Collection 297

Biography

Winton Henry Beaven,(1915–2003) was an Adventist educator, college administrator, lecturer, and broadcaster. He was president of the International Committee for the Prevention of Alcoholism. He spoke and taught in many countries, including Canada, Australia, Poland, and Yugoslavia.

Winton was born January 26, 1915, in Binghamton, New York, to William H. Beaven (1885-1979) and Eva Lucinda Longway (1891-1974). By 1920, the family was living in Oneida, New York, where both parents were public school teachers. The Beavens had two sons, Winton and Bruce Lee (1925-1966).

Beaven graduated in 1937 with a Bachelor of Arts degree in history from Atlantic Union College in South Lancaster, Massachusetts. He later earned a Master's degree from Clark University in Worcester, Massachusetts, and a Ph.D. from the University of Michigan in 1950.

Beaven's positions as educator included teaching Bible and English at Atlantic Union College, assistant professor of English and speech at Union College, speech professor at the University of Michigan, and as a professor at the Seventh-day Adventist Theological Seminary. He was dean at Potomac University from 1956 to 1959 and served as dean and then president of Columbia Union College from 1959 to 1970 and provost of Kettering College from 1970 to 1983. He was also associate secretary of the American Temperance Society and worked in the summer Institutes of Scientific Study for Prevention of Alcoholism in Loma Linda, California, and Washington, D.C.

In 1965, Beaven, then president of Columbia Union College, and Sligo Church Pastor William Loveless jointly produced a television program that addressed religious and ethical issues. It is reported that they gave over 3,000 Bibles away to listeners in the first year.

Beaven and colleague Anna May Vaughan were honored by the founding of the Kettering College Service Learning Leadership Program (SLLP). This program was designed to help health students expand their care for patients and to assist others for successful lives no matter where the person lived around the world.

Beaven retired in July 1983, but did not stop working at Kettering College. He served as assistant to the president for special projects.

Beaven married Barbara Halifax (1920-2005) in 1938. The marriage produced six children--three boys and three girls--Cherie, Eric, Barbara, Connie, Barry, and Marc. In 1969, he married Lorraine Smith. He and Lorraine had one daughter, Lara.

Winton Beaven died on May 12, 2003 in Dayton, Ohio, and was buried with his parents in the McConnellsville Cemetery in McConnellsville, Oneida County, New York.

In 1952, Beaven wrote in Ministry that the postwar religious awakening had increased the number of men seeking to enter the ministry. Most theology seminaries were expanding to hold all the men wanting to become ministers. The preaching of these ministers, he said, had improved greatly. He also encouraged ministers to personalize their sermons, including words like I, we, and you.

Beaven frequently wrote about alcoholism and the challenges it presented the medical community in helping those who were addicted to alcohol. He was also an acknowledged leader in narcotics education, and said that illegal drugs are harmful or they would not be classified as drugs. Beaven took a great interest in drug use in the Seventh-day Adventist church and investigated it through many studies of the problem among church members. The result was to set up a curriculum that would help students from K-12, starting at Andrews University and spreading throughout the United States.

Beaven's publishing work took the form of a book called, Now You're Living: Basic information for Scientific Education for Prevention of Alcoholism and Drug Addiction, and another one entitled, Whither Research? He collaborated on another book entitled, Building a Tradition of Caring. He also wrote articles on speech in the Quarterly Journal of Speech and articles in other journals and magazines such as Listen. (Most of the above is from the Encyclopedia of Seventh-day Adventists, accessed October 16, 2024).

Beaven was a very influential and well-known leader in Seventh-day Adventist higher education over several decades. His influence was felt all over North America. He spoke at 56 schools for graduation, some more than once; he spoke to every Adventist Academy in North America at least twice, also at 43 conferences in the United States and in over 100 countries.

Scope

Beaven was involved in many different causes during his academic career. He chaired many foundations and organizations, was an ordained minister, co-created and hosted an Emmy-nominated talk show, Concept. He served many companies as a management consultant. He served as the President of the American Temperance Society and the International Committee for Prevention of Alcoholism, and as a special General Conference presidential appointee for chemical abuse prevention, and consulted with the governments of Poland, Australia, Afghanistan, Canada, Kuwait, Qatar, Saudi Arabia, the Sudan, and Kenya. This collection includes correspondence letters, publications, awards, videos, lecture materials, and other topical documents covering his broad and diverse career.

Arrangement

This collection was originally arranged according to the way Beaven kept his files and generally follows the time line of his life from high school through retirement. After processing of the collection was underway, Lorraine Beaven donated additional material that was not incorporated into the collection at that time. This material was rediscovered in 2026 and then added to the collection. The register reflects both the original processing and the addition of this later material, which is why the numbering of boxes and folders is sometimes different than what would normally be expected.

In addition to physical documents, several iterations of digital files (documents and photographs) were donated. Lorraine and Winton Beaven created documents explaining the organization of the digital files and how they fit into the larger collection. These explanatory documents are found in the first series and the digital files have been listed in italics where Lorraine and Winton thought they would fall within the broader arrangement of the physical collection.

Provenance

The collection was donated to the Center for Adventist Research in stages by Lorraine Beaven. The initial donation was made in November 2011. Subsequent donations of additional documents, DVDs, cassette tapes, etc. were donated in December 2011 and May 2015. Two letters from Lorraine written in 2016 indicate that a cinematographer friend helped digitize 120 cassette tapes containing sermons/talks by Winton. The digitized files were apparently placed in a Google Drive folder, but are now inaccessible. She wrote that she would donate the physical copies of the cassette tapes after digitization was complete. It is unclear whether she followed through with this intent, but many of these tapes appear to be missing or misplaced. Many digital files did make their way to the Center for Adventist Research. All extant digital components of this collection are saved in the Center's digital archive server and may be requested.

Explanatory Binders

The documents in these folders were created by Lorraine and Winton to explain the digital files that are meant to accompany the physical files in this collection. Throughout this register, the italicized references to page numbers from “WHB Photos and Clips” correspond to pages of these binders. The original USB drives are found in Box 6 Fld 10, while the digitized files can be found on CAR’s servers. Researchers can ask CAR for access.

Multiple iterations of these binders were donated, as indicated below. According to Lorraine Beaven, the fourth binder was meant to be the definitive version.
