithe for the year 1917 was $500. Checks sent to the conference in 1927 equaled $6,132.48 by the church and $634 by individuals. One dollar in every six the conference received came from Madison. (In 1965, the tithe sent to the conference from Madison amounted to $125,000.) Elder J. W. Clarke is the present pastor of the church.

They Built a Church

By Myrle E. Tabler '54

(Written for 60th Anniversary of Church)

In the sunny South where the Cumberland flows
And the mountains dip down to the vale,
They built a small church and let its light shine,
Built it by faith and love and travail.

Its sons and its daughters the gospel have borne
Over earth's whitening fields far and nigh:
Willing to labor no matter how long
'Till our Lord be revealed from on high.

The years circle by, SIXTY have gone,
And still its light burns steady and strong;
Still shall it burn if their faith we will keep
And ever exalt our Saviour alone.

Upon receiving a picture of the old sanitarium as it used to look at Madison, Carl Jones wrote from National City, Calif.:

"I enjoyed the picture of the old building, since I had a part in making the iron railings that were on the sides of the porches and walks. I was at Madison College as an academy senior in 1928 or 1929. I worked in the machine shop with Brother Rimmer, on the farm with Brother Putnam, and in the bakery with Clarence Sander.

"I have worked at Paradise Valley S-H for 20 years in the maintenance department. I have been supervisor in the carpenter shop for 19 years, and in the combined carpentry and paint departments for the past 3 years.

"I have a step-son in Little Creek and a step-daughter in S.M.C. taking nursing, so she will probably be at Madison next year. Madison holds a large place in my heart."

• From a letter written by Elder Clarence Wheeler, we glean the following:

Upon graduation from WMC in 1917, Elder Wheeler was wanted by two boards—the draft and mission. While this conflict was on, he went to Madison to spend some time with the Andrew Wheelers. While at Madison he had the privilege of sitting in Dr. Bralliar's classes, but when he heard Mother D's whistle he would leave to do some errand for her, usually to pick up or take a patient to the Madison railway depot.

The mission board finally sent him to Northern Rhodesia, Africa. His work there included teaching, preaching, building, growing food for the students, and oversight of the mission under his charge. Perhaps his greatest contribution to the mission work in Africa was the preparation or translation of readers, hymnals, and catechisms in three of the leading languages in Zambia.

Elder Wheeler married Roberta (Sharp) Ingram in the Madison Sanitarium in April, 1935. Mrs. Wheeler has been a teacher and practical nurse. The Wheelers returned to America in 1945 and labored in the Alabama-Mississippi Conference until 1950 when they retired, and are now living in McMinnville, Tenn.

• "We have always enjoyed visiting Madison. It is too bad it will not be a college any more, as it surely has been a blessing to many young people who could not afford to go to one of our colleges. At the time our son, Clifford, was ready for college in 1936, we could not afford to send him to PUC, so we feel grateful. Our daughter-in-law worked there at the hospital dietary department. Our church pastor, Elder Theo Fischer, went to Madison." Mrs. J. R. Melendy, Willows, Calif.

Florence (Barrett) Burchard, Hollister, Calif.

"I attended Madison in 1935-38, taking one year of nursing, and for health reasons changed to the teaching curriculum. I graduated in 1947 from Berrien Springs with a B.A. in elementary education, and am now in my 22nd year of teaching. I have grades 1-4 in the Hollister, Calif., church school.

"My first husband, Homer Barrett, a graduate of Madison in 1938, died in 1940. I married James Burchard, a former student at Madison, in 1954. Mr. Burchard and I were self-supporting medical missionaries in Cuyamel, Honduras. For four years we had a dental clinic in the jungle. We still own our property and home in Honduras, and plan to return to re-open our work in the near future.

"My son, Homer Barrett, a graduate of Little Creek and Wildwood, is working as a dentist with Dr. Harry Graves (premed. '32), who has a thriving medical clinic in La Democracia, Guatemala. Homer writes that he gives full dental service to the Indians there.

"Please know that we are proud that the spirit of Madison is upheld by faithful editor and staff. The SURVEY keeps the spirit of self-supporting work alive. Long may it continue to be published!"

GEORGE T. YOUMANS

George Talmon Youmans passed away at Battle Creek Sanitarium on April 17, 1966, at the age of 88.
